FOX FARMER TO BE BRITISH PEER

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

SASKATOON, Sask., Feb. 20. —Captain Alfred T. Blake, a fox farmer at Wilkie, 100 miles west of here, will be Lord of Wooten Manor, England, it was learned here today if, among other things, he visits Umbalta, India, where his mother was born, and the spot in South Africa, where his father was slain in the Boer war.

These are conditions of the will of his uncle Colonel Arthur G. Blake of England deceased, which would give Captain Blake a legacy valued at $648,000.

Stipulations are that Captain Blake must remain in Canada until 1927 and must be married before 1930. Having met all other requirements he must live at Wooten Manor and encourage the Sussex fox hunt in more ways than by just belonging to it.

ROUGE LIPS ARE USED AS EVIDENCE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 21. — Rouged lips are responsible for Godela Rivera's presence in the county jail today. He was arrested on the complaint of Bertha Riley, 18 who alleged he had stolen her purse. In Rivera's justice court hearing however, there seemed to be no positive evidence that the woman's purse police found in his possession really belonged to Miss Riley. Finally she remembered that a slip of paper on which she had playfully impressed her rouged lips was tucked away in a side pocket of the purse. The court inspected the paper and the lips of the witness and then held Rivera to answer.

FIG FILCHER FUMES

TACOMA, Wash., Feb. 21. — John Steinberg was calmly eating figs in front of a fruit stand on lower Pacific Avenue yesterday afternoon when the proprietor A. G. Anthony, espied him.

"Get outa my figs" roared the fig owner.

"A fig for you.—" taunted the fig filcher frivolously and flung an unconsumed figment of fig at Anthony.

Now Steinberg is in jail, trying to figure out what it's all about.

CHALLENGE HOPE TO BILLIARD PLAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—Robert L. Cannefax, world's three cushion billard champion, has challenged Willie Hoppe, 18.2 champion and winner of a recent 600 point match against the three cushion King, to another exhibition match for a side purse of $4,000. Cannefax, in outlining his proposition, wants two matches played in one, 11 blocks of 50 points each in which the point total system and the block system would count.

Hoppe left yesterday for Chicago to prepare for the world's 18.2 balkline tournament to defend his title. The tournament opens Monday.

DISCOVER CURE FOR THE RICKETS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21. — Doctor Martha R. Jones, research associate of the department of pedestrics at the University of California medical school here, has discovered a cure for rickets —that infant bone disease which causes knotted joints, curvature of the spine soft and misshapen skulls, bowlegs, and crumbling teeth. This became known today when the record of experiments and cures performed by Dr. Jones, during the past three years, were recounted by the San Francisco Examiner.

The remedy for this widely prevalent disease, which medical authorities said exists in 70 percent of this city's younger children and 75 percent of those in New York is simple. It consists in giving hydrochloric acid in small amounts in the patients milk.

Dr. Jones said that the discovery resulted from finding that acid reduced the malady in rachitic puppies and that from this he formed the theory that the disease was caused by a preponderance of alkali in the system.

Although physicians declare that hydrochloric acid is sure cure, Dr. Jones has gone further and insisted yesterday that rickets will be entirely prevented if the diet of expectant mothers is rich in mineral salts.

One Wife on Approval

by VIOLET DARE

Author of "Luxury of Love," "The Husband Tamer," etc.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

CYNTHIA LELAND'S husband, Jim, has gone to Honolulu shortly after their marriage, following a misunderstanding with his wife, and has taken his mother with him, leaving Cynthia to face the disapproval of her sister-in-law,

LOUELLA, and all her world. Cynthia turns to

CECILE MALCOLM, leader of the town's gayest set, and accepts the friendship of NOEL GARDNER, the town's black sheep, going with them to a mid-winter house party at Cecile's mountain cabin.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XLVI—OUT OF THE PAST

THE doctor's prediction had been right. Jim was utterly wretched from the effects of his operation and the ether, and could do no more than smile at Cynthia when she entered his room at the hospital. But that smile was enough for her; it told her that whatever he had heard from home he had not turned from her.

VIOLET DARE

"Jim dear," she whispered as she knelt for a moment beside his bed and took one of his hands in hers, "I'm so sorry you're ill—and so glad to be with you again."

"Not half so glad as I am," he answered painfully.

In the corridor she found Doctor Hall waiting for her.

"As you've never been in San Francisco before, I wonder if you don't go driving with me this afternoon and see something of the city," he asked. "I'd like nothing better than to show it to you."

"But—aren't I be interfering with your duties?"

"No—I'll include them in the trip by calling on a couple of patients while we're out. How'd you like to have luncheon at the Cliff House, and then start out?"

"It sounds delightful," Cynthia replied.

She was glad to do anything that would take her mind off the situation in which she found herself. Until Jim felt better nothing could be done about straightening out affairs between them. And although her husband had been so glad to see her, she could not help wondering what his attitude would be when he recovered.

Entering her hotel, she paused at the desk for her key. It was just as she turned away that she realized that a man was standing close beside her, looking down at her.

"Noel!" she exclaimed in amazement.

"Exactly! Are you surprised that I followed you?"

"Yes, of course I am. How did you know where I'd gone?"

He laughed softly.

"Cecile told me. She 'phoned you, and your maid said that you had left for San Francisco. So I took the first train after yours. Tell me, what did Jim say?"

"Jim?"

"Yes. You came to tell him about us, of course. At first I couldn't figure out why you'd departed so suddenly, without even telling me where you were going. Then I realized that you'd decided to follow my advice and meet him here when his steamer reached port, tell him all about you and me, and arrange to divorce him."

"Oh, but I didn't," she exclaimed. "We—but we can't talk here. Come up to my sitting-room."

He followed her to the elevator. And Doctor Hall, turning to glance back at her from the door, smiled quizzically. He had not been averse to flirting with the pretty, young woman who had come into his life so unexpectedly, and finding her already provided with food for flirtation merely urged him on.

Once in her sitting-room, Cynthia turned desperately to face Noel Gardner. Memories of the past rose up like ghosts before her.

"Noel, I—I can't go on," she told him abruptly. "I don't love you, after all. Oh, I know that I thought I did, but I was mistaken. It's Jim I love. I realized that when I heard that he was ill. And all the way out here——"

"Of course you felt that way," he interrupted. Cynthia drew back, shocked by his matter of fact tone. "Of course you did," he went on. "His being ill made you sympathetic, and you forget what he really is like. But just stop a minute and remember the past, Cynthia. Remember the way Jim turned you down for his mother, and let her rule both you and him. Remember that he didn't take you to Honolulu with him—he took her. Do you want to go back into that old life, ruled by Madame Leland always in everything?

Memories of the past rose up like ghosts before her.

"And how do you know that he really wants you? How do you know that he doesn't want your marriage dissolved? Certainly he's acted as if he did, almost from the first."

Cynthia turned away with a pitiful little gesture.

Perhaps he was right. Perhaps Jim really did feel that way.

"He was glad to see me today," she answered, presently.

"Yes, for a moment. Sick people aren't normal, though—and a man who's just coming out of an anesthetic isn't himself at all. You did love me back home, Cynthia—remember that too."

"But—I'd just been ill, too—you might remember that," she told him. "I wasn't myself, any more than Jim was this morning."

But in her heart she asked if he wasn't right.

SPEEDWAY RACES HELD TOMORROW

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 21. —Twenty drivers, the biggest field ever to go to the line in a championship classic in the west were making final preparations today for the 250 mile race at Culver City speedway tomorrow that will mark the opening of the American Automobile Association's 1925 racing season.

The probable speed in tomorrow's race is the subject of much discussion, but it is the general opinion of the pilots that the record of 129.6 per hour made last December by Bennett Hill in the Culver inaugural race will stand.

Hill's record shattering average was the first time in history that 250 miles had been run at an average above 120 miles per hour and sustained the predictions of track officials that the Culver course would prove the fastest ever designed.

Frank Elliott has been added to the list of drivers, replacing Frank Lockhardt, a youthful driver who has gained recognition on local dirt tracks. Lockhart, in his first attempt at board track racing, crashed into a fence last Thursday and racing officials decided that the youth had better wait until he could get more practice.

Nurmi in company with his manager and minister of Finland has arranged to pay a visit during the day to the White House to see President Coolidge.

The world will adopt it for all time to come if she ever gets one taste of it. GRIMM BROS. MILK BREAD. Phone 133.

TO START WORK ON AUTO FREIGHT DEPOT

Negotiations have been practically completed for the construction of a reinforced concrete building on North Pine street to be used as a freight depot by the truck lines now operating into Roseburg. The building will be constructed on the lot just north of the Roseburg Dairy and Soda Works building, which is located at the corner of Oak and Pine streets. The contract for construction has been let to L. W. Metzger, and plans are now being made to move off the building now located on the lot. The negotiations are expected to be completed at once, and the building will probably start before the first of the month.

AUBREY G. SMITH TO LEAVE MEDFORD

MEDFORD, Feb. 21.—The new superintendent of the Medford schools for next year is E. H. Hedrick, former principal of the Central Point schools and for several years past the superintendent of the Heppner, Ore., schools. He is 36 years old and married.

The surprising news that a new superintendent had been elected at its meeting last night was given out by the board of education today. Mr. Hedrick will assume office next September, succeeding Aubrey G. Smith, who is in his fifth year as superintendent and whose term ends with the close of the school years next June.

As near as can be learned Superintendent Smith was not an applicant for re-election, and it is known that several weeks ago a member somewhat friendly to him advised him not to make such an application.

At present the future plans of Superintendent Smith when his term of service expires next June, are not known.
