HUGHES WILL TALK AT DINNER TONIGHT

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes, who retires from office on March 4, remained in New York to deliver an address at dinner tonight celebrating the 89th birthday of Elihu Root, a former head of the state department.

The dinner will be in tribute to Mr. Root's services to his country, to the cause of international justice, to the republican party and to the Union League Club of which he has twice been president. The address as well as those of other speakers, will be radioed. Mr. Hughes remarked last night at the Lincoln dinner of the national republican club that New York had been the scene of his advent into politics, and that it apparently was to see his political demise. His address was a plea for "the reasonableness of Abraham Lincoln," in which quality he said lay the "test of our safety, the measure of our capacity for progress."

Asserting the country could not ignore the organized efforts of "those who would destroy our form of government," the secretary said that the security, liberty, justice and opportunity sought by the discontented were all to be found here. Mr. Hughes deplored the lack of attention paid to public affairs, citing as an example, the navy proposals at the Washington conference. "The problem," said the secretary is not so much to inform the public as to make the information stick. This is our greatest difficulty in an age of fleeting observations."

Emphasizing the need for reasonableness in international relations, he said the United States desires to avoid entanglements and commitments so whatever contingencies may arise we may be free not to exercise any arbitrary choice, but to follow the dictates of reason and conscience, to take the action approved by an enlightened people.

WILLIE RITOLA SETS NEW PAGE

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Willie Ritola, Finnish-American distance runner, stands out today more prominently than ever as the one competitor having a chance to stop the victorious march of Paavo Nurmi.

Competing in the 10000 meter event of the 106th regiment indoor games last night, Ritola, smashed Nurmi's two mile records to bits after Nurmi himself had sped to three world indoor marks. In a race at one mile and a quarter, Ritola held Nurmi's record at 29:45.5. Ritola's record at 29:45.5. Ritola's record at 29:45.5.

Both races last night were hand-picked affairs. Both were triumphant by decisive margins. Setting a phenomenal pace over the eight lap flat track Ritola covered two miles in 9:33.45. Nurmi's record was 9:08. This mark was not only 25 seconds faster than Nurmi's record but nearly 6 seconds better than the world's outdoor standard. The Fin led his nearest rival, William Cox, Chester, who had a 75 yard handicap, to the tape by 150 yards.

Nurmi's new records, bringing his total up to 22 in 16 races and the former marks all held by himself, follow:

	New Record	Former Record
2,000 yards	4:53.2-5	5:09.4-5
2,000 meters	5:22.2-5	5:33
1-1/4 miles	9:23.4-5	9:28.1-5

One Wife on Approval

by VIOLET DARE

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED
CYNTHIA LELAND'S husband, Jim, has gone to Honolulu shortly after their marriage, following a misunderstanding with his wife, and has taken his mother with him, leaving Cynthia to face the disappointment of her sister-in-law, LOUELLA, and all her world.

CECILIE MALCOLM, leader of the town's mayor set, and accepts the friendship with her sister-in-law, NOEL GARDNER, the town's black sheep, going with them to a mid-winter house party at Cecilie's mountain cabin.

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT
XXXIX—OUTLAWED

THAT evening Cynthia established Jim. "Most important to know when you return," she said in her signed her name and left the office with a little sigh of bewilderment. When Jim did come back? It was a question that she could not drive from her thoughts, and could not answer.

VIOLET DARE
I had refused to see Noel that evening. Although she did not realize how people were talking about them, she knew that much gossip must be going the rounds, and she felt no intention of making it grow in volume.

But the next afternoon, as she was on her way to order some books, she met Gardner, and he promptly turned about and accompanied her.

"I've got good news for you," he announced. "Couldn't tell it over the phone, so I was just going to drop in and tell you. It's about that sub-division of mine. The sale of it is going through—which means that you're going to make a very nice profit on the money you've invested in stock. Now, doesn't that make you happier?"

"Yes, of course, it does," exclaimed Cynthia. Noel had been so good to her she could not help rejoicing that he was to profit instead of losing everything he had. For her own sake she could not feel particularly enthusiastic; until her other affairs were in better shape a more matter of money would mean little.

"I've got good news for you," she said, "I've got good news for you." She walked on, Noel talking enthusiastically. Cynthia listened, making no comment unless it was absolutely necessary.

He hardly saw Louella when they met her as she was leaving her bank. Cynthia nudged as she met her sister-in-law's eyes. Louella, holding her head in a tight handkerchief, hurriedly entered her car, which was waiting at the curb.

For a moment it was all that Cynthia could do to keep back the tears. She had never cared enough for her sister-in-law to care what Louella thought of her. How had it been her fault? From the first Jim's family had disapproved of her because she could not find it in her heart to adopt their standards and pleasures.

"I've given her no reason—she's condemning me for nothing at all!" Cynthia told herself bitterly. Was she to be blamed for the things that had happened to her? How had it been her fault? From the first Jim's family had disapproved of her because she could not find it in her heart to adopt their standards and pleasures.

Yet could she turn her back on the world that they represented and go on, knowing that they would always look down on her? Even the past week. Police officers said a bullet hole through the door indicated that the shot had been fired from the top of the stairs by someone in the hotel.

In the pocket of the victim was found a letter bearing the name Mr. Kikuchi and written on a letterhead from the new Hotel Foster, Portland.

though she lived on the opposite side of the world, wouldn't she be uncomfortable because she knew that they condemned her, that if ever her name was mentioned someone would say: "Oh, yes, she was that girl Jim Leland married—the wrong kind, wasn't she?" "I don't care—I just won't care," she told herself bitterly. Yet she knew that she would always care, no matter how hard she tried not to.

Noel was talking on, planning for the future that they would share. She murmured the proper words at the proper intervals, when he seemed to expect her to, but hardly knew what she was saying.

At last she turned to him abruptly. "Interrupting him in the middle of a sentence."

"I can't stand it just to wait till Jim comes back to know what's going to happen," she exclaimed. "I want to go home and write to him this minute. I'll send the letter to the steamship office in San Francisco, so that it will be delivered to him as soon as the ship gets in. Then if he doesn't want to see me at all he can write me. I've got to do something, Noel. I can't just wait—"

"I'll take you home at once," he answered. "There's a taxi—let's take it."

Looking down at her as they sat in the cab, Noel felt sorry for Cynthia that he ever had for anyone else. She was such a child, so helpless in the grasp of circumstances. Jim Leland should have known when he first looked at her that she was not the stuff of which society matrons are made. Noel told himself vehemently. She was the sort of girl who would be a companion to her husband, not a figurehead for his home. Well, everything would be changed now. She would get a divorce and become Mrs. Noel Gardner, and he'd take her abroad to live. She was going to be his wife, and he'd be her husband.

Cynthia, starting out of the window, was thinking very different thoughts. She was wondering if it wouldn't be possible for her to withdraw from the tangle into which she had been thrown by Noel, to slip away quietly, and let matters take their own course. She could not feel that she wanted to be freed from Jim and turn at once to Noel Gardner. In fact, she could not be at all sure now of her love for Noel that had seemed so overwhelming the day before.

SERIOUS LUNG TROUBLE STARTS WITH COUGHING

Physicians warn against neglecting coughs and colds and tell of the serious lung complications that may result. Leading physicians prescribe BAL-SA-ME-A for all chronic coughs. Well known Dr. Benj. F. Crawford, Anderson, Mo., writes: "I use it exclusively for my practice and my family. It is quick, sure and safe in its action like nothing else."

Toward the end of the influenza epidemic a government physician noticed that a tribe of Indians in Nevada, by the use of six from a native plant were immune from the ravages of influenza. He used these six among his white patients and then in a hospital ward. It was not possible to supply the demand.

BAL-SA-ME-A combines these pure vegetable oils in a pleasant syrup. It gives instant relief in four ways: 1. It soothes the inflamed membrane and relieves irritation. 2. It increases secretion of mucus and permits easy expectoration. 3. It stimulates the activity in throwing off body poisons and 4. It strikes at the cause, quickly checking germ action.

Do not confuse it with ordinary balsam cough syrups that are only anything except and do not go to the base of the trouble. Unlike other cough remedies BAL-SA-ME-A is free from opiates and other harmful narcotics. Pleasant to take and absolutely safe to give to children.

Buy one jar of BAL-SA-ME-A with the picture of the Indian on the package. Guaranteed to relieve any cough, no matter how bad, or give you money back. All drug stores sell BAL-SA-ME-A. In Roseburg buy it from Chapman's Drug Store.

"Broken Laws," Mrs. Wallace Reid's new photoplay dealing with Mother Love and Law Obsession, which is coming to the Liberty Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

While bearing a real message of interest to everyone "Broken Laws" is not a sermon. Rather, it is an interesting, vital, and dramatic story of two American families, and of the results of lack of respect for laws in their homes.

ANTLER'S THEATRE
Monta Bell's Metro-Goldwyn picture "The Snob," coming to the Antlers Theatre tonight, boasts of a large cast headed by five of the best known players in film-land, and supported by almost a dozen noted character players.

John Gilbert will be seen in a new and unusual role, but a most fascinating one for him, as "the snob," the central character of the story. Being a leading man, it took considerable daring on Mr. Gilbert's part to play this character, which is an untypical one, but he was glad of the opportunity to attempt something new in characterization.

Opposite Mr. Gilbert is the beautiful Norma Shearer, who plays the wife of "The Snob."

CENTRAL OREGON IN R. R. TURMOIL

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Feb. 13.—Central Oregon's projected railroad development was again thrown into a turmoil late yesterday when word was received here from Lakeview that the Nevada, California and Oregon railroad had filed with the interstate commerce commission a petition to be heard on a proposed extension north from Lakeview to the heart of the lake county pine belt. It is generally believed that N. C. & O. is owned, or at least controlled by the Southern Pacific, and this move on the part of the little narrow-gauge railroad is taken both here and in Lake county as another move on the part of the Southern Pacific to shut out the Hill lines in their plans to invade the Central Oregon territory.

The petition to the interstate commerce commission was filed by P. H. McCartney, president of the line he announced yesterday in Lakeview.

He promises that his line will expand to a standard gauge if permitted to make the extension. It is believed here that he would then extend his line to connect with the Southern Pacific line near Odell, when the Natron cut-off is completed.

HEDJAZ KINGDOM SAID IN RUINS

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
LONDON, Feb. 13.—A special article in the Morning Post this morning asserts that the Kingdom of the Hedjaz is in ruins and that the city of Jeddah, where King Ali's troops have been holding out against Ibn Saud's has fallen.

The article adds that Medina and a city or two in the north alone remained of the domain formerly ruled by ex-King Hussein, and these may pass into the hands of Ibn Saud's Wahabi warriors within a few days.

The last telegraphic advice from Hedjaz, received early this week, said Jeddah was under shell fire.
