LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

OBJECTS TO PROFANE LANGUAGE

It seems to me that it is due to the students and teachers of the Roseburg High School that a few words of commendation be spoken in appreciation of the entertainments given by them in the past.

I have attended many of the plays and operettas staged in the last few years and have thoroughly enjoyed them. I have been especially impressed with the thoroughness of preparation and the spirit that the students put into the work. Many people do not realize the enormous amount of tedious drilling and rehearsing necessary to get such gratifying results. Then I have often marveled at the talent displayed by many of the actors.

If more people would patronize these home talent plays instead of buying large admissions to see some of the questionable road shows, they would get better entertainment for their money and the money would go for worthy local causes.

However, one criticism must be made which does not reflect on the student body. I do not know who was responsible for allowing the use of profanity in the Senior Class Play, Daisy, but the persons responsible are worthy of rebuke from the taxpayers and parents of the community. It was not only vulgar in the extreme, but also the breaking of the Third Commandment. I have heard many criticisms of this feature of the play.

Our young people have enough temptations in that line without being taught such language in our public schools.

WHISKEY RUNNER LOST A FORTUNE

(Associated Press United Wire.)
LONDON, April 28.—The Daily Mail which recently told Sir Broderick Hartwell's misadventure in whiskey running off the American coast, now says he has circled his supporters to the effect that he lost everything in the debacle.

Of the 41,000 cases in the shipment, the American authorities are declared to have seized more than 22,000. About 6,000 were sold and the proceeds spent on vessels, coal and other things. Thirty-two thousand cases remain available for sale, the circular says, but it is problematical whether they can be disposed of, the risk of seizures being great.

"It is obvious," Sir Broderick continues, "that a big loss of capital is inevitable and every contributor has the right to sue me for nonfulfillment of my guarantee, but I have lost everything, and any such action would only result in hampering my endeavors to save something from the wreck. And I am the only person who can do so."

MOHAIR BIDS ARE REDUCED 5c PER LB.

(Associated Press United Wire.)
PORTLAND, Ore., April 28.—Local mohair buyers have reduced their bids to country shippers approximately five cents a pound in the past week. Best offers today for long staple delivered Portland are 45 cents a pound with short staple at 40 cents and Burry at 32 cents a pound. Bids for kid hair have been reduced to 60 cents a pound delivered Portland. Weakness in the mohair market at this time is attributed to the irregular trend in wool.

Eastern wool prices continue nominal around 50 cents, greasy basis.

From Boston comes reports of some good fleece of fine quality and good long staple selling lower than 50 cents.

While no great activity is noted in Oregon wool at the moment, dealers here look for the biggest wool season in years. The associations have moved into their new location, the Pacific Wool and Warehouse at 12th and Davis, and now have accommodations for about 8,000,000 pounds of wool as compared to 2,500,000 pounds at their old location.

Many new members have joined the co-operatives, with some of the largest wool growers in the Pacific Northwest now lined up with the association and they expect to draw more wool to Portland than has come here in the past.

STATE SUPREME COURT RULING ON SOFT DRINK CASE

(Associated Press United Wire.)
SALEM, Ore., April 28.—An ordinance of the city of Portland prohibiting aliens from selling soft drinks is held unconstitutional in an opinion of the supreme court today, written by Justice Burnett in the case of M. George and others against the city. The opinion reverses Judge George Taxwell of the lower court for Multnomah county.

The term "soft drink" is defined by the ordinance to mean and include any drink of beverage except tea, coffee, milk, cocoa, chocolate and their direct substitutes.

"Aside from the five drinks mentioned," says Justice Burnett, "and the substitute 'soft drinks,' it would include anything potable from Scotch whiskey to bull run water."

"Taking the equal protection feature of the 14th amendment to the national constitution and the terms of section 31 of article 1 of our own state constitution respecting the privileges of white foreigners who reside here," says the opinion, "it is plain that in respect to persons proposing to engage in an otherwise lawful occupation, a distinction based solely on whether the applicant is or is not an alien, is not permitted in this state."

Justice Brown wrote a brief dissenting opinion.

A BRIDE'S DIARY
A Love Story of Today
By Idah McGlone Gibson

SYNOPSIS
Cleo Madison, entertaining a few friends decides to read her grandmother's diary. Grandmother's diary is so quaint, so modest, that these modern-day girls are thunderstruck. When the girls go, Cleo thinks of her elopement with Paul Winthrop planned for the immediate future. Her conscience is pricked by a passage of the modest, old-fashioned diary. For, though engaged to Paul, she, only the night before, enjoyed the kisses of Chick Adams. Both sets of parents opposed the match because at one time the families had been rich, but now were social climbers, and the parents wanted each to marry money. Connie Terhune, wealthy, Chick Adams draws Cleo aside protesting that she should have come with him. Cleo doubts her love for Paul, her grandmother's diary makes Cleo wonder. Paul protests his love for the girl. They are wed. Cleo's mother becomes hysterical. Connie again shows her jealousy.

THE FATHERS REJOICE
I looked at Connie Terhune in surprise. It didn't seem possible to me that any girl would make the confession she had just made to me. Yet I could not help but understand how very clever it was. Connie was surely the product of the 20th century. She didn't believe in hypocrisy of any kind.

I wonder what grandmother would have done could she have looked ahead and found that her granddaughter was running up against such a problem as this.

"Why are you saying all this to me, Connie?" I finally asked.

"Are you giving me fair warning that you are going to try to take my husband away from me? If that is the case will you please remember when you feel such predatory inclinations coming over you that you have given me the greatest incentive I have had yet to hang on to him himself!"

Connie grabbed my shoulders as I started for the entrance to the building and Dad's office.

She seemed to know she had gone too far. "Can't you take a joke, Cleo?" she asked. "I have always heard that a married woman quickly loses her sense of humor, but I did not think that you would lose yours so quickly as this." Con was laughing a queer little laugh and I composed my face into a smile.

"I still think I have lost my sense of humor, my dear, for I can still see that I am supposed to be envied for winning Paul Armstrong."

With that I ran to the elevator. For a wonder I found Dad in his private office smiling to himself.

"Oh, you know!" I exclaimed happily.

"Yes, I know, little girl, that I've just made a 'cracker-jack' real estate deal that will net me $5,000."

"Then mother hasn't told you yet?"

"Told me what? I've been out of the office all the afternoon."

"Well, I've got some great news for you, Dad. You have gotten rid of your daughter this afternoon."

"Gotten rid of you? What in the world are you talking about, Cleo?"

Mrs. Gustaf Lindner was in from the rural districts and a Roseburg caller for a short time this morning. She was here shopping and transacting business.

"I'm talking about something very important, and you, Mr. Madison, are speaking to Mrs. Paul Armstrong. I was married two hours ago."

Dad took it very differently from that which I expected. He didn't say a word. He just gathered me up in his arms and kissed me as he never had before and I raised my face to kiss him I felt a great big tear splash on it.

"Dad you don't mean to say you are weeping? I didn't think anyone after living with me as long as you have, would be sorry to have me leave. It ought to be a relief to you. You should know by this time I have always been an expense and a care for you and not much of a joy."

"You have always been my pride as well as my joy, little girl. Where is Paul? I want to tell him he will have to be very good to you."

"He has gone to break the good news to his father and incidentally touch him for enough money to pay for a few days at the hotel before we have to suffer a reception which his mother and my mother insist upon giving us. They are madder than hops because we got married, Dad, both of them."

"You know that they both wanted to marry money, but now that we are married they are now going to invite everybody in town to meet us. I suppose they will tell them that it was the dream of their lives that I should be Mrs. Armstrong."

"We are not going to worry then any. Paul will get his pay in a few days and then we will start out alone."

"You didn't have so much money when you and mother first married, did you?"

Dad looked at me for an instant as though he hardly knew what I was talking about, and then he sat down and wrote out a check and silently handed me one for $2,500. "Don't say anything about it to your mother," he whispered, almost to myself, not one but myself to hear.

I thanked him rapturously. Poor old Dad! That is about all the good times he has had since I have known him. Just a few moments here and there when he was being thanked for the money he was giving to mother and me.

"Is Mrs. Armstrong here?" asked a girl from the outer room.

"She is wanted on the telephone."

I called out to the telephone booth with all the dignity I could assume, and I heard a whisper here and there which told me the news of my marriage was being circulated about the office.

"Cleo, its me," said Paul with a delightful intonation and a disregard of grammar: "I am at your house and your mother wants to know what she shall pack up for you. We are going to the hotel for a few days. You can have the rest sent over tomorrow."

"Oh, she'll know the things I need. What are you doing over there? I thought you were going to your father's office."

"I did. And Cleo, Dad seems to be the only one who have pleased with our marriage."

"No, dear, my Dad is glad of it, too. He wants us to be happy. Tomorrow—Himself and Wife."

PLAN HEAVY TAX.
(Associated Press United Wire.)
BEND, Ore., April 28.—R. S. Hamilton, state representative from Deschutes county and R. W. Sawyer, county judge are preparing an initiative measure which will increase the tax on passenger buses and freight trucks even above the scale provided in house bill 413 on which a referendum is being sought.

While the scale to be provided for in the initiative measure has not as yet been decided, according to Mr. Hamilton, it will be high enough to make up for the loss to the state during the time when the law as passed by the legislature awaits the approval of the people.

The backing of all of those in the legislature who favored house bill 413 and the county judges and county commissioners, is said to be behind the proposed initiative measure.

For prompt tax service, city or country trips, Phone 44.

The golf team of the Roseburg Country club will go to Marshfield Sunday for a tournament with the team there. The local golfers are in good trim, and a lively contest with the Coos Bay club is anticipated. It is expected that about 25 local men and their families will make the trip.

TELEPHONE SUPERVISOR
Tells of the Benefit Received by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Leavenworth, Kansas.—"My work was long-distance operating and supervising, and I got into a very nervous state and was all run-down. I was easily annoyed at trifles, was extremely nervous and always had a tired feeling which made me awfully listless. Through a newspaper I learned of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and thinking it would help me I tried it. It quieted my nerves, I was less annoyed and more lively. It took away that dragging feeling and improved my health in every way. I was able to continue my work with more vigor than before and I recommend the Vegetable Compound to all young girls. I am married now and have a big baby boy and am in the best of health. If I should ever have any trouble I'll take the Vegetable Compound again, for I know it will help me as it did before."
