RESOURCES SHOWN

Booklet Gives Honest Facts Concerning All Communities in County—Many Ordered.

The copy for the new Douglas County booklet was turned over to the printers in the News-Review's exclusive job printing department yesterday afternoon, and the Chamber of Commerce is proud as a peacock to have its booklet as ready for publication as possible. This booklet will be the most complete thing of its kind ever published in the county, in that each town in the county has a page devoted to it, with a group of photographs of four or five views of the place and environs, together with short articles concerning every rural district in the county that has a considerable settlement and is known by some specific name. Every resource of the county is played up in a strictly honest manner, no exaggerations being allowed to creep into the copy in any way. Years ago Oregon suffered from the fault of those who in their enthusiasm were apt to overstate production of different crops, that in actual practice the settler could not equal. The whole desire of the Chamber of Commerce has been to tell the truth, that being good enough to interest the people who are looking for future home under ideal conditions as to climate and interest on their investment. Some of the noteworthy beauty spots of the county are being pictured in this new booklet, but it was impossible to cover in 45 pages anything like a complete birdseye view of the many wonderful places in the county. For one thing the Chamber of Commerce is stressing the fact that Diamond Lake belongs to Douglas County and not to every other county in the southern and central parts of Oregon. The Chamber has spent a lot of time, effort and money to make this booklet not only attractive but conclusive, and of interest to those who are looking towards the Pacific Northwest as their future home. The various towns in the county have thus far contracted for over 7,000 of these booklets, thereby showing that all the communities are satisfied that they are getting a square deal from the Roseburg Chamber of Commerce. Several of the more progressive real estate firms have also bought large quantities of the booklets to answer their individual inquiries apart from those received by the local Chamber of Commerce. It now looks as if at least 15,000 of these booklets will be printed and it is estimated that this number will last only one year, and that next year another edition will be necessary. This is due to the fact that a very large number of eastern people are looking towards the Pacific coast country at this time, and a great many inquiries are being received each week. FACTORY GIRL ONE OF THE 98

Will Answer Letters from Women asking about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lititz, Pa. — "I was very nervous and suffered for a long time with pains in my back and side. I was employed in a factory and for about three months I did no work at all. There were two women who told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I didn't believe what they told me at first, but at last I tried it. It has taken my pains away and my nervousness. I am glad to say that I am one of the 98 out of 100 that it has helped. I recommend it when I can, as I know it is good for women's troubles. I will answer any letter that any woman writes to me, I know the Vegetable Compound has helped me and hope it will help others." — Mrs. CHARLES R. STURZ, R. F. D. 2, Lititz, Pa. 98 out of every 100 women who take this medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it. They have said so in answering a questionnaire sent to them. NEVADA JUDGE CALLS FOR MODIFICATION OF 18TH AMENDMENT

RENO, Nevada, Mar. 6.—(AP)—Frank H. Norcross, former chief justice of the Nevada supreme court, author of a resolution in the state legislature calling on congress to assemble a national constitutional convention to amend the eighteenth amendment, declares that universal contempt of the law is being instilled in the minds of the country's citizenship. He believes that the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution should be substituted by a provision empowering congress to prohibit or regulate the importation, manufacture and sale of liquor, thereby placing the entire question in the hands of the national legislature.

With such a modification of the eighteenth amendment, in his opinion, congress would feel free to enact moderate liquor legislation that would command the respect and support of the country at large. Such legislation, he considers, should not permit the return of the saloon, but probably should allow the sale of liquor under some such system as that prevailing in several provinces of Canada.

Explaining his position, Judge Norcross says: "I voted for the Nevada prohibition act and supported the eighteenth amendment. But I am convinced that they have failed. As a consequence we are living under a national law and state statutes that are being openly flouted by millions of people. "Congress can never have a free hand to deal with the situation until we return to the correct principle of making the constitution the repository of congressional power and not itself a penal code. "Too radical legislation has always failed to accomplish desired results. Natural laws control penal laws, and there are fixed limits beyond which penal statutes cannot go and be generally respected. There are extremists who believe that even the moderate use of intoxicants is harmful. On the other hand, a large portion of the population believes that their moderate use is not wrong. Far a minority or even a majority of a free people to impose their particular ideas upon a large portion of the population having radically different views has never yet been successfully accomplished. Judge Norcross added that if the states themselves called a constitutional convention, the question could be removed from politics and solved. This would not be possible, he said, by any other method.

DUNN PLEASUED BY DRUNKEN DRIVER LAW

Joe Dunn, president of the state motor association, was in Roseburg yesterday making preliminary arrangements for placing an association office in this city, starting April 1. The office will be located with the Bogard Real Estate agency, adjoining the Grand Hotel, according to present plans, but as yet no one has been appointed to handle the office. Mr. Dunn states that besides the regular association business the office will dispense information desired by motorists, endeavoring to interest them in the community. Mr. Dunn is well pleased with the road legislation passed by the recent legislature, and particularly praised Senator Eddy for his work on the roads and highway committee, mentioning particularly the drunken driver law, which he characterized as one of the most important pieces of legislation during the session.

SMOKE HOUSE SOLD TO DENNIS HANKS

Dennis Hanks and his son, Cap Hanks, both of Canyonville, have purchased the Smoke House from L. L. Perdue, taking possession of their new place of business Tuesday morning. Both gentlemen are well known in this end of the county as good citizens and conservative business men. We have no doubt they will conduct the business along the same progressive lines as has been done by their predecessor during the several years he has conducted the house. No drastic changes are anticipated and the new owners expect to run the same kind of an orderly resort for men as Mr. Perdue has been running.—Glendale News.

JOHN MCGRAW HAS BEEN IN BASEBALL FOR OVER 35 YEARS

NEW YORK, Mar. 6.—Napoleon had his "Waterloo," John J. McGraw his Philadelphia and his New York and his Washington. McGraw, the Philadelphia and New York general manager of gray-haired stocky son of Truxton, New York, has been accomplished in a steady, thorough-going manner in the realm of baseball. He has climbed the heights and remained there with a persistency that defied the attacks of national league enemies for four years.

In 1905, with his remarkable lieutenant, Christy Mathewson, standing on the firing line, the man who had been dubbed "Little Napoleon," was supreme. He captured a world championship. But his forces were ragged out and struggled for six years without winning a world series. Then came the rout of Philadelphia when Connie Mack's great inner defense and his marvelous sledge buster, Bender, Plank and Coombs, riddled the ranks of the Giants and bore them back down the hill. McGraw bore to the front in 1912 and 1913 to be hurled back by the White Sox and Red Sox.

Again the faltering lines were drawn together and 1921 found them at bay in their own territory. Led by the Giant Phil Douglas, the stern Jess Barnes and Art Nehf, the world pennant became theirs in eight hard fought games. Again in 1922 they were victorious but fell before their natural enemies, the Yankees in 1923. Last year the march on Washington was stayed by the brilliant young federal Stanley "Buckey" Harris and the grand old campaigner, Walter Johnson.

Washington may have been the Waterloo for McGraw. For several years he has directed his soldiers from a position behind the lines where once he rode with them. Two more years may see his retirement for he has become old in the service and his seat in government is awaiting him. He is now vice-president of his club.

McGraw was born in 1873 and started to play baseball about the time that he learned to toddle. For 25 years he has been in the professional game, his first engagement being with Olean, N. Y., whence he progressed to Cedar Rapids. A major league scout then took the youthful "Mugsy" to Baltimore. In August 1891, McGraw saw his first fast company service and for a year he sat on the bench but in 1892 he went to second base, where Ned Hanlon quickly learned that his protégé was a good third baseman who soon became the best holder of bats that national game had seen. In 1896 with Wilbert Robinson, another who was to become a famous manager, McGraw was sold to St. Louis but aligned himself with Byron Bancroft Johnson when the American league was born. It was then that McGraw organized the Baltimore Orioles that have been made famous down through the years. Two years later the team was disorganized and the leading third baseman of baseball laid aside his spiked shoes and the late Andrew Freeman called him to the helm that he has handled expertly for nearly a quarter of a century.

ANOTHER OLD TIMER PASSES ON

"Grandpa" Kirk Gilpatrick, one of the oldest residents of this part of the county, died at a hospital in Portland, Tuesday morning. Grandpa Gilpatrick had been a resident of the Quine's creek community for a great many years, going to the home of his daughter in Riddle, when his falling health prevented his caring for himself any longer, about three months ago. He was taken to a Portland hospital the first part of last week, where it was hoped his health might be improved. He was well known by nearly everyone in this part of the county and was always a good neighbor and a true friend.

He leaves two sisters, Mrs. John Haight and Mrs. John Albro, both of this city, one son, Bert Gilpatrick of this city, and one daughter, Mrs. Geo. Branham of Riddle. Funeral services were held in Canyonville this afternoon.—Glendale News.

BOUNTY CUT DOES NOT AFFECT COUNTY

The cut of $10,000 made by the governor in the appropriation of the legislature for payment of bounties, does not affect Douglas County, according to County Clerk I. B. Riddle. This applies only to the fund appropriated by the state to match counties employing government hunters, or where the county pays the bounty on predatory animals and asks for cooperation of the state. Although Douglas County pays bounties on coyotes the state bounty fund is not concerned. Bounties on cougar, wolves, and other such animals are paid out of the game protection fund, handled by the game commission, so that the county is not interested in the state bounty fund and is not affected by the cut. Read the Classified ads in The News-Review. They mean dollars to you.
