HEAVY DAMAGES, ANNUITY ASKED BY WILL E. PURDY

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
SALEM, Ore., April 8.—Will E. Purdy, democratic politician, evangelist, attorney, and former candidate for governor and congress, today filed an action for $19,000 damages and $1000 a year against Walter C. Winslow and S. M. Endicott, local attorneys, and Chris and Mary Lachelle. He charges he has been damaged by allegations made by Winslow that he was a forger and that as a result he has been injured in mind and body, and deprived of a salary of $1600 a year which he otherwise would receive. He does not state in his complaint how many years at $1600 a year he has been damaged.

Purdy was a delegate to the national democratic convention in 1920, a candidate for appointment to the United States shipping board and runner up in the democratic primaries for congress in the first district last year.

Purdy asserts that in the case of the Oregon Realty Exchange Investment company against Chris and Mary Lachelle, in which Winslow and Endicott were attorneys for the Lachelles, that Winslow accused Purdy of having wrongfully and maliciously committed a forgery by having written the words "also interest to June 1918" on an agreement after it had been signed by Chris Lachelle, claiming credit for $87.50 in interest.

RECRUITING OFFICER IN CITY FOR THE WEEK

Sergeant Grover C. Owen, in charge of the U. S. army recruiting office at Medford, is spending a few days in Roseburg enlisting recruits for army service. Sergeant Owen states that the army is now accepting recruits for all branches of the service except aviation and coast artillery. Musicians, however, can enlist in any branch. Recruits are given permission to select their own station, being allowed to select any of the posts in the United

ALIENATION SUIT FILED

A suit for damages in the sum of $15,000 for alienation of his wife's affections, was filed in the Circuit Court today by A. E. Gill, a former Reedport box factory employee against Vern Vaupel, Reedport druggist. Gill charges that on or about the first of November of last year, Vaupel alienated the affections of Ruth Gill, the wife of the plaintiff, and that he engaged in improper conduct with her.

D. J. Jarvis has opened a real estate office in the Rapp Bros. building where he occupies a room on the first floor, and will conduct a realty business and insurance business. George Rapp will look after the insurance end of the office, while Mr. Jarvis will give his entire attention to the sale of properties listed with him. Both of these men are well known in the city and county, and both are well acquainted with the country and conditions of this section of the state. Mr. Jarvis believes that there will be many people coming to Oregon this year, and a lot of these people will want to locate permanently.

From Prescott—
E. R. Murtae was an arrival from northern points in the state last night and was an overnight visitor and spent a short time here today. Mr. Murtae resides at Prescott, Columbia county.

Suit is Filed—

LOOTER OF OREGON TREASURY FACING NEW PROSECUTION

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
SALEM, Ore., April 8.—Clarence W. Thompson, former cashier in the state treasury office, who Monday evening pleaded guilty to larceny of $921 of public funds and was sentenced to two years in the state penitentiary and then paroled by Judge Percy B. Kelley, at a special evening session of the court, is under arrest here again today charged with the further larceny of $5,000 from the treasury upon a complaint sworn out by John H. Carson, district attorney.

Carson swore out the complaint and warrant, following the refusal of the state treasury officers to sign a criminal information making the charge.

Last evening Thompson was taken into custody on an open charge and was held under guard at a local hospital. Today he was being examined by a physician and if his condition justifies it he will be removed to the county jail. He is said to be suffering from a nervous break-down.

The district attorney has filed a request that Thompson's bond be set at $4,000. T. R. Kay, state treasurer, this morning justified his refusal to sign the information against Thompson on the ground that the defalcations took place under previous administrations, and that he did not wish to appear persecuting Thompson, whom he let out of employment when he took office. He also said that he did not have personal knowledge of the alleged embezzlement, and that any information to that effect would have to be sworn to by those who discovered the shortage.

OREGON RAIL EXTENSION CERTAIN, DEVERS THINKS

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
PORTLAND, Ore., April 9.—Confidence was expressed here by T. M. Devers, assistant attorney general for Oregon, that the interstate commerce commission within the next 60 days will issue an order requiring the railways now touching the outer limits of interior Oregon to build an east-west line from Burns to Bend; from Bend to a connection with the Southern Pacific; Eugene-Klamath Falls cut-off, and from Klamath Falls to Lakewick.

Devers had just returned from Washington, where he argued the issues raised by the Oregon public service commission to compel the railway construction desired by communities and interests now without transportation facilities.

NEW MINISTER TO CHINA

Traveler's Tale
"Traveled" said a sailor in a train to a passenger who had just crossed him. "I should think I have been all round the world over an' under it, too. There ain't many reports I don't know the inside of."
"Why, you must know a lot about geography."
"Yes, we do put in there once, but only to coal stirs. 'Tain't much of a place, what I remember of it."

"Laborers' Land" Real Meaning of Labrador

According to Scandinavian sagas, Born and Eric the Red discovered Labrador about the year 1000, a writer in the Pathfinder Magazine tells us. They named it Helluland, land of slate or baked rocks. The modern discoverer of Labrador was John Cabot, who visited it in 1497, the year he discovered Newfoundland. There are two explanations of how the region received its present name. According to tradition, a Basque whaler named La Grande settled in the bay of that name about 1530. Afterward the whole region came to be called Labrador after the name of this first visitor. But this account of the naming of Labrador is not generally accepted by historians. The more probable origin of the name is as follows: The name is of Portuguese origin and means "laborer." In 1490 Cortez took to Portugal a cargo of natives from this region. Many say they were Eskimos, but it is more probable that they were ordinary Indians. At any rate, the natives seemed so well adapted for laborers that King Emmanuel thought that he had come into possession of another slave source whence slaves might be exported to the Portuguese colonies. Hence the name "Labrador," or "Laborers' land."

Many Claim Animals Dream and See Spirits

Most people are satisfied that animals dream, and many believe that they see spirits. Here are some recorded instances, as related by the Montreal Star: A horse was to be put in a stable at a hotel while the owner had his lunch. The horse would not enter the hotel yard, so the owner asked what was the cause. The reply was: "I expect he knows we have a dead man here, taken from the river this morning."

A terrier was seen baying (as he always bays for snags), then he barked and went upstairs, then he begged again. A person who was a clairvoyant noticed this, and saw he was begging to the spirit of the lady who, when she was on earth, taught him to beg for sugar. A cat was seen running all over a bedroom, got upon the bed, etc. The cat was trying to follow a spirit form that was moving about the bedroom. At a lecture given at the Crystal Palace a live rat was put in a glass tube, and the tube was sealed up at each end. The room was in darkness and an electric light was put onto the tube. When the rat died a form the same shape as a rat came from the tube and went up in the air.

Seek Handkerchief Origin

It is difficult to assign a period and a country of origin to the handkerchief. But it seems to have been known in remote ages, and traces of it are to be found among the Egyptians. On the contrary, strange as it may seem, the Greeks appear not to have used handkerchiefs, says the Detroit News. Passing from the Greeks to the Romans, we find that the latter had something of the kind which they called "sudarium" (sweat, sweat). It was of the finest lace and was used chiefly as an ornament and as a fan during the games in the circus.

For many centuries afterward there are users of handkerchiefs, and we only find traces of them about 1550 in Italy. For many years the handkerchief was round and oval, and it was not till the time of Louis XVI that it became square.

Watching His Step

A young man of nervous appearance, yet possessing a certain air, walked into a very ornate business building, hesitated a moment, and then with the sharp motions of one who is about to take the final step, entered one of the waiting-offices.

"Is this Mr. Stevens' office?"
"Yes."
"Mr. Gerald K. Stevens?"
"Yes."
"Is he in?"
"Yes; would you like to see him?"
"No; no, thank you! But could you tell me how long he will be here?"
"Why, he should be here at least three hours. But he can see you perfectly well right now."
"Thank you just the same, but I think I shall call on his daughter."

Parcel Post Auction

When the various post offices of the country hold parcel post auction to dispose of lost or undeliverable parcels sent in the mails, the auctioneer conducts a veritable grab bag. Here is what one auction listed, after the sales were made: Speedometers, caskets, Christmas tree trimmings, chairs, thread, corsets, kiddie cars, mirrors, flags, manicure sets, house-shoe nails, gentleman's suit, auto horns, skid chains, nightgowns, musical instruments and toweles.

Emerson

If this emotional nature looked warlike, what nobility it possessed was an exquisite refinement, and a conviction of his refinement was an instinctive antipathy to ideas of indelicacy, dictation, patronage, caste and material superiority whose essential grossness repelled him and whose ultimate origin in contemptuousness—probably the one moral state except civility that chiefly he despised—contaminated—was this message to his generation.—A. C. Brewster in "American Prose Masters."

A BRIDE'S DIARY
A LOVE STORY OF TODAY, WRITTEN BY
IDA H. McGLONE GIBSON

The author herself pronounces this new serial superior in plot and action to her famous "Confessions of a Wife" series which has stood as a record breaker thus far as a circulation getter and holder

Of A Bride's Diary Mrs. Gibson Herself Says:

"The characters in my new story are vivid, dashing personalities of TRUE-to-life-types of TODAY. The conversation between them is LITERAL stuff just as I have personally heard it in many so-called upper social circles. I go around a great deal. I have in order to do my stuff and I observe conditions and customs of the time AS THEY ARE. For many of them I have profound disgust and contempt but as a writer I must take them as they ARE—not as I would like them. I am solidly opposed to the present day thought 'Express Yourself.' It is a demoralizing disintegrating mental state. I shall wallop that good in my new story.

"For 'A Bride's Diary' I have wonderful material. A corking plot—ACTION galore, CHARACTERS that sparkle and impress. This story is far better than my 'Confessions of a Wife.'" For all this I take no credit. I just happened to find the material."

EASTER SERVICES AT GLIDE
