This New Summer Breakfast

Note the recipe. Get Quick Quaker and try it out.

You'll like it

A chef of great note prepared this NEW idea in a summer breakfast.

Now millions follow it. You will find it a great delight.

The Recipe

As you prepare dinner tonight, cook your regular breakfast quantity of Quick Quaker. When done, pour into a pudding mould and let cool. Then place in the refrigerator over night.

Cut in medium thick slices and serve at breakfast with fresh or cooked fruits or berries and sugar—float with rich milk or cream.

The combination is delightful. Just for the joy of it, try it yourself.

Direct Descendant of Darwin Lives in Dayton; Sees Ape Trial

This is Miss Margaret Darwin, who claims direct descendancy from Charles Darwin, noted exponent of the evolution theory. By a queer coincidence she is a resident of Dayton, Tenn., locale of the Scopes anti-evolution trial and a spectator at the trial. Inset is drawing of Darwin.

MINE WORKERS TO FIGHT INQUIRY OF COURT INTO DISPUTE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

SCARBOROUGH, Eng., July 15.—The Mine Workers' Federation today unanimously refused to accept the government's court of inquiry into the mining dispute and refusing the coal mine owners' proposal for negotiation.

In officially announcing their decision, the Miners' Federation said it would inform the government it could not accept another court of inquiry "having for its object the ascertainment of whether miners' wages shall be reduced or their hours extended."

The announcement said the federation would meet the owners in open conference as soon as the owners withdraw their proposals for lower wages or longer hours.

This action indicated the determination of the Miners' Federation in session here to fight to a finish the wage reductions proposed by the owners. Strong influence were brought to bear upon the miners to see them to accept the government's proposed court of inquiry, or to meet the terms of the mine owners, but these influences were unavailing.

MILLS UNABLE TO SUPPLY COTTON TO RUSSIAN PEASANTS

MOSCOW, July 14.—The shortage of cotton goods in Russia never has been felt so acutely as this year. With the coming of the summer Moscow textile shops are literally besieged by all classes of the town population and numerous peasants, who come great distances to buy a few yards of gingham or cotton dress goods. Foreigners are much surprised by the sight of long queues of women shoppers who stand patiently all day long outside every state textile shop, obstructing traffic and necessiating the regulation of the crowd by militiamen.

The high cost of woolens and silks compels even the better class of people to resort to ordinary cotton fabrics for their dresses, while the peasantry as a rule never was accustomed to wear anything but cotton. The Soviet textile industry is unable to supply the demand for cotton, which since the revolution has greatly increased, while production of cotton goods has decreased by nearly 70 per cent in comparison with the pre-war time.

In 1913 the Russian factories produced 2,275,000,000 meters of cotton goods, which equals 17 meters per head of population, while the last year the total production amounted only to 800,000,000 meters, which is only six meters for every inhabitant.

In order to meet the demand for cotton goods among the peasantry, the government was compelled last year to buy abroad 20,000,000 rubles' worth of ready cotton fabrics. With the realization of the coming harvest, which is expected this year to be satisfactory, the demand for cotton goods by the peasantry undoubtedly will increase. The government now is confronted with the problem of further increasing the import of cotton goods, as the increase in the production of the Russian textile factories would require. A big outlay of capital for reconstruction work and for the installation of new machinery, which the government cannot at present afford, would be involved.

KIWANIANS PICNIC AT BOYS SCOUT CAMP

Roseburg Kiwanians and their families enjoyed a delightful picnic in the Boy Scout summer camp, a short distance north of the city on the Umpqua, yesterday evening. The Boy Scouts served a regular "army style" dinner, consisting of beans, succotash, hot rolls and iced tea. Prior to the picnic dinner a number of the Kiwanians enjoyed a swim in the Scout swimming hole. Following the dinner, horse-shoe pitching, baseball and other sports were indulged in. There was a fine attendance and all had a real time.

THEATRES

Antlers Theatre

The real west was brought out to furnish backgrounds for Colleen Moore's latest First National starring "The Desert Flower," now showing at the Antlers theatre.

When it was necessary to show life in a railroad construction camp at a western terminus, the producers were able to locate just such a camp forty miles from Barstow, in California.

When a desert sequence loomed up in the continuity of the play, there was the unusual Mojave not so far away.

When a mushroom mining town had to be pictured, such an abandoned settlement was found, leaving the director free to make a hampered use of it after carpenters had done the necessary tinkering and touching up.

These scenes were peopled with players picked primarily for their knowledge of western customs and quirks, so that "The Desert Flower" truly holds up the mirror to nature and is atmospherically and, as to characterization, as true a picture of untrammeled life in the west that was as it is possible to present upon the screen.

Majestic Theatre

Milton Sills and Noah Beery, principals in Jesse D. Hampton's picturization of "The Spoilers," claim the world's championship in the long distance fighting handicap.

Sills, playing the role of Glennister, and Beery in the role of McNamara, battled five straight days, shed quantities of real gore and received more black and blue spots than there are on a Chinese lottery ticket before they satisfied Director Lambert Hillyer.

They were taking scenes in the fight which occurs between the two enemies in Rex Beach's novel, "The Spoilers," which comes tonight at the Majestic theatre, and were determined to outdo the famous screen battle staged by William Farnum and Tom Santschi in a film version of the book made ten years ago.

Liberty Theatre.

"The Marriage Market," a Columbia Pictures production boasting one of the finest all-star casts in filmdom and penetrating to the very core of the marriage problem, is the photoplay coming to the Liberty Theatre today for a two-days run.

Headed by Jack Mulhall, that sterling actor, and Pauline Garon, a comparative newcomer to the screen who won her laurels in a recent de Mille production, the all-star cast embraces such able actors and actresses as Alice Lake, Shannon Day, Jean De Briac, Mayme Kelso, Vera Lewis, Willard Louis, Kate Lester and Marc [illegible].

"The Marriage Market," written by Evelyn Campbell, is a superb treatise on modern marriage. The author contends that marriage is a market in which the prettiest face and form and the most charming personality gets the highest price. The story centres around an attractive young girl who is sent to a fashionable "finishing school" to be prepared for marriage—but because of her impulsive nature is hurled into a series of entanglements and barely escapes in time to prevent burning her fingers.

BERLINER CLOSE RIVER BATHS

BERLIN, July 15.—Contamination of the water of the River Spree by the ever-growing traffic is given as the reason for closing [illegible] open-air bathing establishments along the stream. The places were regularly patronized last summer by 120,000 Berliners, to whom the closing proves a disappointment.

L. L. WIMBERLY SELLS BUSINESS TO STOREY ILES

Storey Iles, well known druggist of this city, today bought the business of Lester L. Wimberly, drugs, toilet goods and confections, adjoining the lobby of the Hotel Umpqua. Mr. Iles will continue the business in the same location, assisted by Mrs. Iles, who is also experienced in general drug store clerical work. Mr. Wimberly the retiring owner, has no business plans for the future, but he will probably continue to reside in this city.

Originally Mr. Iles planned to engage in the drug business in Roseburg in partnership with Dr. F. W. Haynes, formerly of the U. S. land office in this city, but this idea had to be abandoned because of inability to secure a suitable location. The thorough acquaintance of Mr. and Mrs. Iles with the line of business which he has just acquired insures a continuance of the profitable patronage which Mr. Wimberly has enjoyed ever since he established the store.

WORKMEN BUSY TODAY REMOVING OLD LANDMARK

Workmen are today tearing down the first business building built in Roseburg south of Oak street. The building is located on Rose street, just off Cass, directly in the rear of the News-Review building. This wooden structure was erected in 1876 by Photographer Oakes, and was the first business building in the block between Oak and Cass streets, on Jackson. At that time it was considerably out of the business district, which centered around Washington and Jackson streets. During the same year a livery stable, which was later destroyed by fire, was built where the Roseburg National Bank now stands, and a year later I. Abraham constructed the first masonry building in the block where the Umpqua hotel is now located.

The building built by Mr. Oakes was used by him as a photograph gallery and residence for 20 years, after which it was sold and used as a grocery store.

Mr. A. C. Marsters moved it to its present location, when he constructed the building in which the News-Review is now located, and in late years the structure has been used for storage purposes by the Roseburg Furniture company.

The space which the building now occupies, is to be filled by a modern, reinforced concrete garage.

POULTRY MEETING AT CORVALLIS ON JULY 22, 23 AND 24

The county agent's office has been informed that a convention of Oregon poultry producers will be held at Corvallis on July 22, 23 and 24. A program has been prepared that will include as speakers a number of the leading poultry producers of the United States.

"Poultry producers of Oregon are now favored by a recent law which provides for the appointment of a veterinarian who will be in charge of poultry disease investigations," says B. W. Coesey. "Douglas county representatives worked for the enactment of this law and are to be commended for their work.

"Poultry diseases in this county are responsible for the loss of thousands of dollars annually. Heretofore no service was available. The new appointee is Dr. W. T. Johnson. Dr. Johnson is one of the foremost investigators of poultry disease in the United States. Dr. Johnson desires to meet poultrymen from every section of the state and receive their disease problems.

"Every phase of the poultry industry will receive consideration at this convention. The county agent desires very much to have a letter from county poultrymen signifying their intention of attending this convention. Transportation can be arranged for a party of three or four who do not have cars. Some poultrymen will be unable to attend so the next logical move will be to send the wife. In any case a good representation should be there from Douglas county to talk turkey.

"Poultry and poultry products in this county represent a money return each year of more than $600,000.00. This figure would indicate that we are in the business in no small way."

BIRD BATH WILL BE INSTALLED ON LIBRARY GROUNDS

A spacious, concrete bird bath is soon to be installed on the city library grounds, thanks to the generous donation of such a utility by F. E. Warner, a cement contractor of this city. The bath is an ornate specimen of Mr. Warner's handicraft, and it will fill a big need at the grounds. The trees and shrubbery on the place are the homes of scores of birds and a daily visiting place for hundreds of others. That the bath receptacle will be liberally patronized by the feathered multitude is a cerainty and it is not too much to hope that they will appreciae the convenience as much as the city is thankful for the liberality and public spirit of its donor.

SECRETARY JARDINE TO TAKE VACATION

WASHINGTON, July 15.—Secretary Jardine has postponed his plans for an immediate return to Washington and has gone to Wisconsin for a rest.

Although his general health is not considered to be impaired, the secretary has not fully recovered from an attack of indigestion suffered during his recent six weeks tour of the west.

For several years the secretary has been the victim of a digestive disorder and at times has been forced practically to live on a diet of milk. The strain of travel and his vigorous activities including feats of horsemanship during the trip, taxed his strength. His associates believe that after a brief rest, he will be prepared to resume his departemental duties. The secretatry expects to go to Swampscott soon to discuss the agricultural situation with President Coolidge.

AUSTRALIAN MAORIS TRACE RACE ANCESTRY TO HAWAII

HONONLULU, July 15.—Many of the Maoris of Australia consider that their race had its origin in Hawaii centuries ago, it has been revealed by Ratina Jakoba, a prominent Maori. He is here with a group of Mormon church workers from Australia to visit the famous Mormon temple at Laie, Oahu.

Jakoba said that he had traced his ancestry back to a chieftain named Hema, who ruled the island of Hawaii. After a devastating war in which Hema was defeated badly and forced to flee from the island or his life he and a few companions set sail for the south in huge war canoes. Maori legends have it that they landed in New Zealand and lived there or several years. Later Hema returned to Hawaii, where the residents worshipped him as their supreme being. They had a large temple in the Puna district of Hawaii but later turned to the worship of other gods. Hema returned to New Zealand and many people accompanied him. He also took the image of Io.

Pele, the Hawaiian goddess of fire, became displeased with the Hawaiians, who were worshipping many idols, and vented her anger by covering their lands and temple with lava, the legends say. This would account for the ancient lava flows from Mauna Kea and Mauna Loa.

Jakoba said the Maoris had established the names of the canoes in which their ancestors went from Hawaii to New Zealand.

SWEDISH FLEET TO ENGAGE IN MANEUVERS IN BALTIC

STOCKHOLM, July 15.—As a preliminary to plans for reorganizing the navy, there will be held in the Baltic this summer the most extensive Swedish naval maneuvers since 1914. The king will be in command.

The Swedish fleet at present consists of 111 vessels, of which 42 belong to the coast defense; 37 to local units and 32 to the reserve, included in the main fleet, designed entirely for defensive purposes, are 12 battleships, 10 destroyers, one armored cruiser and a number of torpedo boats and submarines.

In view of the impending reorganization, appropriations for this year were limited to the continuation of the building program decided upon last year. The future policy will depend partly on the political developments abroad and partly on the experience to be gained during the maneuvers.

RUSSIA EXPECTS BAKU OIL FIELDS TO INCREASE YIELD

BAKU, July 15.—On the occasion of the fifth anniversary of the nationalization of the Baku oil fields, the Soviet press gave some details of the present state and productivity of the oil fields and outlined the program of their future development.

The Baku oil fields, which before the revolution belonged to 270 different owners, are now united under one management. The yield of oil which in 1920 was as low as 10,000,000 poods a month, has now been brought up to nearly 20,000,000 poods, which is approximately the pre-war standard. There are now in exploitation 21,000 wells.

Last year Russia exported from Baku 32,000,000 poods of oil. It is expected that during the coming year not less than 340,000,000 will be obtained.

New equipment and machinery were bought in America this year, and the methods of obtaining oil have been entirely revolutionized.

At present the government is embarking upon a costly program of building an additional oil pipe line connecting Baku with Batum, on which it will spend more than $10,000,000. Part of the order for pipes is expected to be placed abroad, probably in America. The scheme will be financed by the State Oil Trust itself without any subsidy from the government.

BEAUTY SPECIALISTS MUST HAVE LICENSE

It will be a violation of the law to engage in hair dressing, facial massage or skin treatment after July 31, 1925, without a state license. The office of the state board of health is receiving applications and it is absolutely necessary that all operators file at an early date. Anyone who has been actively engaged in cosmetic therapy six months prior to July 31, 1925, will be entitled to a license by exemption. Those applying at once can receive a license without an examination. All those applying after July 31, 1925, will be required to take an examination. Applications should be made directly to the Secretary of the State Board of Cosmetic Therapy, 301 Fitzpatrick Building, Portland, Oregon.

It is estimated that there are over two thousand cosmeticians operating in this state. To properly take care of the licensing thereof means a great deal of work and it will therefore be well to get applications in at as early a date as possible. No cosmetician will be allowed to operate after July 31, 1925, without a license.

SIGNS INSTALLED

At each entrance to the city the state highway commission has installed signs directing visiting motorists to register their cars at the Chamber of Commerce office. The Chamber of Commerce has been designated by the state as one of the points of registration for foreign owned cars, under the terms of the state law, and special attention will be directed at that fact by the newly erected signs, which were installed at the request of the local Chamber of Commerce.
