THE FAMILY DOCTOR

It is sometimes remarked that the younger men who are entering the practice of medicine, show an increased tendency to take up the work of specialists in some particular disease, rather than follow the line of the old fashioned family doctor. The career of the specialist is often said to provide higher fees and more comfortable conditions, with less of those calls in the middle of the night which impose such a heavy burden. The medical student, however, might well ask if this tendency does not so threaten the crowding of the field that many of these specialists must lack business. It will be a great misfortune if the good old tribe of family doctor should decline. Most of us can look back, and see how at various points the skill and practical insight of some family physician offered us advice the value of which was simply priceless. He has turned us from some wrong course of habit, and by shrewd suggestions and skillful treatment, has helped us to avoid menacing difficulty. One reason why some medical students are repelled from the field of the old fashioned family doctor, is that to obtain a foothold in the same it is often necessary to go into country towns and small cities, where they may not have a good chance to keep up with the latest developments of their science. The Graduate School of Medicine of the University of Pennsylvania is doing a most useful thing in forming extension groups all over that state, where doctors can get the latest ideas in their profession from competent specialists sent out by the university. This would be a fine plan to put to work everywhere else.

INVESTMENT CONCERN WINS GIGANTIC SUIT

(Associated Press Local Wire.)
 MEDFORD, Ore., July 15.—A judgment for $872,665.14 was handed down Tuesday by Circuit Judge C. M. Thomas in the suit of the Welch Investment Company of Spokane and J. W. Stewart, against the Rogue River Valley Canal Company. It is the largest sum ever involved in Jackson county litigation.
 The action is not as stupendous as it sounds, however, as the litigants are sister concerns, and the suit was filed to clear the records and pave the way and remove legal obstacles, of a technical nature, in the merging of both the Mount Pitt Irrigation Company, now the official name of the irrigation company.

ABERDEEN MAN IS SHOT BY POLICEMAN

ABERDEEN, Wash., July 15.—Rikahan Crisp, 34, garage mechanic of Elma, was shot and killed early this morning at McLeary by Night Marshal Fred Lomax. Lomax says Crisp and William Briddens, 43, a companion, were disturbing the peace when he attempted to quiet them. Crisp struck at him and reached for a hip pocket. Lomax then drew his gun and shot the man, he declares. Briddens is under arrest at the county jail.

FRENCH DEFEAT TWO ATTACKS OF RIFFS ON MOROCCAN FRONT

(Associated Press Local Wire.)
 FEZ, FRENCH MOROCCO, July 15.—The French today defeated two attacks by Abd-el-Krim's Rifians upon positions protecting Fez and Taza.
 Abd-el-Krim is scrutinizing every nerve in preparation to strike a blow against the French before Franco-Spanish co-operation arranged for at the Madrid conference becomes effective. All the information gathered by the French intelligence service tends to bear out this assertion.
 The Rifian propaganda is especially active and appears to be meeting success notably among the Tausils and Idranes in the Taza region, of which tribes of further portions have gone over to Abd-el-Krim.
 These defections are also beginning to have an effect on the Tohilatas, a warlike tribe, whose abandonment would be a serious complication for the French.
 A French bombing plane bred down yesterday, forcing a landing, three miles in front of the French lines near Taza. Another machine went to the rescue but its pilot, seeing the non-commissioned officers of the first plane surrounded by Rifians, gave them up for lost. The two, however, came into the French lines later, having sought their way through the enemy lines with their carbines and bombs.
 Their plane, which was the first to fall into enemy territory, was destroyed by shots from French field pieces.
 Advice through Spanish Morocco last night indicate that the pressure against the French near Taza was increasing daily and that the French military situation was "quite serious."
 Reference was made to the "cutting of the Fez-Algiers railroad" near Taza, which would mean the interruption of French communication between Algiers and the Moroccan protectorate.

When athwart the Elysian glade
 Torrid sunbeams gleam—
 We'll hike toward
 The sylvan shade
 That lines the silver stream.
 And after loitering
 There about,
 Conservators of strength
 We'll tell of the
 Amazing trout
 A yard or more
 In length—
 Thereafter when
 The saxophone
 Spatters a tiresome tune
 We'll sneak to tip
 Behind the throne
 Nectar from a prune!

Ye ee, has been invited to pack up the North Umpqua to Diamond Lake on horse-back and we're leaving in the maddening throng Saturday a. m. for the playground of the deer and grouse and oh what pleasure it'll be to return to eat our meals off'n the mantle.

OUCH!
 A din in the cool cold waters
 Of the surgin' ol' Umpqua
 Imbues a feller
 With lotsa pep
 It gives gloom
 A sock on the jaw.
 And as you lay a dreamin'
 Driftin' like a floatin' dock
 It brings a kicker
 Back to earth
 When you kick your toe
 On a rock!

SOFT GROUND HAMBERS TOKYO'S RECONSTRUCTION

TOKYO, July 15.—The softness of the ground upon which Tokyo is built is interfering considerably with the reconstruction work now under way. Recently Dr. Kishi of the reconstruction bureau recommended that all work on paved streets in the districts where the new subway is to be built be delayed until after the underground project has been completed. He based his recommendation upon observations made during the recent sewer construction.
 In some places, it was found, the sewer excavations have caused the streets to sink more than a foot. Many houses and paved roads, Dr. Kishi discovered, have been seriously damaged because of the settling of the earth.

STATE PRESS COMMENT

Electricity's Boon
 Late statistics show that between 65,000,000 and 70,000,000 people are enjoying the comforts, conveniences and improved living standards in the United States that electricity makes possible. The companies increased their customers by nearly 2,000,000 in 1924 and by the end of 1925 they expect to have nearly 20,000,000 customers.
 Approximately $7,000,000,000 has been invested in power plants and transmission and distributing systems. This sum is being increased about $1,000,000,000 annually. Yet it is estimated that the electrical industry will need $10,000,000,000 in the next ten years. To make it easier to visualize that enormous sum, it can be arithmetically shown that the industry will need $200 in new capital every minute for the next ten years.—Portland Record Abstract.

Mob Law in Oregon
 At Toledo, Ore., an international outrage was committed. A mob of several hundred people, inflamed by an orator, overcame guards at the Pacific Spruce corporation's mill, attacked 35 Japanese laborers, and deported them with their belongings by automobile into the next county. Five arrests have been made.
 This outrage was far worse than any perpetrated by hoodlum agitators in Tokio a year ago when there was great excitement over the passage by our congress of the Japanese exclusion act, and when a radical press tried to incite the populace to violence. Abusive language toward Americans who happened to be in Tokio was the sum total of Oriental resentment.
 Presumably the Japanese deported from Lincoln county into Benton were in the United States in conformity with the treaty between Japan and this country. Presumably their legal right to remain in this country unmolested could not be questioned. The "favored nation" clause was contained in the treaty.
 Under international law and diplomatic courtesy, Japan has a grievance against the United States. The Tokio government will probably demand from the Washington government full redress for the outrage, and there can scarcely be a doubt that the administration will demand at the hands of the Oregon authorities proper punishment for the offenders, and reparation for any damage.
 Action by the state authorities should be swift—first, as an act of international justice; secondly, as a warning against other lawless agitators. Not to punish the ring-leaders would betray the administration. It is easy to start race riots, and if they are not effectively checked, there is no telling to what extent the evil may spread.—Portland Telegram.

More Barbarity Outlawed
 The international arms conference at Geneva a few weeks ago, put deadly disease germs on the list of prohibited weapons, after outlawing poison gas.
 This is good news, even though the vote at Geneva is not final, and though some nations assenting to this principle in time of peace might change its mind, as nations have done before about war methods, when actually engaged in a life-and-death struggle.
 Poison gas should go. Deadly bacteria should go. Supplies of either on hand, or military purposes, should be sunk in the depths of the sea, as our surplus gas was after the war, if it is not too cruel to the Huns. Various other types of war material, the latest and most diabolical engineering of science for wiping out human life by wholesale, should be discarded as far as can be done by the solemn pledges of the civilized nations.
 Pious talk of "abolishing war by making warfare more horrible" has been proved tommyrot. Horrible ways of killing men, women and children did not prevent the biggest and worst of all wars, and will not prevent a bigger one if the professional fighters go ahead arm-in-arm with the scientists.
 It will help much to obtain these pledges against the most revolting methods of slaughter, and thus gain a foothold in building up a world sentiment that will keep them from military use. It will help more if a concerted effort is made to eliminate the poison gas of race hatred and the disease germs of international contempt, suspicion and tear.—Medford Mail Tribune.

Alias, Poor Averill
 They have made E. F. Averill, of Pendleton, state game warden, the dispatches tell us. This seems to give further support to the charge that Governor Pierce strongly dislikes newspaper men. For Averill is—or was—a news-paper man. It seems like a cruel revenge, and on behalf of the craft generally we must protest.
 Of course they are sugar-coating their wicked dose of poison to an inoffensive young man, by selling him the old, old story about how the office of game warden, and indeed the entire game commission, are to be taken out of politics. As though any

The Closed Spaces
 One office building in New York has 10,000 inmates. A new building for the New York needle trades will be 42 stories and cost $19,000,000. If, through fright, all the dwellers in lower New York should rush into the street at one time they would pile up nine deep. Does anybody think that, in this big world of broad acres and fresh air and sunlight, those piles of steel and stone are places for normal living?—Portland Journal.

SUMMIT OF HIGH MOUNTAIN REACHED BY PARTY CLIMBERS

(Associated Press Local Wire.)
 CORDOVA, Alaska, July 15.—Three men of the party of six mountain climbers who scaled Mount Logan, whose peak, towering 19,550 feet in the air, had heretofore defied ascension, have returned to Cordova. The others have not returned, but are supposed to be drifting down the Chitina river on a raft.
 H. F. Lambert of Ottawa, one of those returning, is in a hospital with frozen feet. The two others are Norman H. Reed of Boston and Andrew Taylor, packer of McCarthy. They drifted down the Chitina river on a raft, the party dividing and building two rafts for the descent after the river was reached.
 Reaching the summit at 8 p. m. on June 25, the party remained there for 25 minutes. During the descent they were overtaken by a blinding snow storm. Unable to reach their camp lower down the mountain side, they dug holes in the snow and stayed there until noon the next day. It was during this night that the men suffered frost bitten hands and feet.

office controlled by our present governor were ever to be taken out of politics! And Averill will leave a good and certain occupation in Pendleton for those assurances. Again as one of the craft, we blush and stammer when we think of such credulity as appertaining to any man who has covered police or water front. The federal biological survey, wherein he has been employed, must have been keeping Averill informed of these past few years.
 W. L. Finley, who is appointed to a place on the game commission, also has accepted assurances that game commission affairs are to be taken out of politics, but that is not so surprising, for Finley is of the artistic temperament. And Finley, ever a stormy petrel and always in a row with somebody, ran true to form at the first meeting of the commission following his appointment, by firing all the game commission employees in sight on flimsy charges worked up out of his own snooping during recent months.
 If the harbingers are true-pointed, state game commission affairs are going to be a good deal in the news from now on for a while.—Eugene Guard.
