Dayton Prepares to Make Gala Affair of Evolution Trial

Dayton, Tenn., is going to make a festive occasion of the trial of John T. Scopes, science teacher, on the charge of violating Tennessee's anti-evolution law, a case that is attracting national attention. A stadium is being built to provide a scene for the trial capable of accommodating the huge number of persons expected to attend, and Main Street, shown here, is being cleaned up and decorated. The arrow indicates the drug-store where were held the friendly arguments that resulted in the indictment of Scopes.

By Y. Y. FERROL (Central Press Correspondent.) DAYTON, Tenn., June 13.—The ten or twenty thousand people who throng here for the Scopes trial in July are going to learn something besides Huxley's and Darwin's ideas about the evolution of man.

They're going to be given a good, stiff course in virulent Civic Progressiveness.

Everybody in Dayton has suddenly become a booster. Everybody with anything to sell expects to get rich during the trial. Dayton is basking in the glory of being in the nation's spotlight. Shelby, Montana, another Dayton in appearance, lost a million dollars in getting on the map. This little Tennessee town of 1,800 is getting itself engraved on the map in large letters, and is gaining by it.

Dayton is going to give everybody a good time, and charge for the entertainment. That is, the food sellers and landlords will. A grandstand is to be erected and amplifiers set up so all the thousands who can't get into the courthouse and see the trial can sit outside and hear it.

Main street, busiest street in town, is being cleaned up and decorated. Hot dog stands are beginning to rise, and gasoline filling stations are multiplying.

The gold brick salesmen are making their arrangements to be here. Prices are going up.

The newly organized progressive Dayton club has chosen a committee to make arrangements for taking care of housing visitors. After canvassing the town the committee announced that homes here can accommodate 1,500 guests, and that with the aid of summer resorts and neighboring towns, 5,000 persons can easily be housed, with unlimited space for campaigning and parking cars.

Court will be in session only four hours a day, so the trial will last several weeks. All aboard for Dayton!

If you spent 60 days straight at the kitchen stove

—you'd see why it is that nearly eighteen hundred homes within reach of the Copco lines are now using electric ranges.

Two hours a day, every day in the year, is probably a low estimate of a housewife's time in the kitchen. Sixty full days, in all—and they're worth making easier!

Electrical cooking is easier, and cleaner. It puts an end to dirt and ashes. It means less sweeping of floors, less cleaning of walls, cleaner utensils.

Electrical cooking is tastier. Uniform, controllable heat saves the flavor of dainty foods.

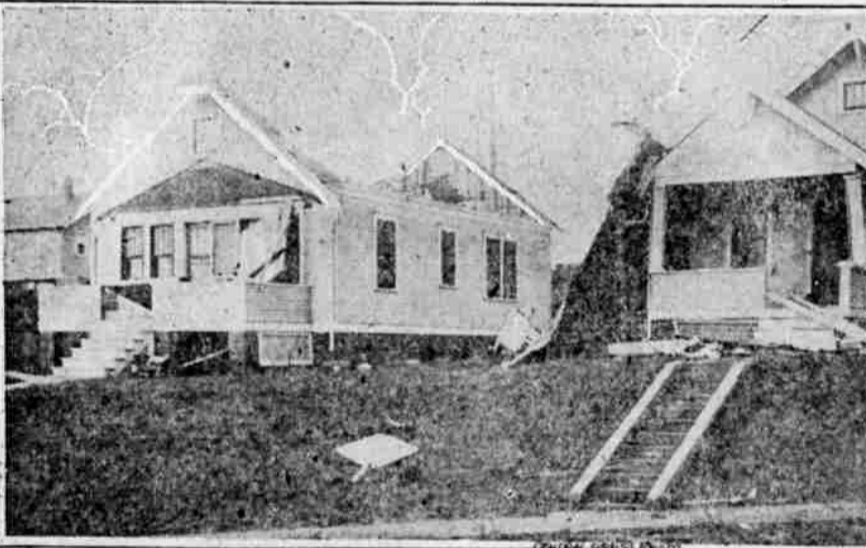

Electrical cooking is economical—surprisingly so. The average cost of electricity for cooking is only about twice the cost of the electric lighting current in the same home. (Actual average figures for your own neighborhood will be shown you upon request.)

Don't pass the next display of electric ranges without just dropping in and asking your dealer more about them—and about the convenient payment terms he is offering.

Agitators Peril Foreigners in China

Additional allied troops are being landed in Shanghai as a result of the distinct anti-foreigner tone the latest uprising there has taken. One American is listed as a victim of riots begun by Chinese student agitators, who want to oust all foreign residents from their country. Some of these agitators are seen talking revolt to passers-by in one of the main streets of Shanghai.
