A BRIDE'S DIARY
A Love Story of Today
By Idah McGlone Gibson
SYNOPSIS
Cleo Madison, entertaining a few friends decides to read her grandmother's diary. Grandmother's diary is so quaint, so modest, that these modern-day girls are thunderstruck. When the girls go, Cleo thinks of her slipper and Paul Winthrop planned for the immediate future. Her conscience is pricked by a passage of the modest, old-fashioned diary. For, though engaged to Paul she, only the night before enjoyed the kisses of Chick Adams. Both sets of parents opposed the match because at one time the families had been rich, but now were social climbers and the parents wanted each to marry money. Connie Terhune, who wanted to marry Paul. At a party Chick Adams draws Cleo aside protesting that she should have come with him. Cleo doubts her love for Paul. Her grandmother's diary makes Cleo wonder. Paul protests his love for the girl. They are wed. Cleo's mother becomes hysterical. Connie again shows her jealousy. The fathers of the newlyweds rejoice.
The honeymoon begins.
LOVELY OLD WORLD.
In a little while Paul left me and sat still looking out at the stars wondering if on those other planets there were other lovers as happy as my husband and I. Before he left he had kissed me again and again as he said, "Don't think too much about what's going to happen to us in the future. Remember that you said to me the other day that we loved each other now and that is all that is necessary."
I really believe that men get more out of life than women because usually they do things without weighing consequences. They still call us the impulsive sex. This might have been true in grandmother's time, but I don't believe a girl nowadays does anything on impulse.
After Connie's confession to me today, I am sure that everything a girl does she plans. But I wonder why it was that my plans in regard to Paul went through and hers miscarried. After all I am afraid that had I been in her place, although I would not have told her, I would have been thinking the same things that she said to me.
When my husband came back I was still sitting at the window looking at the stars. He threw away his cigarette with a sigh of content.
"I never know it would be so nice to have someone waiting for me. Ah, sweetheart, it is good to be alive," he said and I agreed with him.
Paul's warm hands clasped mine. "I felt his breath on my ear as he said, 'I never knew what a fine old world it is until tonight, dearest.'"
With that he bent down, and kneeling, began to unlace my sport shoes.
Impulsively I kissed the top of his head where it was impossible for him to brush out the waves of his dark brown hair. Then I sighed with happiness. It was a lovely old world.
As my lips touched my husband's hair, my thoughts went back to what my grandmother had written on her wedding night.

juries consisted of a light cut on the back of his neck. The baby was brought to the office of Dr. Shoemaker who dressed the cuts finding them to be very light, and not dangerous.

Just so with your system—it should be given a thorough cleansing, purifying the system. HOLSTEIN'S ROCKY MOUNTAIN TEA will do the job slick and quick. It will clean your system, freshen and purify you all over—you'll enjoy living, eat better, sleep better, feel better. Chapman's Pharmacy.

RUMMAGE SALE TO BE HELD SATURDAY
Many articles have been received by the Roseburg Woman's Club for its annual rummage sale on Saturday, May 2, at the Sykes building, across from the Liberty Theatre, but the club still has use for many more, and urges everyone who has anything that might be useful for this purpose to leave them at the building on Friday, May 1. A committee will be there on that day to receive and arrange the articles. All merchants, also who have merchandise injured in some way, or any small articles they would care to donate are asked to do so. The proceeds from the rummage sale will go toward the new club building, that the Woman's club plans to erect this year.
