BUCHTEL TELLS OF SETTING MORE FIRES IN PORTLAND

(Associated Press Local Wire.) PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 24.—Chester C. Buchtel, former member of the Portland fire department who confessed following his arrest last week that he had started more than 50 fires, most of them small, today added to the list of his incendiary operations for which he was sentenced to 18 months in the Oregon Reformatory. Buchtel, 34, was taken down in the Portland fire department building, where he had set fire to a small room where he found some books and papers. He set fire to the papers, placed a chair over the flame and left through the window. He reported to his company when it arrived on the scene and assisted in fighting the fire. At the German Lutheran Church, he said, he found an old broom outside the church and broke a window of the church with it. He then went inside through the broken window and found a box or bracket, filled with rubbish. He dumped out the rubbish and touched a lighted match to it. On leaving the building, he said, a man followed him down Twelfth Street. He went into a theatre to see a show. Buchtel said he entered the St. Charles Catholic Church, east Thirty-third North and Webster Streets, through an open door. Inside he found some paint cans and rubbish, to which he set fire. On leaving the building, he declared, he saw a man waiting on the sidewalk. He left on his motorcycle and did not return. At the Grace English Lutheran Church, Buchtel said, he walked along the side of the church building. A pane of glass in one of the windows fell out as he touched it, crashing loudly to the floor inside. He climbed through the window and went into a closet, where he set fire to some rubbish. He later returned and watched this fire, according to his statement. Buchtel said he entered the Kiser studio through an open door, went back to the stage and set fire to the scenic canvas and some rubbish. When he started to leave he fell off the stage, his head striking the floor. His face was injured slightly, he asserted. He left through the front door. At the Northwest Planning Mills, Buchtel went under the building and set fire to some litter. In explaining the Grange Hall fire at Milwaukie, Buchtel said he drove his motorcycle to Johnson Creek, left the machine there and walked to the building. He started a fire in a closet in the building, went back to his motorcycle and sped away.

The new confessions were announced following a trip to the scenes of the fires in company with officers of the fire bureau. Buchtel's confessions were taken down in writing today in the district attorney's office. He was questioned by C. A. Beckman, deputy district attorney. The fireman arrested told in detail how he started each fire. At Beth Israel Synagogue, one of the most spectacular of the fires confessed, Buchtel opened a window on the south side of the building and crawled into a small room where he found some books and papers. He set fire to the papers, placed a chair over the flame and left through the window. He reported to his company when it arrived on the scene and assisted in fighting the fire. At the German Lutheran Church, he said, he found an old broom outside the church and broke a window of the church with it.
