LOCAL WOMAN WINS PRIZE

Mrs. F. D. Owens, of Roseburg, was the recipient this week of a check for ten dollars from the Roseburg Stove Co., of Portland, given by this firm as first prize in a contest conducted by them. Several prizes were offered to owners of Charter Oak cooking stoves, the awards being made on the basis of the length of continuous service given by the stoves.

Having used the same Charter Oak for 34 years continuously, since 1891, Mrs. Owens qualified for first prize. The next longest record was that of Mrs. D. McCarty, 595 N. Main St., Ashland, who has used her Charter Oak continuously for 33 years and nine months.

MOM WOULD'N' IT BE SWEET IF GRANMA BAXTER WOULD ASK YOU TO SPEND A VACATION AT HER HOUSE THIS SUMMER?

WHY, DEAR, THAT'S IMPOSSIBLE.

LIKE FUN IT'S IMPOSSIBLE! YOU'D GO WOULD'N' YOU, MOM?

I DON'T KNOW THERE ISN'T MUCH CHANCE BEING INVITED, YOU SEE GRANMA AND GRANDMA BAXTER OBJECTED TO DADDY AND I MARRIVING.

SO WHEN WE ELOPED THEY BECAME VERY ANGRY AND HAVE REFUSED TO SEE OR SPEAK TO US SINCE.

GEE, I DONE IT NOW!

FRENCH CASUALTIES ON RIFFIAN FRONTIER DECLARED GREAT

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
 PARIS, July 17.—Determined to checkmate Abd-el-Krim in his efforts to establish himself as Sultan in Fez, the French government is throwing one of its strongest pieces into the game in the person of Marshal Petain, who commanded the French armies during the latter part of the world war.

The Marshal left last night for Toulouse planning to go thence by airplane to Rabat, the seat of the French governor-general of Morocco.

"We must try to give confidence to the troops who have been fighting without respite for many weeks, and who have accomplished a super-human feat," he said.

Reinforcements are arriving, an army corps, by the Oranes frontier toward Taza and an uninterrupted stream of effectives by way of Casa Blanca.

PARIS, July 17.—Total French casualties so far in the Moroccan war with Abd-el-Krim the Riffians are given by the Petit Journal in a Fez despatch at 4,148. Of these 707 were killed, 2,775 wounded and 666 missing.

French authorities estimate Abd-el-Krim has not more than 39 French prisoners. Therefore, those technically listed missing are regarded as dead.

These are the official detailed figures published of French casualties. Premier Painleve after his recent return from Morocco, assured the Chamber of Deputies, French losses were not as great, but he avoided giving figures.

The Petit Journal's Fez correspondent says Abd-el-Krim has so reduced the French effectives in Morocco that they are daily becoming less efficient. French troops because their numbers are insufficient are compelled to be in the fighting line constantly, with no rest periods whatever. They are carrying on under terrific heat and the correspondent insists it is imperative that they be relieved soon. He demands additional aviation units and says the present French bombing planes in Morocco have a radius of only 18 miles over the enemy lines, and that pursuit planes are badly needed.

The correspondent declares German aviators are fighting with Abd-el-Krim. One, he says, is named Von Dietrich, a former member of General Von Hindenburg's staff. He advocates the bombardment of Adzir, Abd-el-Krim's headquarters, by the Spanish fleet or by French airplanes.

The correspondent insists that the French to use active methods of warfare against the Riffians—meaning the destruction of property and confiscation of harvests, the penalizing of tribes who do not assist the French and the talking of hostages from tribes whose fidelity wavers.

He says Abd-el-Krim took 200 hostages from the Beni Zerguel clan, shot half of them and inflicted a loss of 2,000,000 francs on the tribe in addition to the confiscation of its goods.

The writer says Marshal Lyautey French action commander in Morocco has "seen the necessity of this procedure," and that he is organizing a force to put it into practice.

OREGON EDITORS TO DISCUSS IMPROVING NEWSPAPERS IN MEET

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
 GRANT'S PASS, Ore., July 17.—Better newspapers is the general theme of the discussion outlined for the summer meeting of the Oregon State Editorial Association which opens here today. The editorial side of the newspaper establishment is featured in the program, to the exclusion of business problems.

The morning session today was devoted to the reports of the officers, including that of President Hal Hoes, the report of the secretary and a report by the University of Oregon on a survey of advertising rates.

Thomas Nelson, of the Junction City Times, will open the afternoon program with a talk on "better newspapers." Frank Jenkins, of the Reelster, Eugene, will speak upon the question, "Is it possible to minimize crime news and yet publish a successful newspaper?" Robert Ruhl, of the Mail-Tribune, Medford, is to lead the discussion.

Charles D. Foster, editor and publisher of the Lewis county Advocate, of Chehalis, Wash., will talk on "Peace can be sold to the world through advertising."

Mrs. Kate W. Jameson, dean of women at Oregon Agricultural College, will tell the editors what should be the attitude of the newspaper towards the flapper, and the jazz and other things that have to do with the flapper.

Paul Cowles, superintendent of the Western division of The Associated Press, will talk on "gathering the news of the world."

The quality of English used in news writing is the subject of Professor C. J. McIntosh, Dr. E. T. Hodge, professor of geology, of the University of Oregon, will talk on Oregon's position in the great Pacific earthquake belt. Will H. Evans, of the Morning Democrat, Baker, Ore., will talk on "newspapers must be free from publicity." The annual banquet will be held tonight and tomorrow will be devoted to a trip to the Oregon Caves.

A BRIDE'S DIARY

A Love Story of Today
 By Idah McGlone Gibson

MRS. MELBOURNE, FRIEND.
 Cleo Madison elopes with Lieut. Paul Armstrong, U. S. A. It does not take Cleo long to discover marriage is not a pain of roses. In the train, going to the army post, she has an allegorical dream indicating her future problems.

The colonel, Arthur (illegible) son of the post, is a "lady killer" and his actions have compromised Rita Thordike, wife of a reputable lieutenant. Rita is innocent and Cleo forms an immediate and deep friendship for her. Rita, at Cleo's invitation, decides to leave the post and join a vaudeville troupe under the name of Rhoda Thordison. Paul has been having his troubles, chiefly liquor and gambling. Cleo refuses to be gossipy sympathizer. The post is agog with gossip and suspicion when Rita leaves and the colonel implores Cleo to give him information—unsuccessfully. At opportune moments Cleo reads from her grandmother's diary for renewed courage. She also decides that the women at the post are pretty caty.

"Great Scotland and the British Isles!" I said as I closed the door behind me. "I never expect to see you in time of peace would be like this. It is the most exciting place anyone could dream of."

After the Colonel left I think all the women in the place called on me, one after the other. They were consumed with curiosity and all of them dropped some little piece of gossip about poor Rita. However, and I took great pleasure in bringing the conversation around to the subject of vague curiosity and gossip. I explained to them that I thought it was about the same in this day and age as when my great-grandmother lived.

Then I read them from grandmother's diary to let them know that men were the same in her time as they are now. First came dear Mrs. Melbourne. First came in a guarded way that I would surely be inundated with calls, but not to let them "get my goat." Of course she didn't say it just like that, but it was what she meant. I told her not to worry, that I would keep perfectly quiet and say nothing.

"That's right, my dear child. I for one do not care how Rita should be got away. If she only did get away, I'm sure she should have gone sooner. It would have saved her a lot of unhappiness. I have taken myself to task that I did not pay her a snuff attention as I should. When you write her, will you tell her this?"

"Then you think, do you, Mrs. Melbourne, that I helped Rita to escape from here?"

"I don't think anything about it, child. I know. I saw John and then I saw with what elaborate strategy you two children took the street car, going separately and each trying to look unconcerned, but instead you looked like two stage conspirators who were about to commit murder."

"Oh, yes, Mrs. Melbourne, tell what you saw, will you?"

"It was on the verge of going insane and I couldn't let her suffer."

"The only fault I have to find with you, Cleo," he said, "is that you didn't let me help you and you can make up your mind that I am glad that Rita is away from it all."

"I'm not going to ask any questions for I don't want to know anything about it. Everyone knows how much I like you and after I leave here today, they will come around and ask me all about it and I want to be able to tell them that I do not know anything about it, but just let me tell you that I hope sincerely she has not gone to join her husband."

"I'm going to tell you this much, Mrs. Melbourne. Rita Thordike has shed her husband, her name, and everything of the old life and is going to try and begin all over again. I hope I have made that beginning possible for her. It is the first real responsible kindness that I have ever done in all my pleasure loving life, and, dear Mrs. Melbourne, I believe it has helped me much more than it has Rita."

My visitor impulsively put her arm around my neck. "After this she has just told me that the young women of today are unfeeling and selfish. I believe that they are more helpful to each other and more resourceful than they were when I was a girl."

"I must get to town now. I only ran in for a moment. I just want to tell you that now that

BRITISH QUEEN PAYS VISIT TO HOSPITAL

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
 LONDON, July 17.—Queen Mary added several devotees to her list of admirers yesterday when the Salvation Army's maternity hospital in the east end of London.

In one ward were a number of unmarried mothers, who, though aware of the queen's visit, did not expect her to take notice of their presence. The unexpected, however, happened, her majesty expressing a special desire to see them.

The Queen went to the bedside of each woman and won their affections by her kindly words of praise for their babies.

GOVERNMENT WILL TAKE HAND IN COAL SITUATION, STATED

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
 SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 17.—The government will take a hand in the anthracite coal field wage negotiations should an agreement not be reached and a strike called on September 1. The program which the government will pursue in the event of a strike was discussed at a three-hour conference here today by President Coolidge and Secretary Davis. The specific plan of the government was not disclosed. Secretary Davis ventured no opinion as to the outcome of the wage negotiations now under way. He pointed out, however, that the department of labor, through two mediators, was keeping in close touch with the discussion of the operators and the miners and was hoping that an agreement would be reached before the present wage contracts expire on August 31.

HORSES ARE READY FOR HARD TRIP UP NORTH UMPQUA

Owing to the fact that the forest service horses which had been counted upon for the trip up the North Umpqua starting tomorrow, were required in handling supplies and equipment for the Grassy Ranch fire, it became necessary today to obtain another string of animals to transport the party. G. DeBorardt, at the request of the Roseburg Chamber of Commerce, gathered enough horses together at his ranch today to convey all of the members of the party and their equipment, and will have every thing ready at the end of the road on Saturday morning, and will personally accompany the excursionists to aid them in establishing their camp. The plans so far have met with the best of success, and a great deal of interest and enthusiasm is being shown.
