STATE PRESS COMMENT

False Illusions
One of man's greatest drawbacks is false illusions. There are two sides to every question, but unfortunately it is not always within the province of man to be familiar with both sides. We may have all the facts on one side; but only our own conceit would permit us to answer the problem without knowing the other side also. There are illusions on both sides.

Our illusions may be filled with pleasure, or they may be filled with gloom. It is just as dangerous to be overconfident as it is to allow ourselves to sail on the sea of pessimism. We will be wise if we have an open mind until we have developed all the facts. Snap judgment is more often disastrous than profitable; and false illusions, the father of suspicion, decays the mind and ruins progress. We will be happier if we do not try to jump over a six foot wall, when perhaps if we have a little patience our false illusions will vanish and there will be no wall at all.—La Grande Observer.

NEWLY LOCATED TOMB MAY YIELD VALUABLE DATA

son of Egyptology at Harvard, who heads the joint expedition which has been conducting explorations in Egypt for 4 years, last night inquired the newly discovered tombs to some lesser personage than Kings Seneferu or Cheops, although he did not minimize the importance of the find to the knowledge of early Egyptian history.

"It is an important find, but almost certainly it is not the tomb of Seneferu," he said.

Stating that in his belief the pyramid at Dahshur was the final resting place of Seneferu while the body of Cheops was believed to have been thrown into the Nile by his slaves, Dr. Reisner said the newly discovered tomb may be that of a royal retainer. He expects more details in a few days.
