WAR SAVING STAMP COUNTERFEIT PLOT UNEARTHED TODAY

(Associated Press Local Wire.) CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 20.—Four indictments charging J. V. Zottarelli, prominent Cleveland attorney; Nicola Salupo and Biago Russo, with conspiracy to defraud the government and Cleveland banks in what Assistant United States District Attorney Niles E. Evans, calls a 'half million dollar war savings stamp counterfeiting plot,' were returned today by the federal grand jury. One indictment names the three men on a conspiracy count, while the others, in addition to conspiracy charge each with uttering, publishing and passing counterfeit stamps in specific instances. Fifteen men alleged to be connected with the plot which Evans claims is nation-wide, are under indictment in Pittsburgh. Several others are being held in Chicago.

The statement alleged that the counterfeited stamps were declared to have been almost perfect copies of the 1919 series.

PULLMAN IS SAID TO BE A LUXURY

(Associated Press Local Wire.) WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The age-old American tradition which has made it necessary for parents riding on local railroad trains to buy their youngsters bananas, peanuts and all sorts, shapes and colors in confections, got into the hearing today of the house committee considering removal of the Pullman sur-charge. Speaking for western railroads, James L. Coleman of Chicago said one of the witnesses who had insisted on wiping out the sur-charge, had admitted that he had rode on parlor cars to get away from the bananas and peanuts. There he argued this traveler had a choice and selected the more luxurious way to travel and should pay for it. Users of Pullman, he said, are seeking to persuade congress to make the 'poor pay for their luxury.'

MITCHELL TELLS OF BOMBING TESTS

(Associated Press Local Wire.) WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The bombing tests which sent to the bottom the hull of the uncompleted battleship Washington off the Virginia Capes became a subject of discussion before the house aircraft committee today with Brigadier General Mitchell, the assistant army air service chief declaring the facts, 'about the test should be made public to prevent deluding our people that big ships can't be sunk.' 'In a large measure committee members were left to draw their own conclusions, after comparing this statement with the report published yesterday by a special naval board which described the Washington tests and said the explosion of big bombs against her hull only rocked the vessel to a degree comparable to the action of a salvo from her own guns. The navy report also declared the battleship remained the backbone of defense and minimized the likelihood of aircraft ever becoming a paramount factor in naval warfare.

ed on his day off and he usually appeared on the scene and aided light in lighting blazes.

According to district Attorney Stanley Myers, Buchtel took delighting blazes.

Enough blazes did not occur naturally to satisfy his appetite for action, so he set others, often turned in the alarm himself, then showed up, like any other off duty fireman would, to help fight them.

Buchtel was taken today on a round of several places where incendiary fires had occurred and admitted having started seven of them. These were in addition to fires which he had confessed to yesterday. He denied that he had been responsible for the fires which destroyed Washington high school and Temple Beth Israel.

"I don't know why I did it," he said in discussing his incendiary activities, "I don't know how many jobs I have done, but there must have been something slipped and went back with me or else why have I done this?"

A formal charge of arson is to be entered against Buchtel, the district attorney's office announced.

IN HOSPITAL WITH BADLY BROKEN LEG

While working in the timber at his place on the Curry Estate subdivision this morning, Walter Kruse, riding a load of logs and limbs from trees being felled, suffered a broken leg below the knee when one of the logs rolled from the sled. The sled load of logs was being drawn by a tractor, and when the log rolled off, one end struck the ground and the momentum of the load dragged it along, pinning Mr. Kruse underneath and snapping the bone short off. Frank Oliver, Clarence Mabey and another neighbor extracted the young man and rushed him to this city, where he was given first aid at the offices of Dr. Stewart and then taken to the hospital, where the bones were properly set. Mr. Kruse stood the trip into town remarkably well, and was still able to smile when, on a cot, friends loaded him onto a truck and started to the hospital. Mr. Kruse recently bought a tract on the Curry Estate, and was engaged in cutting wood and clearing the land when the accident happened.

TRAFFIC OFFICE BILL IS VETOED BY GOV. PIERCE

(Continued from page 1.) way fund without audit or budget. Under senate bill number 34, the secretary of state is authorized to purchase the entire equipment, emp

ment of all clerical help necessary for the traffic department. The bill is extremely broad in granting the right to purchase equipment and pay expenses. No other department of state government has such authority. All of the other departments purchase their equipment through the board of control, where proper accounting is made. If senate bill number 34 should become a law, there is nothing to prevent the purchase of new cars every few months, at any price the secretary of state may see fit to pay; no bidding, no competition, no auditing outside of his department; no check whatever—vesting in a purely auditing office executive functions with unlimited power to pay expenses and purchase equipment. No officer should be granted such power or authority. I cannot be a party to the enactment of such a law.

The kindergarten bill was killed by indefinite postponement today. By indefinite postponement the senate today killed Toose's bill providing for the equalization of taxes by property classification.
