ROSEBURG, OREGON, SATURDAY, JANUARY 31, 1925

THE ADVANCE FROM SUPERSTITION.

The recent eclipse of the sun brought out many stories of how people used to regard such an event. Some who are now living can recall how it was once thought by many ignorant persons, when the sun was thus darkened, that the end of the world had come, and their lamentations and prayers filled the air. Whether their conduct improved any shortly after, when the sun shone again, would be quite doubtful.

Today a smattering at least of scientific knowledge has become so common, that only a very few of the most ignorant in the most remote localities could have any such thought.

This wider comprehension of such an event is largely due to the educational power of the newspapers. It also suggests that while many people still have little intelligence, the science of the times penetrates to some extent into the most ignorant minds, so that the popular frenzies and crazes of former years could not return.

HAVING YOUR OWN WAY.

Many of the older people used to hand out advice to their younger friends, to the effect that "You can't expect to have everything your own way." That counsel is not so often heard or comprehended now, and the result is a multiplictiy of quarrels that should be avoided. The great majority of the divorces occur because one or both parties expect to have their own way. The same spirit causes the labor troubles that cause such a destructive loss. Many carry the same feeling into international relations, and expect that their own country shall settle for itself all arrangements with other powers, and that other nations shall conform to the same with docility. The wars grow out of that spirit.

FATHER AND SON ADMIT ARSON TO CONCEAL A STILL

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

SALEM, Ore., Jan. 31.—Herbert Thomas and son Ray, still operators, have confessed that they burned a four-room dwelling house near the mouth of Foley river, 30 miles from Tillamook, on the night of June 30, last, the state fire marshal announced.

The night of the fire the owners got a tip that the place was to be raided. They were away from home at the time, but hurried back, removed the still, scattered kerosene about the place and set fire to it.

After the building had burned they emptied the barrels of mash that were in the basement, according to a statement from the fire marshal's office, rolled the barrels to the river and filled the hole with dirt.

"FEAR" GREATEST WORLD BUGABOO. MINISTER AVERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The place of foreign missions in the church at home was the theme developed by speakers at today's session of the foreign missions conference of North America.

Rev. Dr. Hugh T. Kerr, of Pittsburg, deprecated what he declared was the 40-day motivation of "fear" in church support of missions.

"Fear,' he declared, "presses on all sides; racial fear, fear of a possible rising tide of color, economical and industrial fear; fear lest the great surplus of raw materials in Asia and Africa and the unlimited supply of cheap labor may in time slow down the wheels of our own industrial life; political and military fear; fear of arming millions of the east, who can count hundreds to our units."

JURY CONVICTS FORBES, EX-HEAD OF VET BUREAU

SEATTLE, Jan. 31.—Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former director of the United States Veterans Bureau and John W. Thompson, St. Louis contractor, were found guilty of conspiracy to defraud the government in contracts for soldiers' hospitals by a federal court jury here last night.

New trials were immediately requested and Judge George A. Carpenter set February 4 for hearing the plea. Sentence was reserved pending disposal of the motion. The maximum penalty is two years imprisonment and a $10,000 fine or either.

The jury interrupted its consideration of a verdict at the end of four hours to ask the court concerning its right to consider overt acts committed beyond the jurisdiction of the trial court and was informed that the verdict must be confined to acts within the jurisdiction of the court. The principal overt act charged by the prosecution to have been committed in this district was the alleged payment of $5,000 cash to Forbes by Elias H. Mortimer, chief prosecution witness, in a hotel here June 20, 1922.

Mortimer says he paid the money as Thompson's agent.

At that time, the government charged, there existed a conspiracy between Thompson, Forbes, Mortimer, James W. Black, deceased partner of Thompson, and Charles F. Cramer, deceased, former general counsel of the veteran's bureau to fraudulently award veterans' hospital contracts to Thompson and Black interests.

DUMBELL DORA WRITES FROM SALEM TOWN

Friend boss: The legislashure fellers all adjourned and we're goin' to Portland to be the guests of the Port commish and we hope the Portland Port gang don't lay too much stress on the port. You know it's nip and tuck nowadays, as Mister Cleaver sez. You take a nip of bootleg hootch and pretty son they tuck you in a coffin. Bein' a steneg to a tongue-tied senator is a softer job than helpin' a florist pick the buds off his two-year old century plant but keepin' yer reputation among the sheik Representatives is as difficult as findin' a cootie on an iron statue. I'll bring ya back a shot of port from the commish if I'm able.

WOTCHER STEP, MAY!

May Bright, a charmingly delicate Boston girl, blushing and smiling in a filmy wedding gown, came daintily up the aisle, her gossamer veil floating like mist above her head. According to an eyewitness, she was any man's best bet for an angel. At the altar, she stubbed her toe on a potted lily resting on the floor. She turned to the minister and said: "That's a heluva place for a lilly!"

BRUSSELS, Jan. 31. — Convictions of German military men by default for crimes committed during the war in Belgium were obtained this week. A court martial at Hainaut returned the death sentence against two Germans, sentenced two others to life imprisonment at hard labor and a fifth to five years.

All were shown to have committed acts of aggression against Belgian civilians during the occupation.

MANCHESTER, England, Jan. 31. — Soviet agents have been busy here for some days placing orders for yarn and cotton waste. More than 1,000,000 pounds of American yarn already has been sold.

Firms dealing with the Russian agents require and receive guarantees.

This reopening of the Russian market is arousing great interest.

MADRID, Jan. 31. — The Riffian tribesmen have captured Tazarut and Raisuli, the bandit leader, is a prisoner in his house, guarded by soldiers of ten Sherif, says an official statement issued today.

The statement declares that Raisuli has become considerably worse and he is believed to have been forced to surrender to those he fought.

BELFAST, Jan. 31. — Three persons were killed and ten injured when during a fierce gale last night a train was blown from the rails while crossing the Owencarrow viaduct.

GENEVA, Jan. 31.—The international opium conference leaders failed to agree today on the problem of suspension of opium smoking in the far east, and Representative Stephen G. Porter, for the United States; Viscount Cecil for England, and other delegates decided to make public statements on their positions at this afternoon's meeting of the joint commission.

None of the European powers with colonies in the far east have assumed a willingness to accept the American view that the suppression measures should begin immediately irrespective of the reduction of illicit cultivation of opium in China and the heavy smuggling thence to adjoining countries.

DUBLIN, Jan. 31.—The police today raided a house in the residential district of Clontarf, near Dublin, and seized a ton of explosives, many revolvers and hand grenades, 5330 rounds of revolver ammunition and a large quantity of bomb making materials. Two arrests were made.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—Influenza is causing considerable suffering throughout England and many deaths have resulted, although the death rate is not so high as a year ago. The deaths in the principal towns last week totalled nearly 200.

The epidemic is worst in the Midlands, Yorkshire and Lancastershire. Many schools have been closed.

NEWSPAPER CENSUS MADE BY U. OF O.

University of Oregon, Eugene, Jan. 31.—(Special.) — Newspapers and magazines of general circulation are published in 134 communities of Oregon, according to the annual survey of the state press made by Prof. George S. Turnbull of the University of Oregon school of journalism. The total number of periodical publications listed in Prof. Turnbull's directory of the Oregon press is 251, or approximately the same as in 1923, when the number was 253.

This year's total excludes all publications issued at educational institutions, but includes the various communities in Portland, of which there are 17. Only one of these was listed in the directory compiled last year. The addition of publications issued by educational institutions would send the total periodical publications past 300.

Prof. Turnbull's annual survey shows that two new daily papers were started in the state in the past year, the Central Oregon Press, at Bend, and the Klamath News, at Klamath Falls. Both of these advanced from twice-a-weeks bringing the total number of dailies in Oregon to 33, an increase of two in the year, since there were no fatalities in this field.

New weekly papers totaled 8, exceeding by 1 the number of deaths in this field. One of the 7 weeklies that expired, however, was a paper printed in a nearby town of larger size, and one was an exclusively farm news paper, reducing to 5 the total number of actual home-town weeklies that failed.

In the twice-a-week and weekly field no paper is counted which is a part of a daily newspaper. Thus the reduction of twice-a-weeks from 7 to 4 is not a loss of independent twice-a-weeks, which have held their own at 4, with the additions of the Cottage Grove Sentinel and the St. Helens Mist to the number, counterbalancing the loss of the Bend and Klamath Falls publications that moved to the daily class.

Nineteen Oregon papers reported change of ownership during the year as compared with 23 in the preceding twelve-month period. Two more changes in editors-in-chiefs, however, are reported, with 29 as against 27.

Women appear to be holding their own, approximately, in the editorial and publishing ends of the newspapers, with 11 women editors and 7 women publishers reported. Lack of detailed returns from a considerable number of composing rooms makes it possible to say how the women are getting along in the back shops. One of the women publishers retired from the field during the year, when Mrs. Jessiline E. Morrison, turned over the Maupin Times to A. Y. Zoller, of the Dufur Dispatch.

Among the notable journalists who died during 1924 were Charles H. Fisher, editor of the Eugene Evening Guard; A. E. Scott, editor and publisher of the Washington County News-Times, Forest Grove; Addison Bennett, veteran reporter on the staff of the Morning Oregonian; E. P. Cronemiller, publisher of the Lake County Examiner, at Lakeview; William E. Johnson, editor and publisher of the Madras Pioneer, who has been succeeded in that capacity by his wife; A. E. (Jack) Guyton, city editor of the Coos Bay Times, at Marshfield; and C. S. Jackson, founder and publisher of the Oregon Journal.

Following are the newspapers started during the year: Aumsville Star, Banks Tribune, Benton Independent, Corvallis; Oakridge Review, Eastern Oregon Scout, La Grande; Tigard Sentinel, the Southern Oregon Spokesman, Grants Pass; and the Poor Fish, Astoria.

Papers that gave up the ghost were: Bay City Chronicle, Amity Range and Valley, Heppner Herald, Lebanon Criterion, Monroe News, St. Helens Columbian, and Marshfield Timber Topics.
