BABY SAVED BY RACE WITH DEATH IN BLINDING SNOWSTORM.

GLACIER PARK, Mont., Feb. 10.—One of the most remarkable exploits in the annals of the U. S. Forest Ranger Service occurred here when Glacier Park's prize-winning baby, the 9-month-old son of Forest Ranger and Mrs. Clyde C. Pauley, became desperately ill with convulsions in the Rocky Mountains of Glacier National Park. Far from a doctor the terrified parents traveled through two feet of snow in a blinding storm, with the babe upon the ranger's back, in order to reach the railroad. Here they succeeded in stopping the fast Oriental Limited train and at midnight reached Kalispell, where the race with death ended, seven hours after it had begun. The infant was rushed to the home of a local physician, where it speedily recovered.

The baby, whose name is Clyde Montana, was the prize-winner at a baby clinic in Glacier Park last summer and it is highly admired by scores of park officials and others in Flathead Valley, who are highly pleased that the spectacular race with death was won in spite of seemingly insurmountable barriers.

Ranger Pauley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Pauley of New Lexington, Ohio.

THEATRES

Antlers Theatre
Reno's divorce records, and other court versions of celebrated separation cases figure as guiding lights in a play without a divorce in it at all. This is the paradox in "Butterfly," Universal's nomination of Kathleen Norris' noted novel, which comes Tuesday and Wednesday to the Antlers theatre. For Kathleen Norris delved into all the divorce records she could find, in Reno and elsewhere, before she started the story. Her idea was to show the factors that lead to the average divorce with a possible cure.

Majestic Theatre
The combination, Wesley Darry, the celebrated juvenile actor; William Bondine, his director; and Julien Josephson, author of the stories they work into such winning pictures, seems to be an invincible one. It seems they improve with age and that every new picture is better than the one preceding it.

Liberty Theatre
One of the greatest screen characterizations of recent years was his wonderful sympathetic portrayal of "Mark Sabre" in "If Winter Comes," a great picture, and one of the outstanding successes of the past year. And that success was due, in no small measure, to Mr. Marmont's marvelous work.

Wells and Montclair
The Chronicle of America announced for the double show tomorrow and Thursday at the Liberty theatre, is an account of the thrilling fall of Quebec. This territory belonged to the French, whom the English conquered a menace to their American colonies. William Pitt, England's great war minister, whose policy was to strengthen the American colonies, said: "We must shut the French colonial empire, or France will destroy ours."

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

CYNTHIA LELAND's husband, Jim, has gone to Honolulu shortly after their marriage, following a misunderstanding with his wife, and has taken his mother with him, leaving Cynthia to face the disapproval of her sister-in-law.

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT

XXXVI—THE GREAT DISCOVERY

AS Cynthia did not go on at once, Noel's other stock, "I'll think of you to tell me that you'd kind to sell that stock to me," he said. "Shall we go somewhere to talk it over?"

"No, let's do it here," she answered, seating herself by his desk, where she had set her coffee. "I'm not going to sell it after all. Oh, Noel, why didn't you tell me the truth this afternoon? Why didn't you tell me then that you knew the stock wasn't going to be worth anything, and that you wanted to buy it back because you didn't want to lose my money? He threw out his hands helplessly. "I thought I could get it from you before you found that out. But, Cynthia, surely you'll see it is no anyway? You had no right to buy it in the first place."

"Yes I did. I bought it because I wanted to, not because you urged me to. You had nothing to do with my buying it, except that you were kind enough to help me get it without my mother-in-law's knowing. There's no reason why you should lose more money on my account."

"But I don't mind having the stock worthless except because of the loss it will mean to you. The other people who own stock are men who can well afford to lose money. Eventually that stock will pick up, because after the factories have been built next that subdivision the land will be worth a good deal. They can risk waiting. But I don't want you to."

"That's kind of you, Noel, but I can't let you do this for me. I'm going to take the risk too. Don't you see that?"

FARM REMINDERS.

Applications of land plaster in March increases the growth of Oregon vetch, says the experiment station. At the rate of 75 pounds an acre it will help out the weak stands of fall and spring planted vetch which were damaged by the cold weather last winter. When fertilizers are applied to the normal stand there will be an increase in growth but not so noticeable as when put on the weak or thinner stands.

A chick costing a little more than the average may lay a dozen or two more eggs as a pullet, according to Professor A. G. Lunn, of the Oregon station. One or two eggs in the fall will more than pay this additional cost of the chick.

Bee keepers are urged to see that the entrance to the hives are open, so that bees may come out on sunny days, says the Oregon experiment station. By lifting the back end of the hive the bee keeper is enabled to determine by the weight, the amount of stores the bees have. The spring trash may be lessened by getting equipment ready for use now.

Application of commercial fertilizer to be most efficient on this grain stands should be made in the early part of March, says the experiment station. A light application of nitrate of soda or sulfate of ammonia—50 to 75 pounds an acre—stimulates rooting of this stands of small grains in western Oregon.

Many poor hatches are caused by neglecting to test incubator thermometers each season, say poultry authorities at the Oregon station. Thermometers may be tested by placing the bulbs in water heated to 103 degrees, using a clinical or doctor's thermometer to check with. Any difference which may appear can then be taken into account in reading.

Brown rot mummies, dead twigs and spurs, and mildew twigs should be pruned and removed from orchards, as they lessen the sources of future spring infection, and supplement the regular spray program, advises the Oregon experiment station. These should be burned, for in many cases if not burned, the disease spores are formed just the same, causing much trouble later on.

The spring application of Bordeaux is not satisfactory for the clean up of anthracnose in a badly affected Oregon orchard. A new spray program by the experiment station advises Bordeaux mixture added to the July cooling moth spray in such cases. Fall spraying is no longer recommended for this disease because of weather conditions at that time of the year, which favor infection and interfere with spraying.

Size and shape of hatching eggs are characteristic of the Oregon poultryman cannot afford to ignore, says the experiment station. Texture of shell, shape, color, and size of egg may be transmitted through the offspring.

Mould on sprouting oats may be prevented by providing plenty of ventilation and sufficient heat to hasten growth, according to experiments at the Oregon station. Spraying the trays with formaldehyde each day before putting in the oats is also a help.

BRITISH ACT AGAINST UNITED STATES BACON BRANDS CANADIAN

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

LONDON, Feb. 10.—On the contention that they are being "hoodwinked" to the tune of $5,600,000 pounds of bacon a year—bacon which is cured in the United States and sent to Canada and then re-exported to England as "best quality Canadian"—the National Farmers' Union of Great Britain has started a movement here to put an end to the practice.

The union took steps here recently to call the attention of the public to disclosures made some time ago as the result of an agricultural inquiry promoted by the Ontario, Canada, legislature which brought to light the details of the trick of sending the millions of pounds of bacon to Canada, then re-exporting it to England as "best quality Canadian." It is understood here that as a consequence of the revelations the Canadian government has been requested by various organizations to create a distinctive brand which is to be placed on all exportable bacon from Canada in the future.

The Farmers' Union also took a leading hand in bringing about the embargo on American potatoes which became effective some time ago, this action having been taken, it has been explained, to prevent an influx of the Colorado beetle, better known over here as the American potato bug.

SMILES OF FORTUNE DRIVE BROTHERS INTO HIDING.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

PLEVEN, Bulgaria, Feb. 10.—Two brothers, plowing a field to plant it to grapevines, recently turned up some heavy objects that to their ignorant eyes seemed like gold. They were vases and statuettes, 15 in all. To be on the safe side the two men gathered up their finds and disappeared.

EZRA MEEKER WONT WASTE ANY TIME.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 10.—A 95-year old man has no time to waste in the opinion of Ezra Meeker, trail blazer, who in the early days crossed the plains in a covered wagon, and recently went over the same route in an airplane.

Mr. Meeker visited a newspaper office here recently and inquired for a friend. He was asked to wait for him half an hour.

"Good gracious," answered Mr. Meeker, "I'm 95 years old and I have no half hours to spare."
