_to a Thoughtful man

What more practical gift could you give your wife than a shorter and easier washday?

Such a gift is the Maytag Gyrafoam Washer.

Not only is it a means to shorter washdays and spick-span washings, but it's the way to greater ease and more complete satisfaction with the world that's done.

Because of its astonishing speed, old-fashioned thoroughness and unusual care, women have termed the Maytag "the Miracle of Monday." (Associated Press Leased Wire.)

TACOMA, Wash., April 15.—W. H. Paulhamus, president of the Western Washington Fair Association, died at his home in Sumner last night of pernicious anemia.

Mr. Paulhamus was elected from Pierce county to the state senate in the last session of the service being elected president of the senate. He was successful in securing the re-establishment of the Western Washington experiment station of the state college near Puyallup, which had been closed for some time, also the establishments of the soldiers' home colony at Orting.

He was a candidate for the nomination for governor on the progressive ticket in 1912, although he did not make a campaign. Last year he filed at the last moment, for the republican nomination for governor and ran third among 8 candidates.

SEATTLE, Wash., April 15.—Women and not men send the majority of letters asking for data on living conditions and scenic attractions in the Pacific Northwest and the Pacific Coast, according to Harold Crary of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce.

Some women living in the east have a hazy idea of distances on the Pacific Coast," said Crary. "One woman in Indiana wrote that she wanted to make Seattle her headquarters and arrange a week end trip to San Diego, Cal."

SPURNED ACTOR TRIES TO GAS ENTIRE HOUSEHOLD

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

LOS ANGELES, April 15.—Because, police alleged, he tried to asphyxiate a house full of people, Genaro Spagnolia, Italian motion picture character actor, was arrested here late last night on a charge of attempted murder. One of the occupants of the house was a young woman who had spurned his love, detectives were told and the pride of Spagnolia was wounded so he opened the gas jets and announced that death would be served to all present. Duncan MacCallum refused to be included and whacked the Italian over the head with a bottle. He was knocked unconscious in the ensuing struggle, but the uproar meanwhile had attracted police.

Many Roseburg Folks Are Showing How to Avoid Needless Suffering.

There's nothing more annoying than kidney weakness or inability to properly control the kidney secretions. Night and day alike, the sufferer is tormented and what with the burning and scalding, the attendant backache headache and dizziness life is indeed a burden. Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys—have brought peace and comfort to many Roseburg people. Profit by this Roseburg resident's experience:

B. F. Doss, 803 W. Lane St., says: "I had kidney complaint and severe backaches and at times could hardly straighten after stooping. My kidneys acted irregularly, too. Doan's Pills soon stopped the aches and pains and put my kidneys in good order."

SHIP BECAME AN INCUBATOR; EGG FIRM FILES SUIT

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

SAN FRANCISCO, April 15.—The Hemingway Produce Company filed suit in the federal court yesterday to receive $24,486 from the United States Shipping Board emergency fleet, the United States government and the Pacific Mail Steamship Company. The amount represents the value of 3,000 Chinese eggs which the Hemingway Company claims were stored too close to the engines of the steamship President Taft, on which they arrived from Shanghai. The result was the most of them hatched out into chickens and the rest were spoiled.

The food inspectors at Angel Island threw the spoiled eggs in the bay and held up the small chicks because there was no shipping order for them.

A bullet shattered the windshield of the automobile when the party was accosted and flying glass caused injuries to Mr. Reynolds' head and scratched Mrs. Cooper's face.

A BRIDE'S DIARY

A Love Story of Today

By Idah McGlone Gibson

CLEO'S RESOLVE. . . . . .

SYNOPSIS

Cleo Madison was entertaining a few friends. They were extremely modern in their attitude toward the conventionalities. So much so that Cleo thought it would be fun to read them quotations from her grandmother's diary. They were all thrilled at the idea.

Cleo's grandmother's diary was so quaint, so modest that these modern day girls were thunderstruck. Presently they left. Then, alone, Cleo thought of her elopment with Paul Winthrop, which was planned for the immediate future. She read another passage of the modest, old fashioned diary. It pricked her conscience. For, though engaged to Paul, she, only the night before, enjoyed the kisses of Chick Adams. Then Cleo wondered whether her grandmother had missed anything.

As I locked grandmother's diary up in my desk I said to myself: "I think I'll keep a diary, too."

I looked about and found a blank book that had been given me when I went abroad last summer. What is written here is the result.

As I opened my desk and placed my new diary beside my grandmother's, I had the feeling that the poor covers of the old volume had shriveled and shrunk from the contact. I am going to write my daily thoughts in my diary, however, and some time perhaps my little grandchild will read. I wonder whether she will laugh or cry over it.

It didn't take me long to dress for the party and, as mother and dad were out to dinner, I passed up mine. When I looked at the clock I found I would have a lot of time before Paul would come for me. I decided that while I was waiting I would begin my diary at once.

My name is Cleo Madison. There is a legend in my family that some time we had more money than we have now. My mother is always worrying about trying to get enough money to make a good appearance. She accepts all invitations from people she considers higher in the social calendar than herself and refuses those to all parties that are not mentioned in the society columns of the daily papers.

Dad is also the scion of a family that used to have money. He had hoped to be an artist, poor dear, and I think his failure has broken his heart. A great deal of money was spent on him over in Paris, but he came home to find himself pushed in to the real estate business in order to make a living.

Buddy, my brother, is younger than I and is going to a military school. That is the easiest way of getting him shoved aside at present.

This just leaves me—Cleo Madison, eighteen years old, with brown eyes and brown curly hair which makes my bob always look well whether I go to the barber every week or not. I have been called the best-looking girl in my set and, although mother has never said it to me in so many words I know I am supposed to carry my wares to the best market and marry some rich man. Gee, but I'm tired of this eternal hunt for a rich husband. And only eighteen, too.

Of course, I am sorry for mother, but she ought to have started right. She could have lived comfortably and contentedly and brought her children up properly on dad's income if she had not made her life a constant struggle to "put up a front." She goes from one bridge party to another and if she knows that I am at the house of some family that has money she is perfectly satisfied. She does not ask anything further.

I wanted to go to college, but I had to go to a finishing school. I'll tell the world that it pretty nearly finished me.

When I came home last year, mother wanted to give me a coming-out party, but I rebelled. It was too much like putting me on the block to sell to the highest bidder. I don't know whether grandmother would have thought that immodest, but to me it was not only immodest, but vile.

I expect, however, I would not have felt that way if I had not been in love with Paul. I guess I have been in love with him all my life. Neither his family nor mine like the idea of our marrying. His people are also poor social climbers and of course they, too, want Paul to marry someone who is rich.

Here's where matters stand at this writing. Paul has graduated from West Point and gotten his appointment for San Antonio. He is arriving tonight on a four week's leave of absence. His people have planned a great social time for him and they are pushing Connie Terhune to the fore, for Connie is rich beyond the dreams of avarice. I think Connie would be willing, but she knows it is useless. Connie, being interested in Paul herself, knows that he is interested in me, and she rather suspects that he is coming home to marry me.

We are going to ask our parents once more if they will let us marry, and if the two families object, as they always have before, the blame be on their heads for Paul and I have determined to marry before he returns to the Post.

Only this morning mother and I had a quarrel about the matter. Mother thought all the time that I was going to the party with Chick Adams. I had not told her that I wasn't, but I had just let her deceive herself about it.

When Connie picked me up for a ride this morning, mother heard her say: "Chick is a mess because you're not coming to my party tonight with him. He says he wishes he could knock Paul's block off."

"Paul! Paul!" interrupted mother.

I shook my head at Connie, who, I think, just between us, said this on purpose, although she wigwagged back that she was sorry.

COTTAGE GROVE MAN HELD ON CHARGE OF GIVING GIRL LIQUOR

Rodney Jesslyn, of Cottage Grove, was brought to this city yesterday evening by Deputy Sheriff Daugherty, and is being held in the county jail as a result of his failure to supply bonds fixed in the sum of $500 to guarantee his appearance in the Justice Court at Yoncalla, on Saturday, to answer to two counts placed against him. He is accused of being drunk and disorderly at the Aniauf dance last Saturday, and also of giving liquor to a young girl who was found intoxicated there. He entered a plea of not guilty and will be tried on Saturday. Being unable to furnish the bonds required by Justice Brown, he will be kept in jail until the time of the trial.

CONVENTION OF WOMEN STUDENTS OPENS AT EUGENE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

EUGENE, Ore., April 15.—The third biennial national convention of the Associated Women Students will open here this morning with registration and the first business association.

Directories, with the name of the delegate the school she represents and where she is staying on the campus, will be posted in the phone booth of each women's organization so that inquiries may be easily answered.

Forty-four schools will be represented at this conference, including most of the universities and colleges west of the Appalachian mountains, many of the institutions sending two or three girls.

This evening a dinner will be given in the Woman's Building, and will be followed by "stunt night." Sentiment for the whole week is to make the delegates feel as much at home as possible, and the welcoming committee has asked that everyone on the campus renew the Oregon "hello," especially for the guests.

Among the problems to be discussed at the business sessions of the conference will be the place of the W. S. G. A. on the campus, extra-curricular activities, vocational guidance, scholarship standards and honor systems, and round-table discussions, including the dormitoryless campus, small-college problems, pan-Hellenic questions and student indifference.

Dr. Aurelia Henry Reinhart, president of Mills College, will speak at the weekly student assembly which will be held Friday at 11 o'clock, instead of Thursday at that hour.

GOLDSTEINS EAT MATZOTHS, GREET STORK OUT OF PEN

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

SALEM, Ore., April 15.—Alex and Harry Goldstein, brothers, who are under sentence in the state penitentiary, are expected to return to the prison today after having been allowed by Governor Pierce to spend the Jewish passover week at their homes in Portland. The two were sentenced to serve two and a half years in the penitentiary for receiving stolen goods in Portland. Harry Goldstein was given a day's leave of absence about two weeks ago so that he might attend the christening of a newly arrived babe at his home in Portland.

Governor Pierce explained today that while the Goldsteins and their friends have guaranteed that the two will return to the state prison, the release for the week is on his own responsibility. The governor said the attorney-general had ruled that the state executive has authority to grant such leaves of absence and that it is in the nature of a reprieve.
