

TERRIFIC TORNADO FATAL TO THOUSAND

(Continued from page 1.) yesterday's tornado. More than 200 seriously injured were taken to hospitals. Two hundred and fifty buildings in the north and west sections were leveled. An early estimate by Sheriff Dorris placed the property loss at more than $2,000,000. Dawn today presented a picture of desolation that rivaled the war stricken portions of France. As far as the eye could see, the landscape was a huge irregular mass of twisted debris. It was extremely difficult at first to determine accurately details of the picture. Here a whole house has been moved from its foundation; at another place a side as been ripped off, while in other cases, what had once been homes was nothing but little piles of twisted wreckage. From the field north of the Orient mine, one of the town's chief sources of livelihood, the dark outlines of rescue workers probing the debris for bodies were visible. Here and there could be heard the pitiful cries of the injured still pinned beneath the wreckage. Some of these were extricated just before breathing ceased, while others died as they were hastened to emergency hospitals or other homes. One of the most pitiful sights was that of a mother lying terribly mangled while an infant crying justly, crawled about her inert form. At another home the body of a woman was found on the porch, a deep gash in the head, she apparently met her fate while endeavoring to flee from the storm. A miner still in his pit clothes and carrying in his arms the limp form of a five year old child walked dejectedly into the path of the rescue workers to a pile of wreckage that until yesterday constituted his home. In the debris were found his wife and another son, both terribly injured. The morgue was filled to overflowing with bodies. On one side of the structure were the bodies of eighteen babies. Practically every delivery truck in the city was converted into ambulances. Business houses were closed. Two national guard companies are in charge of the situation. The town however, has not been placed under martial law. Towns Were Prosperous CHICAGO, Mar. 19.—Most of the towns in Illinois and Indiana which suffered from the tornado of Wednesday are in prosperous areas, and are known for their farming and mining industries, fruit growing sections and dairying. Modern buildings, in most towns but recently constructed up to date mines, including the Orient mine, the recently producing pit in the world, which recently established a record for one day's tonnage were destroyed, adding thousands of dollars to an unestimated property damage. Murphysboro, the county seat of Jackson county, has a population of 10,073, and is located about 60 miles north of Cairo in the heart of a dairy farming district and fruit growing country. West Frankfort, is the center of a coal mining country, and likewise is not far from Cairo, but is closer to Herrin, the scene of much trouble in recent months. West Frankfort, however, is located in Frankling county. It has a population of 8,478. Poseyville, Ind., is a noted trading point, in Posey county, and is located on the Chicago and Eastern Illinois and Illinois central railroads. It has a population of 880. Princeton, in Gibson county, is a prominent station stop on the Chicago and Eastern Illinois and Southern railroads. Many factories and a railroad shop are located there. So prostrated were portions of Illinois and Indiana throughout which the tornado traveled in a series of erratic hops, that definite figures on loss of life and property were impossible early today, although available reports trickling in from territories in which communication virtually was cut off, added to an increasing casualty list. At dawn the reported death list stood at nearly 1,000, while approximately 3,000 were injured. At Griffin six were reported dead and many injured while at Owensville the casualties will run nearly as high.
