YALE STUDENT SHOOT WIDOW THEN SUICIDES

(Associated Press Local Wire.)

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 29.—Newson C. Woods, 22, a freshman in the law school of Yale University, shot and killed himself today after he had fired two shots into the body of Mrs. Georgia Warder, 23-year-old widow, of Bridgeport, W. Va. The shooting was believed by the police to have been caused by Mrs. Warder's refusal to marry the young student.

A taxicab driver, who had driven Woods and Mrs. Warder from Clarksburg to the home of W. Stanbridge, her brother, in Bridgeport, where she lived, heard Woods say as he stood upon the steps of the home:

"Well, if you don't marry me, nobody else can have you."

The couple went into the house and soon the driver heard the shots. She was taken to a hospital, where it was said the probability would not live.

A Ford car belonging to Tom Ritzman was stolen last night while the owner was attending the show. The car was left standing upon the street, and when he returned to claim it the machine was not to be found. Those under arrest save the names of Jack Allen, John Joe Walton, Leo Dewey and W. Allen. A warrant has been issued for them and they will be returned to this city at once.

PRESS POSTAGE RATES STAY ON PRESENT LEVELS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—A proposal to reduce second class mail rates to the 1920 level was rejected by the senate today as an amendment to the postal pay and rate increase bill.

On motion of Senator Odde, republican, Nevada, the senate then voted to exempt publications subject to first and second zone mail rates from the one cent a pound increase in rate proposed in the bill. As a result the rate on second class mail sent in the first two zones is retained at two cents a pound.

The senate today adopted as a rider to the postal salaries bill a corrupt practices act strictly limiting campaign expenditures by congressional candidates.

In addition to limiting expenditures of a candidate for the house to $2500 and of a senator to $10,000, the measure would require detailed periodical reports from every political committee and, in certain cases, from individual contributors.

The president's agricultural commission today completed its third group of recommendations. It deals with administration of existing agencies related to agriculture and is expected to be made public early next week.

LOCAL BOY HURT IN PLANE WRECK

Dolmar Barnes, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Barnes of this city, was injured a few days ago in an airplane crash at San Diego, according to a letter received from him. He is serving his third enlistment as an electrician in the naval air service and has recently been spending a great deal of time in the air. He was injured when the big seaplane nosed over after attempting a landing in a rough section of the field. He pulled the fragments in one leg, and was otherwise bruised but not seriously hurt. He was recently commended by the war department for bravery in an attempt to rescue comrades in the service who were drowned when their plane went into the ocean. Barnes was in a plane returning to its base when the other ship was seen to drop into the water. The craft in which Barnes was flying immediately turned about and went to the rescue, and for four hours the airmen worked in the icy waters to release the bodies of their comrades, pinned underneath the wreckage. They at last succeeded in saving all of the bodies, but all on the wrecked plane were drowned before they could be released. In recognition of the brave attempt at rescue, however, the war department wrote a letter of commendation to those who took such risks themselves to save the bodies of their comrades.

OREGON SCHOOL LAW APPEAL IN SUPREME COURT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Oregon today filed in the supreme court, through its attorney general, Isaac A. Van Winkle, a brief in support of its appeal from the decision of the federal district court of Oregon, enjoining enforcement of the compulsory education law. The litigation is the first test to reach the supreme court on the right of states to require the education of children in public schools.

The law was adopted by vote of the people November, 1922, was attacked as unconstitutional by the Society of the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary and by the Hill Military Academy. It proposed that children between the ages of 8 and 16 must attend public schools and prohibit their instruction in parochial or private schools.

The points made by the state in its appeal are that the fourteenth amendment to the constitution does not restrict the power of states to enact laws necessary to promote the health, safety, morals, education and general welfare of the people that charters previously granted by the state to educational institutions are subject to annulment under the police powers of the state that the state may exercise unlimited supervision over minors as to education, employment, etc., that the statute under attack does not interfere with the religious liberty of anyone that the American people have determined there shall be absolute and unequivocal separation of church and state public schools shall be maintained and conducted free from influences in favor of any religious organization.

MISSIONARY TO BRAZIL SPEAKS

Tuesday evening Rev. Henry McCall addressed an audience of about thirty at the Presbyterian church on the subject of Brazil. Dr. Martin went to Brazil as a missionary in 1898 and Dr. Galtier in 1895. Rev. McCall said progress at first was very slow.

Brazil is an extremely hard climate, the people lack of transportation, lack of proper food, lack of good drinking water and persecution. Among the diseases common in the southern part, especially in Bahia, are yellow fever, Bubonic plague, Malaria and Hook Worm disease. Fully 95 percent of the people have this disease, which always gives a person a vitiated taste. One patient ate the coat on his back, another ate books, etc. On account of lack of transportation, Rev. McCall and his wife could take with them into the interior only what they could carry on a mule's back. There are no roads and no sign posts in many parts of the country. In the interior, where Rev. McCall was stationed it was impossible to get meat fresher than once a week, and then it was meat that had been hung in the open and covered with flies. In the mountains for several months every year, the only drinking places have to be shared with many animals.

But in spite of these many difficulties, Rev. McCall and other missionaries have been able to touch the hearts of many people. In one place where Rev. McCall was stationed for four years, there is a church with over 200 members. When he and his family returned after a week and over a year, crowds went out 14 miles to greet them and to escort them to their home.

The missionary has to contend with not only dense ignorance on the part of most of the people, but also with idol worship and immorality. Things that are considered the natural affectionate nature of the people, their hospitality and their recognition of the authority of God's Word. The men and women are sinners, but they know it. In order to get his message "across" the missionary has not to have a common sense and the love of Jesus in his heart, and preach the power of God to overcome sin.

In closing, Rev. McCall made an appeal to his audience to be missionaries if no in person, through prayers and gifts of money and children.

HOT ARGUMENTS ON CHILD LABOR LAW ARE HEARD

Corvallis, attacked the arguments of the proponents of the measure. He explained that their data was based on 1920 statistics.

"Various states having deficiencies in their child labor laws have corrected them since that time," he declared.

James Mott, representative from Clatsop county, assailed the arguments of Brown, whom he charged was a representative of the Merchants and Manufacturer's Association. "There is no valid reason for not giving congress the concurrent power in child labor legislation that the states enjoy," he declared. "The supreme court will outrule any excessive or unwise legislation, if congress were to be so foolish to pass any."

IRRIGATION AND LIGHT PLANS MADE

Canyonville and the Days Creek country are making an effort to have electricity brought into the town and valley for lighting and irrigation purposes, the line to come in from Hilde. Last evening Thos. H. Ness, manager of the California Oregon Power Company, and Will E. Holbein, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, went down to Canyonville and met with a large crowd of the interested citizens.

Mr. Ness explained what could be necessary on the part of the people down there to secure this great convenience, and expressions from those present make it almost certain that something will be done in the matter early this spring. Some of the farmers up towards Days Creek wish to irrigate at least fifty acres, and they are sold to the idea of using electricity for this purpose.
