TWILIGHT LEAGUE TEAMS PLAY CLOSE GAME; SCORE 9-8

Baseball fans were treated to a real game of baseball last night when the Odd Fellows defeated the Baptist-De Molay combination by a score of 9 to 8. In spite of the high score the game was very interesting, and the crowd which attended greatly enjoyed the contest. The combination team started the game off with a snap, putting two runs across in the first inning, on two hits and two errors. The Odd Fellows annexed a run in the second inning, and in the third the Baptists secured two more, while in their half of the same canto the Odd Fellows added two, making the score 4 to 3. In the fifth the Baptist-De Molay pushed four runs across the plate on a flock of hits, and apparently clinched the game, but in the last half of the sixth and final inning, the Odd Fellows batted Mathews out of the box, and crossed the plate with five runs, winning the game 9 to 8.

The pitchers on both teams were hit hard, and substitute twirlers were necessary. Errors made in critical times were largely responsible for the high scores, however.

DAWES MAY CARRY SENATE FIGHT TO WESTERN CITIES

(Associated Press Lead Wire)

CHICAGO, June 12.—Vice-President Charles G. Dawes is considering a far-western tour, concluding his Denver speech on July 24, in support of his advocacy of revisions of the senate rules.

Should he decide to proceed West from Denver he probably would speak at Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles. A mid-western series of addresses is

A poem entitled "The Creation Story," by Alden Harness of Roseburg appeared in the May issue of the Reality Magazine. The substance of the poem is something like what many science teachers would ask their pupils if the pupils were to first ask them if they believed the story of the six day creation of the universe was literally true. Owing to the Tennessee evolution trial, which begins on July 10th at Dayton, the poem is timely. The verses, which were written with the belief that they would be interesting to the general public, are as follows:

The Creation-Story.
Why believe the glowing sun,
Restowing warmth and light?
Why believe the moon and stars
The skies reveal at night?
Why believe that unseen worlds
No telescope can trace,
And that at the planets' stream
Throughout unending space
Were created in six days,
Six thousand years ago;
When the facts, which prove us
wrong,
In greater numbers grow,
And by science we are led
To truths which to us show
That controlled by Cosmic Force,
Through can that have flown,
In accord with nature's laws
The universe has grown.

Why believe the childish tale
About this earth of ours,
With a garden in it filled
With fragrant trees and flowers;

Where from dust the rain had soaked
The human race began;
Where the woman heard the snake
Unfold its tempting plan;
Where she, plucked delicious fruit
And shared it with the man?
Why believe this tale inspired
And absolutely true
And adorn it with your thoughts
And twist it to your view;
When far back through pagan creeds,
Forgotten and effaced,
To the myths of ancient tribes
By you it can be traced?
ALDEN HARNESS.

The Master bids me heed his voice—
And always He has been my choice.
I love to do His sovereign will,
His every precept to fulfill;
For well I know that what is good
For me, by Him is understood,
He offers what He knows is best,
To round the life with real success.
But, ah, alas! that other me
That's part of my identity,
Death oft opposes my better self;
He's such a naughty willful elf;
A veritable lap in me,
Of course my readers will agree,
For I am not the only soul
Who fails this tyrant to control.
Mine's not an isolated case;
He troubles all the human race.
He says we shall not, when we would,
He keeps us all from being good,
He's born with us and sticks around
Until we're laid beneath the ground.

THEATRES

ANTLERS THEATRE

A night in a pullman car. A nearly wed couple looking for a minister. A French girl, fleeing from her husband, who gets the nearly wed male to pose as her husband and gets her baby to call him "papa." A traveling salesman joyously booted. A porter who knows everybody's business and who takes care of everyone when they least want it.

With these as his leading characters, Rupert Hughes is said to have written one of the most amusing screen farces of many years in "Excuse Me," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture which comes to the Antlers theatre on Sunday and Monday.

MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Speaking of screen thrills! There's one that ought to leave a lifelong impression on everyone who sees it down at the Majestic Sunday and Monday. It's the avalanche scene in the Zane Grey Paramount picture, "Wanderer of the Wasteland," which opens at the Majestic Sunday and will remain until Tuesday next. Irvin Willis directed the production, which was adapted from the novel of the same name by George C. Hull and Victor Irvin.

It all comes about when one of the characters in the picture, who lives with his wife alone in the desert, gets it into his head that their daughter, Ruth, played by Billie Dove, who is teaching school in a far distant town, is not his daughter.

LIBERTY THEATRE.

In "The Speed Spook" featuring Johnny Hines, which comes to the Liberty tomorrow, Monday and Tuesday, patrons will view a real championship auto race in which all the incidental details necessary to such an event were filmed. Roaring around the track at speeds from 110 to 120 miles per hour, the only means of communicating with the drivers is through the system of flag signals controlled by the starter, who is the dictator of the race from the moment the first car crosses the starting line until the last one finishes.

country and was well known throughout southern Oregon, having a host of friends wherever he was known. At this writing it is understood the funeral services will be held in Glendale and interment made in the local cemetery. The sorrowing family has the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community.—Glendale News.
