SHEPHERD MAY FACE CHARGES OF 3 MURDERS

true bills to have been voted late yesterday by the grand jury investigating the death by typhoid fever last December of William Nelson McClintock, orphan millionaire.

William D. Shepherd, his foster father and chief heir, and Charles C. Falman head of a science school who has said he gave Shepherd typhoid germs to administer to McClintock, were named in the bills it was indicated when the grand jury adjourned.

Falman's confession in which he declared that he had conspired with Shepherd to introduce typhoid germs into the young millionaire when he made a will leaving his $1,000,000 to Shepherd was considered by prosecutors to have been strengthened last night by Robert White, former student at Falman's school, who identified Shepherd as the man who attended the school in the fall of 1923.

Shepherd, said White, seemed much interested in bacteriology and laboratory equipment. His statement coincided with the time Falman said he attended the school.

The accused man has made the same denial of White's story that he has made of Falman's and of John P. Marchand, former attaché of the school who said Shepherd had written regarding courses.

"You're a liar," Shepherd shouted at White. Further corroboration of Falman's statement that $100,000 had been fixed by Shepherd and himself as his portion of the McClintock fortune if their plans were successful, added in a letter showing that Falman planned $150,000 worth of improvements for his school immediately after the rich orphan's death.

Attorney for Isabelle Pope, McClintock's fiancée who waited to marry him when he died, and who was left an $8,000 annuity in his will, said they would contend that Miss Pope is entitled to the same share of the estate as if she had actually married him under a construction of the law by which she might be regarded as his equitable widow. They were ready to ask for a continuance when the petition of Shepherd to probate the will came up in the probate court today.

Ten cousins of McClintock, who have attacked the will on the grounds that Shepherd used undue influence have announced through their attorneys that if their contention should be upheld, Miss Pope will receive the annuity for which the will provided.

Exhumation of the bodies of Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, mother of the orphan and of Dr. Oscar Olson, brother of Judge Olson who died suddenly after eating fruit brought by Shepherd, when the physician was mildly indisposed, was planned by state's authorities.

In a statement last night Judge Olson said he believed that his brother had been poisoned. He declared there had been a conspiracy for 18 years to obtain McClintock's estate beginning before the death of Mrs. McClintock. He said his investigations would continue and findings of them would be turned over to the state's attorney.

CHICAGO, March 18.—The indictment of William Darling Shepherd and Charles C. Falman for the murder of William Nelson McClintock contained 22 counts, each count placing the date of the poisoning as November 15, 1924, and the death as December 4th, 1924. The following is a summary of the counts:

1. Defendants did give and administer typhoid bacilli.
2. Defendants did give and administer a certain deadly poison, description unknown.
3. Defendants did inoculate the body with a certain noxious, deadly and mortal favor known as typhoid fever.
4. Did inoculate the body with a fever description unknown.
5. Did communicate to the body a fever known as typhoid fever.
6. Did communicate to the body a fever, description unknown.
7. Did infuse, mix and mingle with food and drink certain typhoid bacilli, a deadly poison.
8. Same described as typhoid bacilli, deadly disease germs.
9. Did give and administer acetic and typhoid bacteria, which inoculated the body with a mortal fever.
10. Did give and administer Prussic acid and typhoid bacteria which produced a mortal fever.
11. Did give and administer morphine and typhoid bacteria which produced a mortal fever.
12. Did give and administer acetic and typhoid bacteria, which produced a mortal fever.
13. Did give and administer acetic, a deadly poison.
14. Did give and administer Prussic acid, a deadly poison.
15. Did give and administer morphine, a deadly poison.
16. Did give and administer acetic, a deadly poison.
17. Short form of count charging poisoning to kill and murder.
18. Murder by means unknown.
- 19, 20 and 21 were respectively the same as counts 9, 10, 11 and 12, except that the word typhoid was substituted for mortal.

patcher and a member of this troop committee, was on the job with the troop last night doing his good turn wherever possible for the good of the troop.

Visitors who attended the meeting were O. C. Johnson, vice-president of this district, E. A. Britton, scout executive and Dr. Moon. Mr. Johnson, in addressing the scouts expressed himself as very well pleased at noting the discipline and attention shown by them and with the spirit of unselfish service manifested. Mr. Britton introduced a couple of scout games, one being the good old "warm up game of 'hot hand'." This took well and did the warming all right.

Dr. Moon gave a very instructive talk on elementary first aid. He is to teach the boys in a practical way what all scouts must know in order to make them "prepared" to give first aid treatment. Dr. Moon stated that a large percentage of accidents happen right in the home and that at least fifty percent of those are avoidable. He made it clear that in rendering first aid that it was necessary for the scout to keep his head and to remember the law of cleanliness at all times. His instruction covered treatment of cuts, burns, bruises, broken bones, fainting, nosebleed, hiccough, drowning and sickness with fever as well as sprains. Instruction of this kind is greatly appreciated by the scouts as well as the entire community in that it prepares the scout to be of great service in emergencies and thereby live out that part of his scout oath "to help other people at all times."

DIRECTORS HOLD REGULAR MEETING

The directors of the Chamber of Commerce met yesterday afternoon and transacted the routine business of the organization. The board has not yet acted upon a new secretary but has several applications under consideration. The office will remain open however, in spite of the fact that no secretary has been selected. The membership drive was reported to be progressing in excellent shape. Practically every person approached by the committee felt kindly toward the chamber and its accomplishments and was willing to aid in carrying on the future enterprises.

LEGION MEETING IS WELL ATTENDED

Umpqua Post is all set for the Days of '49 Show next week at the Armory and Trevis Dysliger, general chairman of the big event, made a detailed report. The vote promised him assistance and the many games and show features will be well managed for both nights. Leon McClintock made a report on the legion conference held recently at North Bend. Several other matters of minor importance were discussed and the meeting ended with the usual half hour of "bedtime stories."
