ROSEBURG BOYS TO PLAY ON BOAT

OREGON AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE, Corvallis, May 30.—Harry and Harold Balf of Roseburg, sophomores in Industrial Arts, are members of the "Harmonizers" orchestra which has been selected by the Admiral Oriental line to play on its ship, S. S. President Jefferson this summer.

The orchestra is one of the eight selected from 65 applicants in various parts of the United States for the eight summer trips of the vessels of this line. The orchestra was chosen because of the versatility of the players and their ability to furnish a variety of instrumental combinations, with classic and concert as well as dance music.

The vessel leaves Seattle August 7, and will touch Yokohama, Kobe, Shanghai, Hong Kong, and Manila, returning September 26 in time for the students to register in the fall term.

MORE MONEY IS NEEDED W. C. T. U. CHILDREN'S HOME

The success and growth of the Children's Farm Home should be of interest to every citizen of Oregon, to the child lover from a humanitarian viewpoint, to the tax payer from the economic.

The Farm Home is the only non-sectarian institution in Oregon giving state wide service in the care of dependent children. Until its opening the outlook for the homeless child was dark. Oregon had provided well for the boy or girl who had lost their innocence but left the child who was only homeless to face the world alone. In Oregon today man children are practically without guardianship whose feet have not strayed from the path of right but many whom will if not cared for soon become delinquent. It is well known to students of dependent youth delinquency that when a child is thrust from one to another class the charge upon the state for the care is quite or nearly quadrupled.

The Children's Farm Home of the W. C. T. U. undertakes to give a real Christian home to dependent children to the full capacity of the cottages they are able to build with funds entrusted to them and they will build as fast as these funds permit. There are now three "homey" cottages housing eighty one happy children on the farm near Corvallis. One more cottage is under way, another will be built soon. However, a title of the children for whom application is made cannot be cared for.

Appeals were made to every school teacher, every Sunday school superintendent and every pastor in the state hoping to secure funds for an additional building. Mothers day offerings, entertainments, etc., have been on for this purpose. The response has been better than last year but not enough to meet the need.

The state appropriation for our school house will not quite equip it and the new cottages will require furnishing. We will be glad to respond to inquiries as to items and furnish estimates for such definite help as our numerous friends may wish to give.

Women clubs are serving with the W. C. T. U. in energetic support of the home while fraternities have been most generous and still we are far, far from the goal of caring for every needy child in the state. Several Wills have named the Home on their bequests and we are grateful for this but we wish more would give their money now and themselves see the happiness and safety they will be the means of bringing to God's little ones.

The Farm Home office at 506 Stock Exchange Bldg Portland is open every day all day. Every one who reads this is invited to come and ask all the questions they wish about the home and how the money is expended. Literature will be gladly furnished and personal help in raising funds freely given upon request.

All checks should be made payable to Children's Farm Home, addressed to 506 Stock Exchange Bldg Portland, Oregon.

A BRIDE'S DIARY

A Love Story of Today
By Idah McGlone Gibson

Cleo Madison, entertaining a few friends, reads from her grandmother's quaint, modest diary. The flapper friends are thunderstruck at its quaintness and suppressed desires. When the girls leave, Cleo plans her elopement with Paul Armstrong, U. S. A., a boyhood sweetheart. None the less, she indulges in a petting party with Chick Adams that evening. Chick is wealthy and Cleo's parents wish her to marry him; so does Chick. Paul's parents also social climbers who have lost their money, wish Paul to marry Connie Terhune, very rich and in love with Paul. Despite these desires of the parents and Cleo's wonderings as to whether she really does love Paul, the two are married. Almost immediately Cleo begins to learn that marriage is not altogether a path of roses. However, the parents are reconciled to the marriage and the young couple depart for the army post, to which Paul is assigned. On the train Cleo has an allegorical dream which indicates the problems she will have to face. When the newbrides arrive at the post, Paul is assigned to duty at once and leaves Cleo, who knows nothing of house-keeping, to shift for herself during the day. Johnson, a "striker" detailed to Paul's quarters, helps out enormously so Cleo, in Beldon, the commanding officer, comes to pay his respects.

A LIVELY AFTERNOON
"We must not let little brides get lonely, you know," continued Col. Beldon, and then he proceeded to make me very happy by his graciousness. In a moment I was talking and laughing with Paul's Colonel as though I had known him all my life. He told me I was the youngest and prettiest married woman at the post.

"I knew that your husband must be a good picker, because all West Point men are, but I never dreamed that he would have the luck that he has had in hiding you." I explained to him that I had been a boy and girl sweetheart and that our marriage was a runaway one, because we were very poor and both our families wished us to marry money.

"I expect the richest boy in town wanted to marry you, my dear," I blushed, and he exclaimed: "There, I know it. You do not need to say a word with that lovely color flooding your face. After dinner tonight, you know, we are going to have a dance, and of course it is my privilege as the colonel in charge of the post to have you to myself for the first dance."

I expect I had better describe Col. Beldon right here. Six feet two of upstanding manly virility, he is probably about 45 years of age, but he is invigorated to refer to his age, however, he would probably proclaim himself about 25 and I think he could get away with it. He has piercing black eyes that become almost a soft, tender brown at times and dark brown hair, which was slightly graying at the temples, are brushed back from his temples, where a mist of white adds to his distinguished good looks. He is evidently very proud of these white locks as his hair is combed to make the most of them.

His mouth is a contradiction. The lower lip is rather thin and cruel, but his upper lip is a cupid's bow. His jaw is lean, and his teeth even and surprisingly white when he shows them occasionally in the smile that turns his black eyes to brown, and warms up his rather stern face. His hands are more the hands of an artist than a soldier, long delicate fingers and palms which show great nervous energy, and he has a habit of opening and closing his hands quickly when he wishes to make himself decidedly aggressive.

He usually speaks with a slow drawl, but at times he clips his words with a rough terseness that makes one understand that his reputation as a disciplinarian is deserved. He was all softness and smiles for me that afternoon until the living room door opened and Johnson announced "Mrs. Thorndike." Instantly he was on his feet. His face, stern and set, was turned toward the door. Even I, who had seen him only a half hour before for the first time last night, in attendance at his wife's cremation, who died in Cottage Grove a few days ago, W. W. Thacker, whose home is a few miles out on London Road, found the look of his garage door filled in two and his Ford sedan stolen. The theft was reported to the authorities immediately but as yet no trace of the car has been found.

REEDSPORT TEACHERS CHOSEN FOR NEXT YEAR

Teachers for the 1925-26 school year have been elected by the officers of school districts No. 11 and 105. In the grammar school, these teachers were re-elected:

Eighth grade, Miss Edythe Johnson; 6th grade, Mrs. Marion Thiel; 5th grade, Miss Evelyn Woodward; 4th grade, Miss Hilda Crandall; 3rd grade, Miss Eva Nissen; 2nd grade, Miss Lois Chapin; 1st grade, Mrs. Catherine Jones.

New teachers will be Miss Alice Walker of Reedsport, seventh grade; Mrs. Eva M. Walte, Roseburg, "Opportunity Room"; a new department here. W. M. Kent will be superintendent of the grade school.

CAR STOLEN FROM GARAGE

COTTAGE GROVE, Ore., May 31.—On his return from Portland last night, in attendance at his wife's cremation, who died in Cottage Grove a few days ago, W. W. Thacker, whose home is a few miles out on London Road, found the lock of his garage door filled in two and his Ford sedan stolen. The theft was reported to the authorities immediately but as yet no trace of the car has been found.
