GRISLY SIGHT MARKS LAW'S PUNISHMENT

Pear's Requiem Whistled in Gaping Throat Mid Cascade of Blood.

FATE FACED CALMLY

Covell, Strapped to Board, Dangles in Throes of Strangulation for 27 Minutes.

SALEM, Ore., May 22.—L. W. Peare and Arthur Covell, Coos county slayers, were hanged at the penitentiary here this morning. Peare dropped through the trap at 7:59 o'clock and was dead in 11 minutes.

Covell dropped at 8:34, but the fall failed to break his neck and he strangled to death, being still alive 20 minutes after he dropped. The hangings were said by officials to be the most gruesome seen here in years.

Covell was pronounced dead 30 minutes after the trap was sprung. While Peare was in jail at Coquille he tried to commit suicide by slashing his throat. When his body shot downward through the trap door of the scaffold today the old wound broke open at the jerk of the rope.

Accompanied by Warden Darruple and guards, Peare entered the execution chamber calmly and walked up the steps of the scaffold unassisted. Asked if he had anything to say, he replied: "I haven't anything to say, except to bid you all good bye." To the hangman he said: "Don't be afraid to draw it up tight." Last night the old mountaineer said: "I have had trouble all my life. The months I have been in prison have been the calmest I have ever known. I have gained in health and flesh. I want to die and right now wouldn't trade places with any other man here."

Pear's professed belief in a supreme being. "I will soon know," he said, but he would accept no creed. Rev. C. H. Bryan, the prison chaplain, uttered a brief prayer as Peare stood with nose and black cap adjusted. There was considerable delay in getting the helpless Covell ready for his execution. He was wheeled in in the invalid chair at 8:30, removed from the chair and carried to the trap. The services of several men were necessary to strap him to the board. "I wish all well," said Covell in his calm, silky voice. "I have no ill will toward anyone. Goodbye to you all." The chaplain prayed and the trap was sprung. The noise appeared to be scientifically adjusted. But a heavy board was strapped to Covell's back, and according to the prison doctor, he didn't allow the "whip" that is necessary to break the neck. Covell died without suffering, but apparently without suffering. Half a dozen physicians attended the body.

Though he welcomed the ministrations of the prison chaplain, Covell did not accept his faith. He relied on a faith related in some way to his study of the stars and the occult sciences. Both men slept some during the night, and both ate breakfast. Yesterday and this morning both talked of the crimes for which they paid the penalty. Peare said that both he and Covell were innocent.

HYPNOTIC MURDERER STRAPPED TO BOARD STRANGLES TO DEATH

Arthur Covell, Oregon astrologer and mystic, a hopeless cripple, hanged today. Covell confessed to influencing his nephew to murder his stepmother. Arthur Covell and his nephew are shown.

AIRPLANES HOP OFF ON FLIGHT TO NORTH POLE

Amundsen and Companions Making 680-Mile Dash From Norway.

3 NATIONS COMPETE

American Expedition Will Follow Next Month, With British Rivals in Close Touch.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Scientists and laymen the world over today were speculating on the possibility that the second party of white men in history might have reached the North Pole. If so, it would be the first time the daring feat has been accomplished by airplane.

The North American Newspaper Alliance announced yesterday afternoon that Captain Roald Amundsen and five companions, in two planes, had hopped off from Kings Bay, Spitzbergen at 5:15 p. m. (1:15 a. m. eastern standard time). Previous advices to The Associated Press said the flight of 680 miles to the Pole would require at least eight hours, but that the expedition might be gone several days in case landings at or near the Pole for observation were found feasible.

The take-off was effected after months of careful preparation, assisted personally and supported financially by Lincoln Ellsworth, New York engineer and explorer, who is a member of the expedition. Despite the precautions the expedition is of the most hazardous nature. A forced landing might put the men afoot hundreds of miles from an accessible post of rescue. At least they would be far from the two "mother ships" the Farm and Hobby, which were left behind at Kings Bay. The pilots are both experienced. Previous advices said Amundsen was to ride behind Lieutenant Roeser Larsen, while Ellsworth would be navigator of the machine piloted by Lieutenant Oskar Omdal. The expedition had waited for favorable weather at Kings Bay since April 13. The Amundsen-Ellsworth pole dash started the first of three flights this summer. The all-American McMillan-navy expedition, with two planes, is scheduled to start June 17. Next month also a British expedition under Grettir Alarsson, a young ice-lander, intends to make the attempt in a "blimp" or non-rigid airship.

OSLO, Norway, May 22.—Given favorable conditions, the two seaplanes of the Amundsen-expedition, which started from Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, in an attempted flight to the North Pole, should be back at Spitzbergen in about 24 hours from the time of the take-off. The distance to the Pole, about 680 miles, was expected to require about nine hours flying time. If a favorable landing place is not found at the Pole, the journey from Kings Bay to the Pole

Feelings of a Condemned Man

SALEM, Ore., May 22.—Under the title "feelings of a condemned man," Arthur Covell, hanged here today, wrote the following: "In the first place, it is a strange sensation to write about when life seems so full of plans and hopes, and things to be accomplished. But there runs the hope that a governor will grant a reprieve at the last moment. This has been done many times and in some instances, as late as when the noose had been placed around the victim's neck. Strange to say, my next thought is one of pity for the executioner who is to hang me. Man can kill when his blood is hot, or in fear, or in self-defense, but to lead a condemned man to the scaffold, place a rope around his neck and spring the trap that hurls him into the other world, takes more nerve than I could feel capable of. So I think my last words on earth would be to say to my executioner: "Old man, I haven't any grudge against you for following out your orders and your sworn duty, and I sure feel sorry for you." On the other hand, if I were the executioner, I imagine I would have to keep my mind on the crime the condemned person was convicted of. I would have to be absolutely certain of his guilt, and then deliberately try to create a feeling of hate for him in my own mind, in order to brace my nerve to the ordeal of swinging him off. Another feeling that comes to me—what an unsolved mystery is life? Who can explain what it is from whence it comes and whither it goes? All we know from observation, shows an individual appearing and disappearing for the progressive developments of the species. But I like best to think of it as something to be accepted and made the best use of—to be lived as nobly as possible, and laid down calmly. And in entering the shadow, I would have a great curiosity satisfied to know that I was soon to solve the greatest problem I have ever known. As to life after death and what lies beyond, so closely shut are the gates between this world and the next that much as we may desire to know it is not meant for us to see. The vast majority of people believe there is a continu-

PORTLANDER WHO SET 81 FIRES ADJUDGED INSANE

PORTLAND, Ore., May 22.—Chester C. Buchtel, former city fireman, who confessed starting 81 fires while he was a member of the fire department is suffering from dementia-praecox, said a report submitted today to Judge Morrow by a commission of alienists, who have examined him since his arrest about two months ago. The commission recommended that he be placed in the asylum for life.

P. W. Diddel was among those to arrive here today and visit friends and attend the carnival.

THREE-CORNERED POLAR AIR RACE PROMISES END OF GREATEST GEOGRAPHICAL MYSTERY

Three expeditions are now preparing to explore the Arctic from the air. The photos show some of the principals in the ventures, and the types of equipment they will use. In the map are seen the routes Amundsen and MacMillan will take; the course of Alarsson is uncertain. Amundsen jumps off from Kings Bay; MacMillan from Etah, Greenland.

REMNANT OF THE CONFEDERACY RECEIVES CITY'S HOMAGE

DALLAS, Texas, May 22.—The shadow of the once great army of the confederacy passed through the streets of Dallas today throwing kisses to the populace as though saying farewell on their last journey. The masses were returned a hundred-fold by the multitude, who for three hours was transported again to the stirring days of their forefathers as the confederate veterans, gray uniforms, battle flags, rebel yells and all ended, their thirty-fifth reunion in brilliant pageantry. Only three veterans marched on foot. The others rode in autos and a few, the remnants of Forrest's cavalry, were on horseback. One of those who walked was Major John Crowley of New Orleans and he carried a banner which read "only one left of Tob Wheeler's Tigers."

SELLER OF DEER MEAT IS ARRESTED

Jap Palouse, an Indian residing above Peel was arrested yesterday by Deputy Game Warden Ed Walker and Deputy Sheriff J. G. Hodges. Palouse was arrested last winter and fined $300 for the sale of venison. He appeared by his attorney and slipped into the hills after the sentence was passed, and has evaded the officers until yesterday. They recently learned where he was located in a cabin above Peel in an isolated section and yesterday they made a trip in to his place, bringing him out late yesterday evening. He was placed in confinement in the county jail to serve out the amount of his fine, but will probably be placed on the county road crew at his own request.

ROSE SHOW THIS YEAR BEST EVER GIVEN IN CITY

Woman's Club Stages 4th Annual Flower Show in Sykes Building. PRIZES ARE AWARDED

Judges Find Selection of Winners in Various Classifications Are Very Difficult Task. The fourth annual Rose show to be conducted by the Roseburg Woman's Club, is being held, in connection with the carnival, at the Sykes building. These shows have been growing in size and interest each year, and this year the attendance has been very good, and the entries are larger than ever before.

C. E. Moyer, the Dillard nurseryman, has a wonderful display of roses, peonies, iris, and many other flowers, which have attracted a great deal of attention. This display is not in competition for any of the prizes, but is a fine showing of the flower products of this locality.

The Fern florists are placing a display today which will include flowers of all kinds. These are not in competition, but for display purposes only.

A display is also being made by Mrs. H. S. French, in addition to the flowers which has been entered in competition. Among others entering flowers were: Roses: B. W. Cooney, Bertha Robertson, Mrs. W. Hughes, Mrs. H. Worthington, Mrs. A. O. Rose, Mrs. G. W. Burt, Mrs. W. Good, Mrs. D. Alken, Mrs. Al Kent, Mrs. Pearl Stewart, Mrs. H. MOVIES TAKEN OF TODAY'S EVENTS

F. C. Heaton, cameraman for the Oregonian Screen Review, was in Roseburg today filming the school children's parade and other features of today's carnival program. Mr. Heaton also took a number of "still" which will be used in the Portland Oregonian. The cameraman was greatly enthused over the parade this morning and secured some fine movies of it. Heaton got some good "closeups" of Queen Thelma and her royal party with Mayor George Baker, of Portland, who visited here today. Mace Tip-ton, "The last of the Umoqua" and Miss Virginia Young in her Indian costume, formed the setting for one fine shot. The little misadventurer danced a waltz around the aged Indian and the movie operator declared it would be a real hit. He also secured movies of the Chiefs and Squaws and the Boy Scout camp.

Chas. Heinlein arranged a "hot dinner" for Mr. Heaton at the Hotel Umoqua at noon, and a number of the Chiefs were present.

Yesterday's Results. At Sacramento 5; Portland 9. At Salt Lake 10; Seattle 11. At Los Angeles 2; Oakland 2; (11 innings). At San Francisco 8; Vernon 6.
