CONVENTION OF C. E. OPENED LAST NIGHT

The twelfth annual convention of the Christian Endeavor Society, which is being held in this city at the First Presbyterian Church, opened last night with an interesting meeting. Registration of delegates began at 7 o'clock. About twenty had been registered by 7:30 and many attended, who did not register. Ruby B. Krewson opened the meeting with a song and prayer service after which, special music was furnished by Miss Jessie Gibb and Mr. Ralph Church, Rev. H. E. Mow, pastor of the local Christian Church, gave the Key-note address on "Ye Are My Witnesses." His message emphasized the need of witnesses for the Gospel and showed that the Christian Endeavor and other such societies were responsible for the publishing of the good tidings. It was a very helpful and inspirational message.

Had Origin in Quoties

The game of horseshoes is based on quots, which is a justice resembling the ancient discus-throwing of Greece. Few traces of a game resembling quots can be found on the continent of Europe and its origin may be sought for on the borderlands of Scotland and England. There are references to it in the midlands, dating from the beginning of the fifteenth century. Asquith, in his "Xenophon" (1545), refers to the game as being chiefly by the working classes, who often used horseshoes for want of quots, a custom still prevailing in country districts.

Designed for Convenience

The position of the hands of a clock is one which has been neglected for the reason that it furnishes the greatest facility to meet the requirement for painting the longer name above the hands and the shorter word below. The minute hand has been varied in position from 17 to 25 minutes after 8. Sometimes the longer name requires to be written in a semi-circle above the hands. There have been stories connected with the death of Lincoln, that the position of the hands is commemorative of the hour of the death, but this is not true.

Riches Gained From Great Chilean Desert

Chile has many thousands of square miles of land capable of cultivation, yet its most valuable asset is a desert where the rainfall is seldom more than half an inch per annum. It does not grow a single tree, or even a blade of grass, except where patches of imported soil have been laid. This is the nitrate country, which employs 50,000 people directly and indirectly five times as many, and in which something approaching $200,000,000 is invested. There are over one hundred and seventy separate workings, each of which is the center of a busy population. Yet every ounce of food, every yard of clothing, every cog and shaft of its huge machinery, every pint of water even, has to be brought from a distance. For many miles around the country produces nothing but nitrate of soda. It is an amazing fact that the most valuable fertilizer of commerce comes from a region where nothing will grow, but it is a case of all fertilizer and no soil and no rain. In earlier days water was so valuable that it was a saying that it was cheaper to drink champagne, but now water is carried by pipes from far-off sources, some of which are 20 miles distant.

Father Picked Moral From Youngster's Joke

A prominent Los Angeles attorney told the following story in a recent address to the graduates of a grammar school: He said that his son, a high-school graduate, came home one day and asked him if he were a good mathematician. "Yes, my boy, I think I'm pretty good," the father replied. "Well, then, I have a problem I'd like to have you solve. There were three frogs sitting on a log—a bullfrog, a tree frog and a toad frog. The bullfrog decided to jump off. How many were there left?" The father smiled. "Why, that's an easy one. Two frogs were left." "And that's where you are all wrong!" exclaimed the boy, grinning. "Three frogs were left, because the bullfrog only decided to jump off. He didn't jump." Then the lawyer impressed upon his audience that a person who would win success must act promptly on his decisions.

Primitive Water Clocks

In the Malay Peninsula travelers recently found the natives using a most primitive method for measuring time, which has probably been in vogue for 5,000 years. It is called the water clock, and is simply a small dish or bottom bowl with a small hole in the bottom. When this is placed in a tub of water it gradually becomes full and sinks, which always happens in the same period of time. On the Malay junk it is a woman that is used to account the floating in a bowl of water to tell off the time away from the home port. The ancient Egyptians used the water clock. The sand glass or water glass has two uses all its own at the present time—for boiling eggs, and in the English house of commons to time the bells that ring to notify members that a division is at hand.

Not Really Profanity

It is perfectly correct when you say that "damn" got into bad company and took some of the color of "damn." But what is the origin of the word "damn" is not an intensive adjective meaning "very most," as you assume, but is an offspring of the Shakespearean word "damn, dem," which signified "terrible," originally "darkened, soiled." A cognate verb is "damned" (to soil).—New York Herald-Tribune.

After the Dough

"Are you going to propose to my sister Helen?" "Why, Willie, that's a strange question. Why do you ask?" "She said last night she'd give $10 to know, and I'd like to scoop it in."

Just Natural

"Lisa, you remind me of all the world of brown sugar." "How come, Sam?" "You are so sweet and so unrefined."—The Ohio State Journal.

Also in the Business

"I hear you specialize in filling systems." "For every line of business. What's yours?" "Manufacturing."

OBITUARY OF LAURA DAVIS

Laura Plummer Davis, daughter of Watson and Olive Plummer Davis (deceased), was born in Edenbower, February 20th, 1892, and died at her home there on May 1th, 1925, aged 33 years, 2 months, and 15 days, the immediate cause of death being heart trouble from which she had suffered acutely for the past four months. In her seventh year Laura was stricken with curvature of the spine, but, though so afflicted physically, her spirit was happy and glad and in all the years to follow she was never known to fret or worry, or to be unhappy because of her affliction. Indeed, she was known and loved for her cheerfulness and ability to see the bright and beautiful side of life, for her willingness to help others, and her merry laugh. She was strongly determined to serve—not to be served; to help—not to be a drain on others. She loved beautiful things. Flowers were an especial delight to her, and when well enough she spent much time on their cultivation and care, and was always so generous in giving them to others whom she thought they might cheer and help. Her faith and trust in God were always strong from the time when as a little girl, she made her first musical attempt by singing: "This is my story, this is my son, Praising my Saviour all the day long." until on a beautiful May morning, with a little gasping sigh, she slipped over the border land from earth into Heaven. She united with the M. E. Church in Edenbower under the pastorate of the Rev. Mr. Bristol, and when that church was closed she united with the Presbyterian Church in Roseburg. Laura is survived by her step-mother, Mrs. Watson Davis, who, since Laura's illness, grief-stricken, was "maimed" in her, and who, in the truest sense, was always a good mother, a wise counselor, and a loving friend, and by an only brother, Frank N. Davis, and his wife. These, together with her many, many friends, will most sincerely miss her and her happy, sunny ways, the memory of which will long remain with those who knew her and loved her so well. Funeral services were held at her home in Edenbower on Thursday afternoon, May 7th, 1925, at three o'clock, the Rev. Mr. Hummel officiating, following which interment will take place in the Masonic cemetery beside her father and mother. Oh, folded wings that could not fly because you broken lay, With tears, glad strokes you bear her far thru Heavenly gates today. Her voice that sings so glad and sweet, her laughter ringing clear, Pile back from happy, pain-free lands to us who linger here. —P. M. P.

EXHIBITS TO BE PRESENTED BY BOY SCOUTS

Scout Troop No. 1 is preparing an exhibition Scout Camp in the vacant lot on the corner of Oak and Ross streets. The Scouts have erected a signal tower twenty feet high. They will also inclose this lot with a fence, made without nails. Two-thirds of the space in the lot will be occupied by an exhibition of model camp fires and trail signs. They also will have a headquarters tent, first aid tent, and exhibition tent. In the latter various kinds of wood, tools, camping utensils, and hand-made furniture will be displayed. This exhibition is being prepared by Scout Troop No. 1 under the direction of Scout Master Lintott. The boys have been working steadily during the past week. This camp will be open to the public during the Carnival for inspection. Any scouts from the country or other district are invited to make their headquarters at this camp. Tents will be provided for them there.
