BUSINESS SCHOOLS URGED TO TEACH MACHINE FIGURING

INDIANAPOLIS, July 2.—(A. P.)—Teaching of machine bookkeeping and machine calculation in commercial high schools was urged today by J. C. Springman, of the Commercial Department of the Pontiac, Mich., High School, before the Business Education Department of the National Educational Association in annual convention here.

Mr. Springman said this work should be given pupils with the requirements of business constantly in mind and that the nature of the work should be governed by the kind of machines used in the community by industry.

CONTRIBUTIONS OF TEACHERS OF ECONOMICS TO THE INTERPRETATION OF THE SCHOOL OF THE COMMUNITY before the National Council for Social Studies, declared "interrelation between the home and the school may prove valuable to both," and that the task of interpreting the school to the community required "cooperation in its broadest sense."

Francis R. Kelley, supervisor of Home Economics, Minneapolis, told the American Home Economic Association that the greatest care exercised to select the most efficient equipment for home economic work in junior and senior high schools, as if this were done more efficient work could be done and the "teaching load" reduced.

TWO OF M'MILLAN PARTY ARE EXEMPT FROM WHEEL DUTY

CHICAGO, July 2.—The cook and engineer of the Bowdoin, which, with the Peary, are carrying the MacMillan-Navy party to the Arctic region for exploration, are alone of the contingent who will not have to take their turn at the wheel. The Bowdoin, of the auxiliary schooner type, has a passenger list of 10 men. The Peary has a crew of 13 men and a personnel of 12 navy officers and men.

All members of the crew and the complement are volunteers. The crew was selected principally from three viewpoints: personality, which was ranked first; physique and ability. It requires a good personality to withstand rigors of Arctic isolation as much as good physical condition.

Commander MacMillan is in charge of the Bowdoin. Commander Eugene E. McDonald, Jr., in charge of the Peary, and Commander R. E. Byrd, U. S. N., in charge of the navy personnel and planes. McDonald also is chief of radio on the expedition.

The planes are of the amphibian type and numbered NA-1, NA-2 and NA-3. They will have a maximum flying distance of 1,200 miles but will not be required to fly further than 500 miles from their Arctic bases at any time. They will also carry carrier pigeons and smoke bombs.

Heretofore, Arctic explorers have figured out their compass variations by the relation of the North Pole to the magnetic pole. At the suggestion of Secretary Wilbur, this expedition is armed with a new chart which makes the magnetic pole the chief factor and provides a set of variations of the compass with the North pole playing second hand. This may simplify observations, calculations and navigation.

STATE PRESS COMMENT

Tardy Discipline
A rich contractor in the east leaves this will "None of my children can have a cent of my money until he reaches the age of 50 years. I do this in the hope and expectation that at 50 they will have developed a greater degree of respect and consideration for their father than they have shown during my lifetime." Maybe the father was concerned more with contracting than with children. A lot of them are. They expect their money to buy morals and guidance and good conduct for their children. Money doesn't do it. More thought and effort for the children and less for contracting is the best way to win the children's respect. —Portland Journal.

Family Succession
Young Bob La Follette has announced himself as a candidate to succeed to his father's time-honored seat in the United States senate. It is a privilege every citizen has, but we hope that his success or failure will be on a basis of ability to serve, not influenced by a mere question of inheritance. Inherited right is a privilege we do not care to see established in the senate—existing rights are bad enough. —La Grande Observer.

Humiliation Day
A movement with considerable public opinion back of it is afoot in Japan to constitute July 1 a national day of humiliation because of the American exclusion act as to Japanese immigration, which took effect July 1, 1924. How nearly this movement comes to being a popular one in Japan is not just now known for a certainty, but it has considerable backing and a real cause for being. Americans do not well appreciate the value set by most eastern and southern people upon race and national honor. Although there is no offense to the Japanese in the action of America it is obvious that the Japanese insist on interpreting it so. Practical exclusion of the Japanese could have been brought about in some other than the rude, off-hand fashion with which it was done by our congress. If it had been done in courteous fashion, we would not now have to record the establishment of a memorial day of hate in a neighbor nation, whose friendship means much to the peace and prosperity of America. —Portland Telegram.

WEAK, RUN-DOWN NERVOUS, DIZZY

Mrs. Lee Suffered From All These Troubles, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well

Terre Haute, Indiana.—"I was weak and run-down and in such a nervous condition that I could hardly do my work. I was tired all the time and dizzy, had no appetite and could not sleep. I tried different medicines for a year but they did not help me. Then my husband saw the ad. for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and had me take it. I regained my strength and never felt better in my life. It completely restored me to health. I had practically no suffering when my baby boy was born and he is very strong and healthy. I know that the Vegetable Compound is the best medicine a woman can take before and after child birth for health and strength. I would be willing to answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Wm. J. Lee, Route E, Box 643, Terre Haute, Indiana.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for all these troubles. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Belated Esteem
The county has appropriated $15,000 to search for the murderer of the Kelso editor. That shows what the public thinks of an editor—after he is dead.—Corvallis Gazette Times.

At Battle Rock
Captain William Tichenor was recently mentioned in these columns in connection with the fight between Indians and whites at "Battle Rock", Port Orford.

The founding of Port Orford town was his project. He furnished the cannon, arms and ammunition with which the whites won the fight at Battle Rock. He was then master of the Sea Gull, plying regularly between Portland and San Francisco.

Before coming to Oregon, he was an intimate friend of Abraham Lincoln, later president of the United States. Back in 1847 and 1848 they were room-mates. Tichenor was then state senator in Illinois, and he and Lincoln traveled together over the state, speaking from the same platform.

Tichenor was the first worshipful master of Prairie lodge No. 77, A. F. & A. M. at Paris, Illinois, in 1848. Lincoln handed Tichenor his application to become a Maac, but requested that, as Tichenor was leaving for California, the petition be held until his return. Tichenor never returned.

Tichenor arrived in California in the spring of 1849. He finally settled at Port Orford, Oregon, in 1851. Lincoln never forgot his old friend and, as president of the United States, in 1861, appointed him collector of customs for the Port Orford district.

Captain Tichenor was a near relative of Mrs. Hall, wife of Senator Charles Hall of Marshfield. Mrs. Hall's mother was a Tichenor. When you think of the bold spirits, like this early navigator, who came by hundreds and faced hostile Indians, untamed wilds, the perils of the sea in the frail craft and met the other hardships which all the pioneers encountered, you get an idea of the fine old human stock with which primitive Oregon was settled.—Oregon Journal.

Following Tennessee.
So they are going to try to give Oregon a state religion by initiative enactment. And our state religion, if the movement succeeds, is to be fundamentalist. We are to take our leadership from Tennessee, where they dip and snuff, eat clay and shoot from behind trees at officers who try to interfere with their moonshining activities. We are to have a law, if the proponents of the bill can persuade the majority of us to vote for it, which will be modeled on the Tennessee act under which Scopes is to be tried. Scopes is charged by indictment under this law with having taught "certain theories that deny the divine creation of man as taught in the Bible."

The proponents of this law are to present a bill to provide for its enactment before the voters of Oregon, California and Washington before their legislatures meet, according to the news that comes down to us in the dispatches. The measure, so the announcement says, will be voted on in all three states in 1926. Rev. Billy Sunday will open the campaign for the measure at his revival to be held in Portland next September. Then he and William Jennings Bryan and Dr. W. B. Riley will stump the three states campaigning for the bill.

The issue of the campaign over this bill will be, of course, whether the states of Oregon, California and Washington shall decide by law that there shall be no teaching in their schools of anything that may conflict with the religious views of the majority. If such a law were to be enacted and upheld in the courts we might as well say goodbye to freedom and thought and of conscience. The church of old went no further when it compelled Galileo to kneel and declare that the sun moved and the earth stood still.—Salem Journal.

Aerial Evangelism.

Calling people "lars" and "as ses" because they differ from us in their understanding of the Bible, is, in any the least, a very odd thing to do toward bringing men to Christ.

A modernist, in the language of Bryan, Riley and Sunday, is a man who denies the divinity of Christ by denying the virgin birth; who believes the Bible to be a book of fables, and believes that man is descended from the tribe of monkeys. As a matter of fact, only a negligible few professed Christians or professed scientists hold such beliefs.

But the term "modernist" thus used, these platform people apply to every professed Christian who does not believe everything in both Old and New Testaments to be the inerrant word of God, word for word and letter for letter, mechanically interpreted usually by the King James translators.

All this platform ado is as far away from practical Christianity as calling a man a liar and an ass is from giving him a cup of cold water in the name of Christ. —Portland Telegram.

A Terrible Indictment.

Joe Wagner of St. Joseph, Mo., is a crook. And here is how the law has dealt with him recently: He was arrested and convicted of the theft of an automobile and sentenced to five months' imprisonment. But he was released on bond, pending a new trial.

Save Carbon-Attacks

—a form of Motor-Indigestion

Your motor is not unlike the human organism. It must be kept nourished and clean. And oils, like foods, are not to be judged by their price.

Aristo Motor Oil, for example, is the finest lubricant capable of production. It compares to advantage with eastern oils selling at almost twice its price. Yet this is easy to understand.

Aristo is not under the handicap of heavy freight costs from the east. It benefits, too, by volume production. And it comes from refineries which are unrivaled in equipment the world over.

Aristo is a quality product. It combats the formation of carbon. And, as has been said, it is a lubricant without a peer.

You will save with Aristo at the beginning. But your greatest saving will be in the end. Your motor will testify as to its economy.

While out on bond he was arrested and convicted of stealing another automobile and sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary. But he was released on a writ of habeas corpus and a new trial granted.

White out on bond he was arrested and convicted, on five counts, of possession of liquor, and sentenced to serve five years on each count. But he was released on bond and a new trial ordered.

While out on bond he was shot by police and probably mortally wounded while attempting to escape from the scene of still another crime.

Wagner was convicted of three separate and distinct crimes and sentenced to serve more than 23 years in the penitentiary. But he never served a day. He was released either on writs of habeas corpus or on bonds. He was able to get new trials continually. And he was finally shot following the perpetration of another crime.

continue to commit crime? And what is the part of the clever attorneys who, for a fee, keep the Wagners out of jail land in jail. Most criminals finally knowing they are guffly, and when they know the crooks are making their living preying on the public, and they know that for the sake of society the criminals should be in penitentiaries? Fortunately, the Wagner cases are few. Most criminals finally know that of Wagner are terrible indictments of some practices in the courts.—Portland Telegram.
