on highways of the state. Among bills introduced in the senate bill 165, Maglady providing for suppression of bovine tuberculosis in Lane county.

Veto Support Assured Although the legislature won the first round last week in its battle with Governor Pierce over the appointive prerogative, the governor is scheduled to win all the remaining rounds, according to assurance to this effect given the legislature by a group of 13 senators, two more than needed to sustain his veto.

Nine of the group who voted against the governor last week in the Port of Portland commission controversy joined in assuring him last night that they would vote with him to the last ditch with reference to the fish and game commission. They explained they voted against him as to the port because they considered it a local matter.

The fish and game commissions on the other hand, they explained, are state matters and they gave the executive assurance that they would vote to sustain his veto as to any measures passed to divest him of the appointive power over either.

While the assurance of support given the governor was particularly with reference to the fish and game commissions, it is also understood that the group will vote to sustain his veto as to legislation seeking to deprive him of control over any other departments.

Talkfest Over Banks Bill In a debate of more than two hours in the hall of representatives last night arguments for and against the Banks Recession bill were presented, each side being given an hour and then Senator Bancroft being allowed 15 minutes for rebuttal. The bill proposes to grant the right of appeal to the circuit court from orders of municipal officers revoking the licenses of hotels, pool rooms, soft drink establishments and similar places.

Latitude To Bonus Takers

A house bill introduced by Bailey providing that beneficiaries under the state bonus and loan act may transfer their mortgages by which a loan from the state is secured in event they dispose of the property mortgaged to the state and acquire other property, passed the senate yesterday.

Senator Strayer's bill providing for the sale at public auction of abandoned and starving horses was passed by the senate.

House bill 169, providing that the supreme court of Oregon be authorized to lay down a set of rules for court procedure in the state passed. Carlton of Jackson county explained that such a measure would permit of devising improvements to speed up court action.

The certificate of public convenience and necessity as applied to bus and truck line operation in California has worked admirably to the satisfaction of all concerned, according to F. L. Eskward, a member of the California legislature, who appeared before members of the house roads and highways committee here last night.

Eskward is the father of present California motor transport legislation.

Senate bill 146 introduced by Senator Clark of Portland embodies the certificate of public convenience and necessity idea.

$83,000 For Soldiers Home Senate bill 140 introduced by Senator Clark of Portland embodies the certificate of public convenience and necessity idea.

$83,000 For Soldiers Home Senator Jay H. Upton, Sadie Orr Dunbar and Grace Holmes last night urged before the ways and means committee for a tuberculosis hospital in eastern Oregon. It is estimated that the cost would be $100,000 and if the state cannot afford to appropriate the money Senator Upton urged that a tax levy of one tenth of a mill for two years be assessed for the purpose.

Dr. W. D. McNary, of Pendleton, superintendent of the eastern Oregon hospital for the insane, appeared in behalf of that institution and asked the committee to increase his per capita estimate from $17 to $17.50. He also asked an appropriation for the construction of new wing at the hospital at a cost of $223,000.

WALSH DEFENDS STAND AGAINST CONFIRMATION

Demands Stone Explain Why He Kept Wheeler Case Out of Montana.

BIG CROWD LISTENS Declares Colleague Being Hounded Because of His Investigation of Dept. Justice.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—Those who have blocked confirmation of Attorney General Stone as a justice of the supreme court explained their attitude at length today from the floor of the senate.

Speaking to crowded galleries, attracted by the unusual spectacle of debate in open session on a supreme court nomination, Senator Walsh of Montana, opened the debate with a defense of his course in insisting that Mr. Stone explain to the judiciary committee the new grand jury proceedings here against Senator Wheeler.

The various newspapers, Mr. Walsh said, had castigated him for cross-questioning the attorney general regarding the Wheeler case. Referring particularly to an editorial in the Washington Post, he said that newspaper had "a particular reason for assailing me and has hired one of the best harpooners."

He insisted that politics was involved in the Wheeler case, and recalled testimony before a senate committee showing that George B. Lockwood, then secretary of the republican national committee, had taken part in the Montana proceedings.

GLIDE RESIDENTS ASK COURT TO CHANGE PATROLMEN

A delegation from the Glide road district No. 71 appeared before the county court this morning protesting against the appointment of W. W. Bogard as road patrolman in that district and urging that body to repudiate their action and appoint G. Bernardi to that position.

They stated that Bogard's petition did not contain the names of the benefited residents and assert that the supporters of Mr. De Bernardi are actually residing in the district and represent taxpayers on an assessed valuation of nearly $200,000.

Martin Kimmel, secretary of the Glide Chamber of Commerce, was the spokesman for the delegation, which numbered over twenty. He presented petitions and affidavits to substantiate the claims of the delegation in behalf of Mr. De Bernardi, stating that he is the logical man to serve as patrolman for the district.

Judge Quine inquired of the Glide residents why they had not made their fight earlier when the appointment of the patrolman was taken up, but Mr. Kimmel stated that they did not know that his petition had been presented and the appointment came as an absolute surprise.

The residents of the district voted a tax levy of 10 mills to improve their roads and Mr. Kimmel stated that they were under the impression that Mr. De Bernardi was to be appointed patrolman.

Several appeared in behalf of Mr. Bogard and declared that he was one of the hardest working patrolmen in the county.

The court informed the delegation they would take the matter under advisement.

FARMERS FAVOR TRACTOR SCHOOL

The second annual tractor school held under auspices of Wharton Bros., local International Harvester Co. dealers, convened this afternoon in the stock room of the Roseburg agency. A number of representatives of the International Harvester Co. were present to participate in a complete exposition of a gas engine and instructive talks on the general mechanism of a tractor, the vital points in the motor, care of the machine, magnets and other troubles that may occur in any motor, and explanations of the best ways of ferreting out troubles and remedying the matter. Among the experts here today are Mr. O. F. W. Meyers, general representative of the I. H. Co.; A. H. Mason, who told all about tractors in general; B. H. Hicks, plow expert who explained the best ways of getting results with the various types of tractor plows; John Alberts, of the tractor and farm equipment sales department; and George Nesbit, of the service department.

The first of the tractor schools held by these people last year was so well received that the International Harvester Co. decided to make them an annual feature hereafter.

No special make of tractor is advertised or brought forward at these schools, but farmers are urged to come and ask questions, no matter what make of machine they may have. The tractor expert and service department men are always glad to answer any questions and help farmers over any difficulty they may encounter in operating their tractors.

Operators are constantly meeting with annoyances and perplexities in the operation of tractors, and this school is calculated to assist them in solving the troubles. In putting on these schools throughout the country, considerable expense is gone to, but the International people and Wharton Bros. believe that the end justifies the outlay, as it encourages better methods and greater production, which in turn creates business for the entire community.

During the afternoon session a tractor motor was dismantled, the working parts shown, each part's relation to the efficiency of the motor explained, and farmers shown how to go about the work of "trouble shooting" and remedying defects in the functioning of the engine. Questions were invited on any phase of tractor work.

In addition to this demonstration a picture reel was shown that was very interesting, depicting rural life and showing how things may be done in this gas engine age. The attendance was excellent, although the weather conditions were unfavorable. At points in the Willamette valley, where these tractor schools have been held recently, as high as 225 have been present at afternoon sessions, and deep interest shown. The farmers are indeed appreciative of the efforts made to aid them in better meeting the demands for greater production per acre, and their presence here today indicates their willingness to cooperate with the companies and manufacturers offering suggestions that will be helpful.

GIRLS' BODIES REVEAL CRIME OF DEGENERATE

tatives of the district attorney, alienists, and Mrs. Claire Thompson, Alsa's mother, all heard the story and failed to trip her up in her recital of the alleged poisonings. Mrs. Thompson admitted she was bewildered by the girl's detailed explanation of her alleged crimes and her firm adherence to her original story.

"It's all true, Mama," said the child. "I did it because I wanted to see them die."

In the case of the twins, Mrs. Thompson said, she remembered that their sickness was a puzzle to her, and that "parts of their stomachs seemed to be coming away from the inside."

Mrs. Jess Platt, with whom Alsa last boarded, believes her "confession" and alleges the girl tried to poison her too.

Alsa was to face Judge Gates again today, this time on a formal charge of insanity, preferred by Mrs. Platt.
