COMMITTEE CLEAVER'S JOB NOT IN ACCORD

Majority Favors Retention,
Holding Him Honest,
But Meddlesome

EDDY LAW'S AUTHOR

Bossing Job.

STATE HOUSE, Salem, Ore., Feb. 4.—Following another session today, called for the purpose of receiving a final statement in writing by George L. Cleaver, state prohibition commissioner, the joint legislative committee, which has been investigating the state prohibition department will turn its attention to framing its report.

At a session yesterday afternoon Governor Pierce, W. J. Herwig, of the Anti-Saloon League in Oregon, and Mr. Cleaver testified that the senate members and one of the house members of the committee were in favor of retention of the state prohibition department, and four members of the committee representing the house indicated they would file a minority report favoring repeal of the act.

Committee members have indicated that the report will include a censure of Cleaver for political activities, and for lack of care in selection of employees, but would give him a clean bill of health so far as honesty was concerned.

Eddy Author of Law
The testimony of Governor Pierce yesterday brought out the fact that the act creating the state prohibition department was written by Senator Eddy; that it was modeled after an Ohio law, and that the law was enacted at the advice of Roy Haines, of Washington, D. C., head of the national prohibition department, who at the time was visiting the Oregon legislature. Senator Eddy took charge of the legislation, it was shown, at the request of Governor Pierce.

The governor denied that the anti-Saloon League had anything to do with running the state department.

"The prohibition department is not run by the anti-Saloon League," he said. "I run it. True, I have consulted with the anti-Saloon League and with friends of prohibition."

In his talk at the public hearing Monday night, Governor Pierce had referred to a large number of prosecutions resulting from $1,500 in state money turned over to Weinburg for his anti-Saloon League investigation. Senator Hare questioned the governor about this, reminding him that previous testimony showed that not a single prosecution had resulted.

"I can't recite a particular case," answered the governor, "but it opened up the Yamhill and other cases in the Willamette valley."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—President Coolidge has referred to the inaugural committee a letter from a perplexed woman asking his advice on the proper dress to wear for her desired participation in the inaugural parade. The letter recalled the president's emphasis on a simple inaugural program.

Too Much Intellect, Not Enough Judgment, Verdict of Psychologist on Confessed 7-Year-Old Poisoner

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 4.—If seven year old Alsa Thompson did not kill her twin sisters in Canada two years ago by feeding them a drink of poison, she certainly thinks she did, according to a psychologist who has examined her at the psychiatric hospital, where she is being held today as a ward of the juvenile court.

Dr. Edwin M. Williams, after questioning the girl at some length, characterized her as "an abnormal child of a high intellectual type," but "born with too much intellect and not enough judgment." He said that while he would not attempt to pass judgment on the truth or falsity of Alsa's "confession," to the police Monday night, he was sure that

UNIVERSITY GIRL MODIFIES TALE OF HER "ABDUCTION."

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
OREGON, Feb. 4.—At the start of the semester, a 29-year old University here Monday of her abduction by three young men in an automobile, officers today scouted the tale after checking up on the case.

The girl has admitted that she was not seized and forced into the car, and denies that anesthetics were used on the ride. It is still admitted however, that she rode with the young men to Cottage Grove, though she got out of the car beyond the city limits of that city, instead of being dropped to the pavement as she told before.

NEUNER IS APPOINTED

George Neuner, well known Roseburg attorney, was yesterday appointed regional director for Kiwanis in the southern Oregon district. District Governor Jim Snell made the appointment, naming him as one of the three new directors in the northwest. Mr. Neuner has been active in Kiwanis affairs both locally and in the district and the members of the local club are highly elated over his appointment.

CONGRESS LEADS ANOTHER MOVE FOR WORLD TO DISARM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Congressional action on the annual navy supply bill carrying a provision requesting President Coolidge to call a world disarmament conference was completed today and the bill sent to the White House.

The senate accepted the house amendment to the arms conference proposing eliminating the words "authorizing" the president to call a conference so that it reads: "requests" him to act.

An investigation of the wheat flour and bread industries was asked by a resolution introduced today by Senator Carrou, republican, Arizona.

President Coolidge's disposition to place responsibility for enactment of agricultural legislation on congress brought assurance from republican senate leaders today that an earnest effort would be made to pass farm measures based on the report of the agricultural commission.

Senators Watson, of Indiana, assistant republican leader, and McNary, of Oregon, ranking republican member of the agricultural committee, discussed the situation today with the president.

With the interstate commerce commission next scheduled to appear before it, the house commerce committee heard today the proponents of the Gooding bill who will rest their case with the hearing.

If the committee reports favorably on the bill Hugh H. Williams of Santa Fe, N. M., member of the New Mexico corporation commission predicted, it would pass the house and be approved by the president. The passage of the bill he contended would not injure the railroads or the country.

"Railroads," he declared "are frightened at any legislation they do not write themselves."

NO COMPLAINT FILED

No complaint has yet been lodged against Roy Carver of Reedsport, who was arrested here Monday evening in company with Ada Gardner, 14-year old Reedsport girl. The girl's parents are in the city and have been in conference with the officers, but as yet no formal action has been taken.

Tirade Against Bill Collectors

Donald Wingfield, an employe at the rock quarry near Carnes, paid a fine of $200 in the city court today after pleading guilty to two charges, assault and drawing a revolver. Wingfield's announced plans of shooting up the Uneceda Lunch restaurant on Front street, were blocked by Nightofficer Rausch, who put an end to the disturbance and landed Wingfield, and Joe James, a local painter before the city recorder. James was fined $5 for assault and battery on Wingfield.

It appears that late last night Wingfield, who admitted to Recorder Whipple that he had had enough liquor to make him feel happy, went to the restaurant and ordered a T-bone steak, and was enjoying the repast, when Joe James made his appearance upon the stage of action.

New Joe James is a painter, who has been struggling against the tide of adverse business conditions. Inclement weather makes the painting business a bad risk anyhow, and the first of the month rolls around too frequently for comfort.

When some of the city merchants got to get action on their "R. S. V. P." letters they consulted with a bill collector.

James never did like bill collectors anyhow, and by the time he arrived at the Uneceda Lunch his thoughts regarding the members of that profession had crystallized into language which would make an army mule blush.

After entering the restaurant he found an audience for his well punctuated tale of disaster, and proceeded to unlimber a vocabulary which would make a cross word puzzle fan green with envy.

Wingfield halted his business of masticating a choice cut of tender T-bone and proceeded to give James a free lecture upon the evils of including in unlicensed linguistic bursters in the presence of ladies. James resented any intrusion upon his oratorical effusions directed at the lineage, direct descent and physical makeup of bill collectors, and a general argument of a more or less vociferous nature started.

The party of the third part, A. P. Watts, the chief cook, came out of his culinary department and demanded that order be restored. James under the caution of the cook's butcher knife, ceased further oral comment, but Wingfield still insisted upon expressing his opinions.

Watts backed up his orders with further instructions to Wingfield to depart, and finally succeeded in getting him outside. While Wingfield and Watts, commonly known as "Slim" continued their discussion, James came out, and proceeded to strike Wingfield.

The latter decided that he would need a gun to continue proceedings so started for his room, announcing that he would return armed and ready for business.

About three hours later he reappeared with the weapon in his overcoat pocket, and yelled at Watts to come on out. Nightofficer Rausch was waiting for Wingfield, and promptly "covered" the gentleman. Wingfield was at first disposed to argue the matter with the officer, but a second straight look at the weapon held by Rausch convinced him that the affair had gone far enough.

When arraigned before City Recorder Whipple he entered a plea of guilty to an assault on Watts, and was fined $100, and entered a like plea to the charge of drawing a revolver, the fine being the same.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 4.—Bodies of two children of undetermined age were found in a shallow grave here today a quarter of a mile from Messa drive, near Santa Barbara Avenue. The police homicide squad is investigating.

Records of missing children are being checked at police head quarters. Among these are two sisters, May and Nina Martin, aged respectively 12 and 8 years, daughters of Mrs. Paul Buss, of this city, who disappeared the night of August 23 last. No trace of them has ever been discovered.

STATE HOUSE, Salem, Ore., Feb. 4.—The house this morning passed house bill 198 transferring control of the state game commission from the governor to the state board of control. Eleven votes were registered against the measure.

"For years the sportsmen have felt that the game department should be in the board of control, as it would prevent the game department being made a political football," declared Kirkwood, sponsor of the bill. "I want to assure you that the sportsmen over the state and others are for the bill."

Kirkwood pointed out that the governor had suggested placing the department in the hands of the board of regents of the Oregon Agricultural College. "The agricultural college people informed us that they were not in a position to do so, nor did they want to," said Kirkwood.

Reduce State Boards
With the amendment that the state boards investigating commission shall be composed of five instead of seven members, the resolutions of the committee has decided to report favorably on the game commission resolution. This resolution sets out a definite plan of action for the commission.

The amendment removes from the commission the governor and the attorney general, who were proposed as ex-officio members. It leaves two to be elected by the senate, two by the house and a fifth to be chosen by the first four. The findings of the commission would be reported to the legislative session of 1927.

To Abolish Blank A

The house yesterday afternoon adopted house joint resolution number six which would amend the state constitution so as to prevent the practice of swearing in voters at the polls. To vote, one would have to be registered six months before the election.

About three hours later he reappeared with the weapon in his overcoat pocket, and yelled at Watts to come on out. Nightofficer Rausch was waiting for Wingfield, and promptly "covered" the gentleman. Wingfield was at first disposed to argue the matter with the officer, but a second straight look at the weapon held by Rausch convinced him that the affair had gone far enough.

When arraigned before City Recorder Whipple he entered a plea of guilty to an assault on Watts, and was fined $100, and entered a like plea to the charge of drawing a revolver, the fine being the same.

Officers of Army and Navy Shrink From Telling Truth, Let Them Be "Punished" by Loss of Easy Berths

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The controversy among army and navy officers over the value of aircraft took on new ramifications today when Representative Perkins, republican, New Jersey, announced that three navy officers had requested the house aircraft committee not to summon them because they could not give their honest views for fear of being disciplined.

On the army side, a request already has resulted in a report from Secretary Weeks that Brigadier General Mitchell, assistant chief of the air service, explain certain statements he made to committees in congress in support of increased aviation facilities.

General Mitchell declared that certain officers were afraid to "tell the truth" about aircraft through a fear of being disciplined "indirectly, through transfer to less favored posts."

Representative Perkins would not reveal the names of the navy officers who asked not to be summoned, but he said that one of them had declared if he testified what he believed—"well, Guam is a long distance away."

He said the request had come to him as chief examiner of the navy department to assist in unravelling the mystery surrounding the poisoning of a number of university students.

In explaining this action, the officers said they were inclined to the belief that the punishment was administered intentionally and not accidentally as was at first believed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Feb. 4.—Contributions to the American Legion's endowment fund for disabled men and the orphans of veterans may be deducted in computing income tax returns, according to a ruling by David H. Blair, United States Commissioner of Internal Revenue, received at legion national headquarters here today.

American Legion officials regard the ruling as important as the legion is carrying forward a campaign for its $5,000,000 endowment fund in 12 states and purposes to extend this activity to every state.

RUM SHIP TAKEN AFTER RESCUE OF SAILORS ADRIFT

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
ASTORIA, Ore., Feb. 4.—With five survivors of the abandoned steam schooner Caoba aboard and with the schooner Pescawa at the end of a ten inch hawser, seized as a rum runner at sea yesterday, the coast guard cutter Algonquin came into port here today.

The Caoba survivors had been picked up by Pescawa which was later seized by the Algonquin. Officers of the Algonquin announced that one thousand cases of whiskey were aboard the Pescawa, which is the first liquor running craft captured at sea and brought into the Columbia river as a prize. The Pescawa had picked up the schooner after a long chase, took the Caoba's men aboard, placed a prize crew in charge of the schooner and started for port with her.

The rescued sailors were warm in their praise of the master of the Pescawa.

"The skipper met us as we came aboard with a bottle of whiskey and a tumbler. We had as much as we wanted then and after a while," said one member of the crew.

While none of the crew of the Caoba was injured all were suffering from exposure and extreme exhaustion. They had not slept since Saturday night.

The Algonquin came across the Pescawa while cruising about looking for the lifeboat in which the Caoba men were adrift. Two small sails were picked up ahead. They were at first thought to be the life boat, but proved too large. When it became evident to those on board the schooner that the cutter was trying to overhaul them, the sailing vessel put about and started running straight for sea, with darkness, for night was falling rapidly giving the schooner a chance to escape.

She wore to just as the cutter was preparing to send a shot across her bows.

CANYONVILLE HAS LOWEST TAX LEVY IN COUNTY

Roseburg Second to Canyonville in Rate of Taxation
Among Cities.

RIDDLE IS HIGHEST

Rate Varies From Six Mills
to Forty-One Mills—
Tax Statements Now Being Written.

Canyonville pays the lowest tax of any municipality in Douglas County, Roseburg is second, and Riddle is highest, according to the tax roll summary prepared by County Assessor Frank Calkins. Canyonville's levy is only 6 mills, which raises a tax of $168.28 all that is needed to support the city government during the year. Roseburg's rate of nine and one-half mills, raises $35,474.33, on a valuation of $3,734,140. The other cities of the county in order of tax levy are Drain, valuation $254,090, levy 11.9 mills, tax $3,022; Reedsport, valuation $566,240, levy 13.3 mills, tax $7,530; Sutherlin, valuation, $435,560, levy 12.7 mills, tax $5,609.64; Yoncalla, valuation $157,390, levy 17 mills, tax $2,675.63; Glendale, valuation $268,810, levy 21 mills, tax $5,640.81; Myrtle Creek, valuation $214,830, levy 21.9 mills, tax $4,704.78; Oakland, valuation $317,650, levy 26.1 mills, tax $8,290.98; Riddle, valuation $131,510, levy 41 mills, tax $5,411.91.

Roseburg residents will pay on a total levy of 43.2 mills, of which only 9.5 mills are city tax, refusing the statement that residents within the city is costly. The city tax paid by Roseburg people is lower than almost any other municipality of its size in the state. The city charter contains a provision that the levy for city purposes cannot be over 10 mills. The remainder of the 43.2 mills is made up by state and county tax and school district tax. The state and county tax combined is 29.1 mills, and the school district tax is 13.6 mills.

The state tax, outside of special funds, amounts to a levy of 6.44 mills, while the county tax, aside from special funds, is 3.62 mills. The special funds, which make up almost one-half the county and state levy, to be exact 9.97 mills, are general school library, roads and bridges; market roads, bond redemption, interest on bonds and fire patrol.

The Port of Umpqua tax levy is 7.6 mills, and the high school tuition tax levy is 1.6 mills.

With the exception of nine districts every school district in the county has a special tax, while 37 out of 75 road districts have voted special road taxes, which will total $81,029.12.

Persons residing outside of municipalities may estimate their tax levy by taking the county and state tax of 29.1 mills, and adding the special levies for school and road purposes, and multiplying their assessed valuation by this figure. Residents of cities must add their city levy leaving out the special road tax, unless one has been voted for special work within the city.

The total tax to be raised is $1,170,116.71, less $46.39, to be collected from other sources, leaving $1,170,070.32, extended upon the tax rolls.

This total is segregated as follows: total state and county tax $670,139.91, Port of Umpqua special tax $42,059.31, fire patrol tax $19,974.07, special high school tuition $21,260.48, special city tax $78,910.69, special school tax $216,720.26, special union high school tax $43,910.24, special road tax $81,029.12, surveys fees $81.92.

The tax rolls have been completed by the assessor and have been turned over to the tax collecting department which is now preparing the statements. This is the earliest that this work has been done for many years. Many statements have already been prepared and will be sent out in about three weeks. The collection of the tax will start about March 1, according to Deputy Sheriff Charles Roberts, who is in charge of the tax collecting department.

Officials said they were inclined to the belief that the punishment was administered intentionally and not accidentally as was at first believed.

LEGISLATOR INDICTED ON EXCESS FEE CHARGE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 4.—Philip Hammond, representative in the state legislature from Clackamas county, was secretly indicted by the Federal Grand Jury here yesterday, charged with accepting an excessive fee as an attorney for drawing up an application for insurance under the national war risk act. He came voluntarily today to the office of Assistant United States Attorney Stearns and furnished $1,000 bond. Arraignment was postponed until after the legislature adjourns.

Hammond was accused of accepting a fee of $100 when the law at the time the application was made provided for a fee of $3.00. The case involved was the application of Thomas and Mary J. HIRAM JOHNSON SAYS U. S. TRADED AMITY AT PARIS

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Without undertaking to discuss directly Secretary Hughes' reply regarding the Paris reparations agreement, Senator Johnson, republican, California, one of the irreconcilables, asked the senate today to consider "the grave and important questions which has been presented by what has happened in Paris."

"From that conference," he said, "two important questions come to us that some time, some day, by some senate and by some American people, must be decided."

The first and foremost question, Senator Johnson added, is presented by the possibilities that may come out of the action at Paris, while the second is the question of the power of the executive branch of the government to determine without the consent of congress what should be done with the debts of the nation.

"I am more than deeply concerned with the possibilities that may come from what was done by the United States at Paris," the California senator continued. "I recognize the position of the secretary of state. In either question, if not criticize it, I take it that when the secretary of state says that when the United States is neither legally or morally bound, he stresses his present intention."

The senator added, however, that administrations change and that he felt one ought in the congress of the United States to render what service he can in avoidance of perils that may lie ahead.

For five years, he said, he had tried the rough road against foreign entanglements.

"I shall continue," he said, "to travel the rough road of the demand that America live her own life in her own way without entanglements with Europe or European nations."

The California senator then declared that for 2-14 percent of speculative reparations, America had risked the unity and good will of European nations.

"We have traded amity and good will for perplexity, confusion and ill will and hostility," he said. "That is what we got at Paris for 2-14 percent of something that may never be paid. That is the price we got for changing America's policy, if we did change it, as European statesmen say we did."

George Chenoweth and Fred McCourt of Oakland were business visitors in Roseburg for several hours today.

Forbes and Thompson, Looters of Veterans Bureau Fund, Sentenced to Prison and Fined $10,000 Each

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
CHICAGO, Feb. 4.—Charles R. Forbes, former director of the veterans bureau, and John W. Thompson, wealthy St. Louis contractor, today were sentenced to two years imprisonment in Fort Worth penitentiary and $10,000 fines by Federal Judge George A. Carpenter.

They were found guilty by a jury January 30, of conspiracy to defraud the government in the allocation of veterans hospital contracts and received the maximum sentence.

The court granted a 30 day stay of sentence for the filing of an appeal and defense counsel indicated the case will be immediately appealed.

CAVE EXPLORER TOO WEAK TO DIG SELF OUT AND BURIAL ALIVE THREATENS HIM.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
CAVE CITY, Ky., Feb. 4.—A slide in Sand Cave this morning left Floyd Collins, 35, foot free for the first time since he was imprisoned Friday morning when a boulder wedged his legs where rescuers were unable to reach them, but Collins was left walled in behind rock which fell from the side of the cave.

This information was brought to the mouth of the cave by Roy Cooksey, a negro engaged in rescue work.

The rock barricade probably can be cleared away this afternoon, Cooksey said.

Collins called from the other side of the rock slide that his feet were free, but said he was too weak to work his way out. Cooksey declared.

John P. Collins, Cripple Creek, Colo., miner, who volunteered aid, also said he had talked to the imprisoned man, but had been unable to see him because of rock blocking the passage. John Collins, who is not related to Floyd Collins, said that it was his first trip in the cave and that he did not know the slide was a new one.

Cave May Become Tomb
The rock which now blocks the passage fell from the side of the cavern, according to Cooksey, who says it was the same disturbance which left Collins' feet free, although the cave victim still is caught in the hole where he has spent 124 hours. Whether it will be a difficult matter to release him after the new accumulated debris can be cleared away was a matter of speculation.

Progress made during the night in removing stones, cave coze and other matter from around Collins' body as far down as the calf of his leg and the work of widening and deepening the passageway leading from the entrance may have been responsible for the slide it was stated. The slide, which now bars progress, was described by Ewing Ashley, who was with the rescue party which discovered the debris, as one rock with an accumulation of earth and small stones surrounding it.

Ashley has re-entered the cave with iron hooks and rope with which it is hoped to move the rock and clear the passageway.

COUNTY COURT MEETS

The county court met today in its regular monthly session and spent practically the entire day attending to the usual accumulation of bills. Among the great list of bills was one for $450, representing bounties paid on 48 coyote scalps. This is the first payment made for over a year, the court having discontinued the bounties last year. The new bounty order, however, has resulted in many of the animals being killed, and good results are being obtained.
