PIERCE VETO ON PORT BILL IS OVERRIDDEN

legislation and the other was the election of commissioners for the Port of Portland by the legislature. For more than one third of a century—long before most of the members of this body had entered public life—in nearly every session of the Oregon legislature—the most pernicious and vicious of the disturbing elements which have worked against beneficial legislation has been the influence of the Port of Portland. Influence and power have been promised and delivered to country members of the legislature in return for their support in the selection of certain commissioners for the Port of Portland. Rural members of the Oregon legislature, to try certain knowledge, are often reluctant to offend the Portland members for fear that requests will be taken upon legislation in which they are deeply interested. Neither Coe nor Astoria, both having ports and port commissioners, nor any other port in Oregon, except Portland, have brought their troubles to the Oregon legislature. Within their own districts all of the other ports have elected their own commissioners.

Campaign of Threats.

"Honest citizens have often wondered why the Oregon legislature is called upon to decide who shall be the commissioners for the Port of Portland.

"The Port of Portland is now a branch of the state government; it is comparable to an irrigation district, a school district, or a city within the state. What consideration should be given to the irrigation district, a school district or a city continually asking the legislature for more than 30 years to name its commissioners or directors? Especially when such demand was accompanied by a threat that until complied with other needed legislation would not be passed."

Executive Power Stolen

"May I remind the members of this august body that a great political party claims it won a signal victory in the last national election by a vigorous campaign against a candidate who sought to make the legislative branch of our national government superior to the judiciary. The same identical principle is involved in the proposed legislation of senate bill number 86. It is clearly a usurpation of executive functions by the legislative branch of our state government. As governor, I refuse to be a party to such illegal seizure of executive power."

People's Will Overridden

"In 1921 the legislature enacted a law transferring to the governor the appointment of commissioners for the Port of Portland. This law was referred to the voters of the port district at a special election held on June 7, 1921 and by an overwhelming majority the people of the port district sustained that law. Bill number 86 clearly overrides and sets at naught the will of the people as expressed at the election.

"For months the public press of the state has carried bold headlines asserting the legislature would strip the executive of all the appointive and administrative powers possible. Immediately upon the assembling of the legislature a systematic and careful canvass was made of its members. Pleas were excited and made to the public press. I have been informed that the original program was to introduce a bill stripping the executive of all appointive power, and almost enough votes were pledged to enact such a law over the veto of the governor. Realizing fully the dimension and strife that would ensue, and the jeopardy resulting to legislation necessary to the welfare of the people of Oregon, I early announced the appointment of commissioners. My greatest offense seems to have been in my refusal to recognize one certain fact. For many years, this fact has been the dominant fact over every meeting of the legislature. By insidious lobbying by one method or another, it has controlled various members of each house of the legislature and preventing the passage of beneficial laws until this fact has secured its desired legislation. For the protection of the commercial fish interests of this state, this element has been largely instrumental in securing appropriations from the state treasury, within the last few years of almost $1,000,000. For years this same fact has been the dominating influence in matters pertaining to the Port of Portland. This fact, seemingly, does not desire to allow the taxpayers of the Port of Portland district to elect their own managers. Has old Oregon reached that point in her career where she must submit to the political and commercial domination of one fact? Will her people no longer consider such vicious influence and superstition?

"With pleasure I would sign a bill giving the people of the Portland district the right and privilege of electing their own commissioners. The people of Oregon outside of this district, and their members of the legislature should not be called upon to name the members of this local commission as is attempted in this bill."

House Follows Suit

The house overrode the governor's veto on the Port of Portland measure with only three dissenting votes following presentation of the bill and the chief executive's veto message just before noon today. These voting against the measure taking the appointive power from the governor and transferring it to the legislature were: Mott and Hunter, of Union and Wallawa, and Shrock.

FRANCE MOVES TO HALT BREAD PRICE (Associated Press Licensed Wire.)
PARIS, Feb. 6.—The chamber of deputies this afternoon gave the Herriot government a vote of confidence, 326 against 215, on the wheat bill introduced yesterday for the purpose of combating the increasing bread price in France. The bill provides for the obligatory declarations of all stocks of wheat and for the requisitioning of these stocks if necessary.
Premier Herriot today proposed to a plenary joint session of the chamber of deputies foreign relation and finance committees the creation of a commission composed of 14 members to study, in close co-operation with the government, a settlement of the inter-allied debt problem. This commission would report its solution to parliament.
