the state $100,000 which the special election would have cost and that that was his motive in what he did. The truth is, of course, that to save that $100,000 he sacrificed beyond hope of recovery $2,000,000 in special revenues which would have relieved the property-taxpayer to that extent, but which now will have to come in one way or another out of the pocket of that same property-taxpayer.

The best guess one can make is that the governor's real motive in that veto was political, just as his motives are political for all that he does officially. He didn't want the silly Palm Beach amendment defeated this year, as it would have been if a special election had been held. He wanted it for a campaign issue next year, when he will be running for office again. He wanted the income tax to be an issue again next year, and he thought the best way to insure that would be to let the Palm Beach amendment pass.

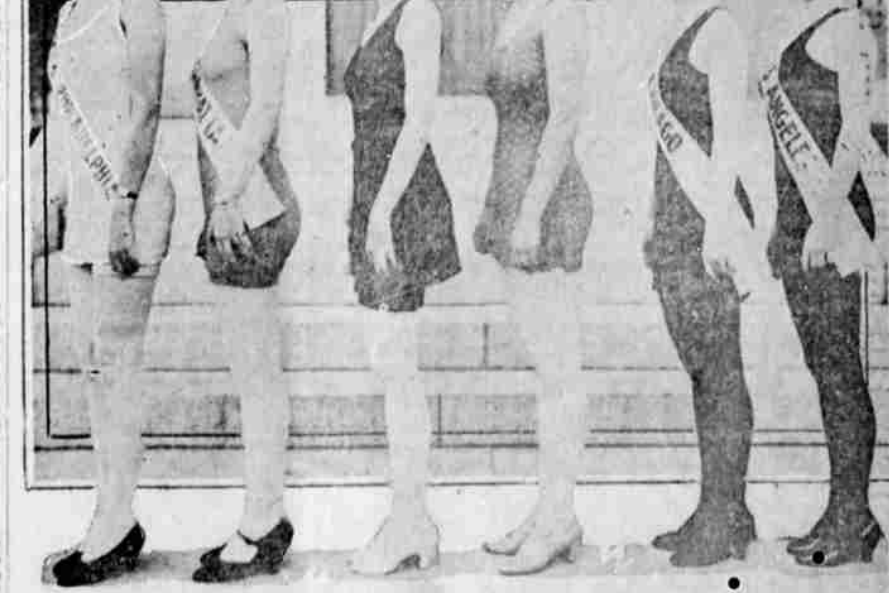

Does Mr. Pinchot mean to say that the people will lose their present political and legislative powers? It seems scarcely probable. The power companies are now under fairly strict control by the public service commissions of the various states. Their rates can be lowered whenever these commissions demand it.

The people still have their legislatures, and a very efficient Department of Commerce under Herbert Hoover at Washington. We have seen no indication either that the power companies control Mr. Hoover, or control any of the state legislatures—at least in this neighborhood.

Some of the dangers Governor Pinchot foresees may exist, but the danger of a nation enslaved by electric power companies, somehow appeals more to our sense of humor, than our sense of impending disaster.

COUNTESS WANTS HER MARRIAGE VALIDATED

NEW YORK, July 7.—The services of papers on Countess Salm von Hochstraten in a suit regarding the validating in Austria of her marriage today awaited payment of a $4.50 process server's fee.

Millicent Rogers, New York society girl and grand daughter of Henry H. Rogers of the Standard Oil Company, married Count von Hochstraten secretly at the city hall in New York on July 8, 1924. There was a honeymoon trip to Paris and shortly the bride's father, Henry H. Rogers, went abroad and brought her home. A son was born September 27, 1924.

In behalf of Dr. Emil Kammerer, a Vienna lawyer, there have been filed in the county court at Brooklyn summons and complaint in a suit for $6,199 and costs. A copy of a power of attorney given by the countess to Kammerer is attached.

Sheriff Biggs has notified Arthur J. Stern of Brooklyn, who represents the Vienna lawyer, that the papers will not be served until he gets his fee.

Stern said the countess wanted the marriage validated in order to protect her son. Validation was necessary in Austria because the count was divorced when he captured the heiress. The count is on the continent somewhere playing tennis.

The countess is at her father's home in South Ampton.

that such evidence was not relevant.

DAYTON, Tenn., July 7.—William Jennings Bryan, connected with the prosecution of John T. Scopes, charged with violating Tennessee's anti-evolution law, arrived here this afternoon.

Mr. Bryan was met at the train by prosecuting attorney, defense attorneys, newspapermen and host of Dayton citizens. He was escorted to the home of Richard Rogers, where he will remain until the conclusion of the evolution trial.

As Mr. Bryan stepped from the train he was greeted by the clicking of cameras. A crowd rushed forward to greet him and he was surrounded by his Dayton admirers.

Dr. John R. Neal, discussing the failure of defense attorneys to obtain a federal injunction yesterday in Cookeville, said no further effort would be made to interfere with the trial of the Scopes case Friday.

The filing of a petition for injunction to prevent state authorities from enforcing the anti-evolution teaching law will give the defense an indisputable road to the supreme court, he said.

Should there be some slip in the carriage of the Scopes case into the supreme court after the trial, the second petition filed in behalf of a citizen will, pursuing the steps of the Oregon case, give them a clear route into the higher courts, he indicated.

STOLE A LOCOMOTIVE TO JOYRIDE; ARRESTED

NEW YORK, July 7.—Charged with stealing a $65,000 locomotive for a joyride and wrecked it and another locomotive in collision, Nicholas Oper of Long Island City, today was held in $10,000 bail for a hearing.

Police say Oper admitted entering the private grounds roundhouse of a construction company on the night of July 5, while intoxicated. Finding no watchman on duty, he decided to take a ride. Oper had never been in a locomotive before and was hurled out of the cab window at the first sharp curve. He was not hurt.

The runaway engine matched speed and, racing at 65 miles per hour, crashed into a Long Island Railroad locomotive, wrecking both engines and seriously injuring Engineer George Dimmick. Total damage is estimated at $150,000.
