PRECIOUS OBJECTS STOLEN FROM ST. PETERS RETURNED

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

ROME, July 7.—The police today returned to the Vatican the precious objects stolen Friday night when thieves entered the treasury of St. Peter's.

The two painters are Americo Leardi and Rubicondo Primavera. These men had been working in St. Peter's and are under arrest. Stella is supposed to have other accomplices among the workmen in the church.

It is said that Stella was seen about three weeks ago prowling around St. Peter's. Before the robbery Friday night he had been shadowed by detectives. After the robbery Police Commissioner Marotta, posing as a jeweler, opened negotiations with Stella for the purchase of gems. Stella, according to the police, carried Marotta to a shop where he exhibited all of the treasures taken from St. Peter's.

HARDING MEMORIAL WILL BE UNVEILED

VANCOUVER, B. C., July 7.—(A. P.)—A unique memorial to the late American President, Warren G. Harding will be unveiled at Vancouver, September 17, to commemorate his visit to Canadian soil in July, 1923.

The unveiling will take place after the international convention of Kiwanis clubs under whose auspices the memorial is being erected. The movement for the memorial was inaugurated by the Kiwanis club of Vancouver, and the subscription list was opened to the Kiwanis clubs in the United States. The result was that the objective $35,000 was soon over-subscribed and the clubs in the United States insisted that they be permitted to bear the entire expense. The amount subscribed by the Canadian clubs then was returned to them.

The memorial will mark an event in history which offers no parallel—that of a United States president making an address on Canadian soil during his term of office. President Harding stopped at Vancouver for a few hours on his way south after visiting Alaska in 1923. In his address he made an eloquent plea for continuing friendship between the English speaking people and particularly between Canada and the United States.

The memorial will stand within a few feet of the spot in Stanley Park where President Harding delivered his address. The design of the memorial was submitted by Charles Merga an Italian sculptor now residing in Vancouver, and was one of 30 submitted to Kiwanis headquarters in Chicago. An invitation will be extended to President Coolidge to officiate at the unveiling.

America and Canada are represented in the statue by female figures facing each other and holding the shields of their respective countries and the olive branch symbol of peace. Under the olive branch there will be a bas relief of the late President, underneath which will be the single word Harding.

At each end of the statue will be a panel engraved with passages from Mr. Harding's speech. In front of the statue there will be a pool, the water for which will issue from the mouth of a colossal lion's head to be carved of granite, and which will surmount the entire work.

At the ends of the platform there will be a semi-circle of seats to provide accommodations for visitors, and at the entrance of the platform will be the forms of two eagles, symbolic of the United States. Around the memorial will be a wall which will be overgrown with flowers and shrubbery to give color to the granite work.

MOVEMENT STARTED TO RESTORE FAMOUS FORT IN NORTHWEST

HELENA, Mont., July 7.—(A. P.)—Fort Union, recorded by the Montana State Historical Society as the first fort to be established above the mouth of the Yellowstone river and one of the best known in the northwest, is to be restored to portray to visitors its part in the historic records of the west, if plans of citizens of Montana, North Dakota and the Great Northern railroad materialize.

President Ralph Budd of the railway, Secretary David Hilger of the Montana Historical Society and other interested citizens visited the spot late in May and located the old blockhouse bastions and other indications which Mr. Hilger believes will, with the aid of some very detailed descriptions and pictures in the society's library, permit an exact reproduction of the old fort. The owner of the acres of land which includes the site of the fort has offered to donate this property if the purpose can be accomplished. The United States Government will be asked to cooperate. It is estimated that the cost will be $25,000.

A mass meeting, which will be attended by the governors of Montana and North Dakota and by pioneers of both states has been arranged for July 18 at the site of the fort. It is expected at this meeting to perfect plans for the reconstruction and maintenance of the fort and to acquire the 40 acres of land in Montana and North Dakota which are needed for the fulfillment of the plan.

The fort, which was actually a fortified trading post, was established in 1829, by Kenneth McKenzie, of the American Fur Company of which he was a member. The site is a short distance above the mouth of the Yellowstone river on the north bank of the Missouri river. The boundary line between Montana and North Dakota runs through the 40 acre tract which is sought for the project.

The original fort was destroyed by fire in 1831, but was rebuilt immediately and extended. In 1865 it was pulled down on order of the commanding officer at Fort Buford, five miles south.

NEW GRAVITY PENDULUM INVENTED.

TOKYO, July 7.—Dr. H. Nagako, professor of physics in the Tokyo Imperial University, is credited with inventing a new pendulum for use in determining gravity. The pendulum is said to be constructed solely of tungsten, mounted in a special way, and to be practically free from outside influences. Its inventor claims the pendulum can withstand heat and magnetic impulse combined.

THE IRISH HORSE BREEDERS HOPEFUL.

DUBLIN, July 7.—Irish horse breeders are elated over a possible boom in Irish blood stock as a result of the recent Derby of Manly, the winner, and Zonist, who ran second, were Irish bred. At the Doncaster yearling sales, 148 of the 293 yearlings sold were from Irish stud farms. The average price paid was nearly $5,000.

MACMILLAN KNOWS ESKIMO METHODS OF GETTING FOOD

CHICAGO, July 7.—(A. P.)—One of the necessary arts in being an Arctic explorer is an ability to use native weapons, particularly the kind employed by the inhabitants of that region in obtaining food. Commander Donald B. MacMillan, now on his ninth trip to that land, excels in the art and is equipped to "Arctic" provision his party of 26 persons if domestic foodstuffs are exhausted.

On a former expedition, which was outfitted for one year, MacMillan was obliged to be for nearly four years because the far northern elements held him tight. Then it was he led his men on native rations and brought them all back in better physical condition than when they departed.

The seal is the principal source of meat and the oil of the whale the source of fat. The harpoon is the Eskimo's means of capture. Other crude devices are used, but the harpoon ranks first. Firmins are in many instances useless. MacMillan and his men became adept and decided that the foods of the Arctic were better for his purposes than the foods of the civilized world.

In snagging a seal, the Eskimo also uses his cunning. During the solid ice season the seal appears only at a water hole. The Eskimo locates these water holes and covers them all but one. By the side of the one the Eskimo, harpoon in hand, keeps vigil, many times as long as 48 hours, sitting on his haunches and swaying back and forth as the only artificial means of keeping warm.

BOARD OF CONTROL ENGAGES IN CLASH

SALEM, Ore., July 7.—Sisterhood Brothers of Portland, were successful bidders yesterday for the construction of a wing for the eastern Oregon hospital for the insane at Pendleton, the bid of that firm being $177,685. A. A. Stewart of Salem won the contract for construction of a new building at the state institution for feeble-minded with a bid of $32,906.

Port and company of Portland got the contract for plumbing at the Pendleton institution at $7500 and J. M. Shea of Portland the heating at $8437. L. C. Inman of Silverton will install the heating at the feeble-minded institution at $2500 and the plumbing at $2709.75. Electrical wiring will be installed by the Hatch Electric company of Salem on a bid of $720 and the will be furnished by the Art Tile company of Portland whose bid was $823.

The meeting of the board of control at which the bids were opened was followed by a clash between Governor Pierce on the one side and Secretary of State Koeze and Treasurer Kay on the other. The governor insisted that contracts should be awarded concerns that operate under the state workmen's compensation act, while Kay and Koeze insisted that the law does not require this. Kay accused the governor of doing more than any one else to kill the compensation commission for the reason that he successfully opposed the legislature's plan to appropriate money for the commission for the present session.

FROZEN FEET HELD MACMILLAN BACK FROM POLE DASH

CHICAGO, July 7.—An indelible spirit of optimism together with a confidence in himself which has its reaction in all members of his party, are characteristics which have brought Donald B. MacMillan through many a "jam," ice and otherwise, and which figured strongly in obtaining for him two modern assets to his present Arctic expedition—airplanes and radio.

NOTED BRITISH AUCTIONEER DEAD

ADDESTONE, Eng., July 7.—A. P.—Henry Stevens, one of Britain's oldest practicing auctioneers and a curio king, died recently at the age of 82.

Among the many curios which came under his hammer were the white tail of King Charles II. Stevens during his life time had sold every conceivable thing, including the late Lord Derby's great collection of more than 1,600 animals and birds; the death mask of Napoleon; a piece of Queen Victoria's wedding cake; the spear that killed General Goodrich, and the original of King David's crown.

HOW TO CHECK UP YOUR GAS MILEAGE

"Now that we are into the season of warmer weather, mileage will be the slogan of the average motorist. It is the local 'General' Distributor, yesterday, and just about one in every ten will have even a remote idea of how to figure what mileage he is getting from his fuel.

"So far as our gasoline is concerned, we don't have many complaints on the score of mileage. Almost any good gasoline is capable of excellent mileage if it is given a chance. What kinds do you use invariably are the result of improper record-keeping or wasteful driving habits.

"For instance, many drivers do not seem to realize that to begin with the carburetor should be adjusted carefully by one who knows how to do it properly. With the approach of warmer weather the adjustment should be checked up closely.

"Again, hundreds of drivers are the cause quite unnecessarily of volatile gasoline in weather conditions as we are likely to have from now on should not require choking at all unless it might be just a little early in the morning or late at night after the car has stood for several hours. Driving with too rich a mixture not only uses up gas unnecessarily but is anything but beneficial to the engine.

"It isn't much wonder that some drivers complain about the mileage they get from their fuel when you consider the manner in which they keep a record. A common method is to stick an old ruler into the tank and note the inches. Sometimes the ruler goes in at a different slant from what it did other times. This, of course, would make a variation of from one to two inches. Again, they do not bother to see that the car is level, and this, of course, is important if anything like accuracy is expected.

"There is only one simple, yet efficient method for keeping track of gasoline mileage consistently. And in using it or any other method, the driver should remember that short trips with many starts and stops, hill climbing, hard going on poor roads, and similar conditions require more gas than low, easy, straight-away driving. Allowance should be made, consequently, in making comparisons.

"To check gasoline mileage, fill your tank right up to the lip and check your speedometer reading. Make your drive. Refill your tank to the lip again. Check the gallonage required to fill it and divide it into the elapsed mileage.
