ROSEBURG, OREGON, FRIDAY, JUNE 5, 1925.

THE PERSONALITY OF A CITY

A Washington correspondent reports that at a recent White House reception, a woman in the line, after shaking hands with the president, remarked with some enthusiasm, "I'm from Boston." The president replied, "You'll never get over it." As "Cal" is intimately familiar with the famous city of baked beans, there was truth as well as pleasantry in his remark.

STRIKE GROWS IN CHINA; HAND OF SOVIET SEEN

student ranks was striving to effect another conflagration by urging the constabulary in Chinese territory to become an armed force supporting the anti-foreign movement.

Foreign forces patrolling Shanghai streets, flanked by boarded store fronts today were confronted with posters reading:— "Assassinate foreign police."

Among the documents seized by police in raids on Shanghai University in Berlin to a professor at the college saying "It has been decided that students of three countries—China, Germany and Russia—will start an organization which will unite the nations of the world in the cause of the revolutionary party."

The letter was signed "Yu-Han-kao-Ahu Kaat, street 52, Berlin," and was mailed from Charlottenburg, April 5, and received here on May 15 by Professor Kiang Sz-sun.

The letter reveals efforts of Chinese in other countries to make the Kuomintang, the Chinese party which is charged with responsibility for inciting the present trouble, an international organization with branches in Germany, Russia and France.

GENEVA, June 5.—Workers delegates to the international labor conference, meeting separately from the conference today voted to send a telegram of sympathy to Chinese workers.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Information has reached The Associated Press pointing to direct Russian Soviet participation in an impending armed struggle for the control of all China.

The preparations already made contemplate a civil war of major proportions, centering in the northern province, and dwarfing in importance the present sporadic disturbances in the south.

The ultimate political consequences can only be conjectured. The area of probable operations is the sphere of greatest interest to Japanese and the aid of the Soviet is being thrown behind the standards of Feng-Yu-Hsiang, leader of the faction least friendly to Tokyo.

Already considerable quantities of arms and ammunitions have been sent across the frontier from Russia, and Russia army instructors have gone into Inner Mongolia to cooperate with the officers of Feng.

In some places, steps have been taken to mobilize railroad equipment in Mongolia for Feng's troops while at other northern points railroad facilities have become a prize for active but inconclusive maneuvering.

The Russian consul at Peking, Karakhan, has given open encouragement to the forces to proceed in a manner which has incurred the strong displeasure of the envoys of the great world powers.

Russian propaganda has been increasing in volume not only in the north but also at canton and other centers in the south. Information of these developments have been placed in the hands of the American government which views the situation with an absorbing interest not unmixt with anxiety.

The precise relation of the current southern outbreaks to the threats of an overshadowing war in the north is not yet entirely clear, but it would appear that Soviet influence in the south while of admitted potentiality, is largely character to divert the foreigner of his long standing extraterritorial rights.

The movement, which recently has led to serious encroachments at Shanghai, fits in naturally with the aims of the Soviet.

At Canton the recent troubles appear to be rooted in factional quarrels among those South China leaders who formerly were united under the banner of the late Sun-Yat-Sen, but there have been open signs of antagonism between Soviet sympathizers and one faction at Canton has charged that the party now in the saddle there is receiving financial support from Moscow.

There is little doubt among those informed of all the circumstances that once the situation in the north comes to fruition, a Soviet and anti-Soviet cleavage will traverse China like an earthquake from north to south.

CANTON, China, June 5.—Civil administrators quartered behind prepared fortifications today expected a serious clash momentarily menacingly for military demoralization.

Inhabitants are fleeing to Hong Kong.

Marital law is proclaimed here.

The civil administration anticipates a treacherous military attack.

The merchants, who have suffered considerably are demanding action against the military establishments with the ultimate idea that a peaceful civil government under the Kuomintang party may be placed in power.

fostering communistic principles, asserting that socialism and democracy is the ultimate aim of the organization in government.
