A BASEBALL ANNIVERSARY

This is a notable year in baseball history, as the National Baseball League is celebrating the completion of a half century of existence. Its first championship went to Chicago in 1876, and when this year's season shall have ended next fall, 50 years of fine sport will have been concluded. Previous to the organization of the National League, baseball had attained a good deal of popularity, and when the first professional team, the Cincinnati Red Stockings, toured the country in 1869, they played to more than 200,000 persons. But as time went on the game in many places was characterized by gambling and drinking and occasional "throwing" of games, and the National League was formed as the result of a desire to improve the game and develop clean and honorable sport. In its early days, baseball was a crude sort of a sport, and some of the old timers can remember when a batter was out if the ball he hit was caught on the first bounce, or if he was struck by the ball when thrown by an opposing player. Back in the earliest days of the game, a team won when it scored 21 runs, and in a historic contest at Hoboken, New Jersey, in 1846, this score was accomplished in four innings. The founders of the game could have had no conception of the wonderful popularity it has attained. The men who developed it on its present clean lines are entitled to the greatest credit. They have given a healthful outlet for sporting interest. Many young men who otherwise would have wasted their time in idle ways have been incited to develop their skill and physical fitness. There is room still for much development of baseball, since many more of the small and medium sized cities should be represented in some league, and should have more local competitions of their own.

Police officers in large cities are arresting many men who hang around railroad stations and other places, where they tell hard luck stories to friendly looking visitors and beg for the price of a night's lodging. Some of them make a good income that way, and in many cases such money goes for booze. These good natured folks should realize that when they respond to appeals from beggars, they are merely encouraging these fellows to look for hand-outs rather than do honest work. There are plenty of good charitable causes that need the large amount of money given in response to such appeals.

In former years, the young folks used to gather in their homes for simple fun. Now they think they have to go off on some lark and do things in a costly way, before they can have a good time. Perhaps if a little more money was spent on giving them good times at home, not so much would have to be spent to give them costly pleasures elsewhere. Some homes become a center for a group of young people, and the impression is spread abroad that that home is a pleasant place to go to. Such homes and their ideas keep a grip on the young folks, long after they drift away from less friendly places.

A University of Pennsylvania lecturer said the other day, that millions of young people are seeking education with the idea that if they get it, they will somehow be able to avoid work. There are many students who think that by having education, they can avoid manual labor. Some of them would do better to learn some useful trade. But probably the principal motive that brings great numbers to the colleges and technical schools, is the idea that they will earn more money by obtaining this training. That is not an ignoble motive. If they are willing to make themselves more valuable to the world by increased intelligence, they have a right to seek compensation for their effort.

A way to end the fish row at Salem has been proposed. A way to kill off some of the big fish interests that infest the lobby at the state capitol would be more appropriate.

ELECTRIC COOKING SCHOOL WAS VERY SUCCESSFUL EVENT

The electric cooking school, sponsored by the Hudson Electric Store at the Knights of Pythias hall, came to a close yesterday. The three-day demonstration was a great success and the assistants were attended daily by crowds which packed the large room almost to capacity. Miss Grace Bump, the cooking expert who was in charge of the school, is a practical cook, and the housewives of the city found her instructions to be of a great deal of real value. Yesterday the women were asked to guess the value of the current consumed during the three days, and prizes were offered for the closest guesses. The cost for three days' operation was 47 cents, and Mrs. M. E. Ritter made the most accurate guess, receiving an electric waffle iron as first prize. Mrs. C. W. Wharton was second, being given an electric toaster, and Mrs. Agnes Caylor was third, being given a sack of Flavo Flour by the Douglas Flour Mills.

INCREASE FUNDS FOR PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT

SALEM, Feb. 20.—Senate bill which would increase the fund allowance for the state prohibition department from 25 to 50 percent of moneys received from fines passed the senate late yesterday. Senators Clark, Hall and Upton voted against it. Senator Eddy had explained the bill. Senator Hare spoke in favor of it. Hare stated that the committee that investigated the department was now in full accordance with the bill. He said he first believed after the investigation that the department should be wiped out entirely. But that he was so well impressed with William S. Levens, the newly appointed prohibition commissioner that he believed the law should be tried two more years. Governor Pierce this morning signed house bill 461, authorizing the formation of mutual savings banks in Oregon. The governor's opponents admitted a defeat yesterday afternoon when the ways and means committee of the house recommended withdrawal of house bill 234 which would have transferred control of the pen from the chief executive to the state board.

PRUNE PICKINS

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—When the pussy-willows are meowing! And the daffodils are daffin'! And the little kids are laffin'! Then it's Spring—And somehow or other we like to just set and set and set and day-dream about all the fine things we're goin' to accomplish next year and if we remember right we made ourselves the same promises last Spring—Oh well-ho-hum! Thank heavens we have our health.

NAUGHTY! NAUGHTY!! (Paid Advertisement in the Glendale News.)

Glendale, Oregon, Feb. 14, 1925. To whoever it may concern: We four are glad to know that Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Spencer and Mrs. Adams think enough of us to give us the name of being the Glendale tuffies, not saying how much we think of them. The four tuffies are known as Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hewitt, Miss Nellie Houck and Mr. Roy P. Totten, all of whom live in Glendale. (Signed) Wm. L. Hewitt.

FLOWERS FOR THE LIVING CLUB

Trying to please the public is some little job itself. Just ask any caterer and he'll hoist both hands sky-high and utter a heart rending gasp. But there is one fellow in our city who gets by wonderfully with that little task of making Mister Public "feel at home." Bill Weaver, mentor of the Hotel Umpqua, has established himself in the hearts of the traveling public and when a weary knight of the road shoves his tattered grips alongside the hotel desk, grabs the register pen and scrawls his cognomen across the sheet, he has in his mind, visions of a soft mattress, pliable springs and all the other accoutrements of a good night's rest. Bill knows what is near and dear to the heart of the traveler and has provided his hostelry with the finest beds in the state. Bill is not only a good greater but a fine citizen of the city. He believes in the future of Roseburg, takes pride in showing the visitor around the city and county and spreads the fame of the Umpqua Valley far and wide by his everlasting boost proclivities. Bill, just for that, we're putting you in our Hall of Fame. May your right hand be able to put over that hearty handshake for years to come and here's hoping your optimistic predictions for Roseburg will come true a thousandfold.

If you think a family spat ain't hell when it gets into the courts just take a look at Mister and Missus Stokes.

The Oregon Aggies and the University fellers will each take various and sundry shots at their respective baskets this eve in Eugene while the gay co-eds and their sheiks of the asphalt will screech merrily, yea, merrily.

If you don't believe in placin' responsibility where it belongs just try wearing a pair of loose trousers without suspenders.

Our blonde friend, Guy Cordon, oftimes jokingly is referred to as a "takin' a trip north a few days ago in Sam'l Starmer's Black Maria. At Oakland, the sheriff put on his brakes and loaded up with gas. The dist. atty. got out the care and walked around. Shortly after they had departed somebody called up the garage and asked a woman if the sheriff and some prisoners had stopped there. The woman answered, "Nope, he only had one with him, but he was a dern tough lookin' customer."

Some galoot with a greasy vest and egg on his chin walked into our sanctum this a. m. and left a poem for the "Worst Poetry Column" and here it is: Spring has sprung a good night's rest. Put up the pump. Thus the tuffies sang. The air is raw. Here comes a thaw. When ye go out. Do up your jaw. The above free-verse was written in a fit of frenzy undoubtedly and should not be taken seriously.

"Skunk hides hadn't ought to be so dern high with so many skunks runnin' around the village."

WILL IRWIN'S WIFE WINS FIRST PRIZE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Inez Hayes Irwin, wife of Will Irwin, the writer, was awarded first prize in the sixth annual short story contest conducted by the O'Henry memorial committee. It was announced, her story "The Spring Flight," was adjudged the best published during 1924. The prize is $500. Chester Crowell was awarded second prize $250, for his story "Margaret Blake," while Frances Newman, author of "Rachel and her Children" received $100, the third prize.

Theatres

LIBERTY THEATRE. When a picture is made from a story which appeared in the "Post" you can be sure it's a good picture—one that will give you an evening of real enjoyment. That's what the Frank Woods production "Let Women Alone" will do. It will be shown at the Liberty Theatre for three days beginning Sunday, and it's one of the most entertaining comedy dramas that we have had the pleasure of offering you in a long time. It was adapted from Viola Brothers Shores' "Post" tale "On the Shelf," and it's a picture of unusual situations both strikingly dramatic and seemingly funny. Pat O'Malley and Wanda Hawley head the excellent cast.

MAJESTIC THEATRE. When it comes to driving an automobile at a seventy mile an hour clip, Agnes Ayres disdains a "double" at the wheel. Long noted as one of "Hollywood's" most skillful drivers, Miss Ayres was put to the acid test during the filming of her latest Paramount starring picture, "Tomorrow's Love," which comes to the Majestic Theatre tonight and Saturday. Changing places with the pilot of an automobile while it careens dizzily at fifty miles an hour on

Ayrshire Junior Champion Multnomah County Fair

EARLESTOCK FARM, Breeders of Registered Ayrshire Cattle Eagle Creek, Oregon, Sept. 1, 1924. Hodgson-Brewster Milling Co., Portland, Oregon. In response to your inquiry with reference to the results we are getting with your Calf Meal, we are enclosing a photograph of a calf which almost died of pneumonia. Her development for the past six months was such that she was awarded the Junior Championship at the Multnomah County Fair in June. We are now feeding all our calves Hodgson's Calf Meal, and get excellent results.

REPUBLICANS TRY TO DEFEAT TAMMANY

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—The republican county committee was on record today as being willing to support a suitable non-partisan candidate for Mayor of New York at next fall's election to prevent the continuation of the Hylan-Tammany regime. The attitude of the committee was announced at a meeting last night when it unanimously proved the report of its advisory committee denouncing Tammany Hall as acting with Mayor Hylan in swindling the people by blocking subway construction. The proof of the pudding is the eating of it. Try this old adage on one loaf of GRIMM BROS. MILK BREAD, and see what happens. Phone 133.

BISHOP SUMNER HERE

Bishop Walter T. Sumner of Portland, arrived last night and is staying at the Umpqua hotel. A reception is being given at the Episcopal Parish House this evening at 8 p. m. for Bishop Sumner, and all members and friends of the church are invited.

Another carload of American fence will arrive at Wharton Bros. in a few days. This may be the last car until fall so take advantage of the carload prices. Wharton Bros.
