During the course of a holiday journey through Europe, Dr. Frank Crane, the famous American writer, observed among other things the telephone systems of the various countries and, on his return, made it a point to study the Bell System, which furnished 15,000,000 with telephone service in the United States.

Dr. Crane in his story of the telephone in America states that "In one sense at least the people of America are the 'Chosen People.'" It has been given to them and to no other people to have an adequate telephone system.

Neither in rainy France, nor foggy Britain, nor Fascist Italy, nor the neat Netherlands, nor in crowded Germany, could I find decent telephone service. Ours is the only government which has had the wisdom to let the telephone alone, to let it grow up and do its beneficial work.

In its short history of the telephone in America, Dr. Crane tells many interesting things not usually known to the average citizen and includes in his story dozens of characters from other days.

Among other exhibits in the museum of the Oregon Historical Society, visitors will be especially interested to see the writing desk of Mrs. Marcus Whitman. This was brought across the plains to Oregon in 1836 by Mrs. Whitman, the first white woman to come overland into Oregon country.

The ship chest and mirror of Captain Robert Gray, discoverer of the Columbia River are also on exhibit. Captain Gray sailed into the 'Oregon or River of the West' on Friday, May 11, 1792, anchoring a short distance from what is now known as Chinook Point, opposite Astoria.

The first printing press brought to Portland from Massachusetts via Cape Horn in 1858 may also be seen there. This was sent to Dr. Rev. Thomas Fielding Scott, D. D., the first missionary Bishop in Oregon of the Protestant Episcopal church, and was the gift of the Sunday school children of that church in Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

The question of the American participation in the conference is regarded as paramount importance. Political writers emphasize this point and refer to recent statement in the American senate as hopeful auguries.

(A rider to the naval appropriation bill passed by the senate and signed by President Coolidge this week contains a request for the convening of another arms limitations conference.)

Jack Bolton, who was sentenced to one year in the penitentiary on a charge of larceny, was paroled to the juvenile court today. Bolton is one of the four boys picked up for stealing a car belonging to Tom Ritzman, Wm. Allen and Stanley Johnson, who were each given two years, were also turned over to the juvenile court, and were paroled to their parents.

Count Stefan Tisza and many other famous Hungarians were the intimate friends of the man who was supposed to play Magyar folk songs with more feeling than any other musician of his time.

At the request of Marel, the bands played only folk songs of his native land as his body was taken to the cemetery. He abandoned conventional funeral marches as much as the new syncretized music. Like most gypsy fiddlers he believed the songs which have sprung from the soil in the land of the Magyar express every emotion from ecstatic joy to sweet sorrow, and in his concert he used to carry his listeners from smiles to tears in a manner much appreciated by the Hungarians, who take keen pleasure out of sorrow.

When syncretism became the rage in Hungary and fox-trots were heard everywhere, Banda Marel laid aside his violin.

BRITISH SEEK DISARMAMENT MEET

(Associated Press Local Wire.)

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Hope by the British government that a new disarmament conference will be called before long and probably by the United States, is believed to be causing the cabinet to delay its decision regarding fresh warship construction.

The treasury is resisting an increase of nearly 10,000,000 pounds sterling in the naval estimates said to have been demanded by the admiralty.

It is stated that a cabinet committee is to examine the whole question of imperial defense before the final decision is taken. Winston Churchill, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who is credited with opposing the admiralty's demand for an increased building program, is said to be banking on the prospect of another disarmament conference to strengthen his viewpoint, which, it is stated, has the support of several of his colleagues.

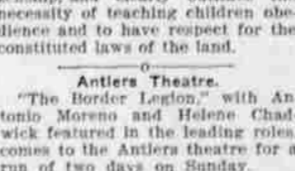

The question of the American participation in the conference is regarded as paramount importance. Political writers emphasize this point and refer to recent statement in the American senate as hopeful auguries.

Herewith is solution to Puzzle No. 98.

How to Solve Puzzle. The best way to solve this crossword puzzle is to run over the list of horizontal and vertical synonyms in search of evident or "easy" words. If horizontal, the word you are looking for must extend crosswise from the number to the first shaded stop on the right; if vertical, it must extend downward from the number to the first shaded stop below. When finished, the words should read equally well crosswise and downward.
