SUTHERLIN CANNERY WILL BE STARTED WITHIN A FEW DAYS

The Sun is pleased to announce that arrangements have been made whereby Frank J. Norton will again operate the local cannery, and he expects to have everything in shape to start operations by August first, says the Sutherland Sun.

Mr. Norton has been negotiating with the Oregon Growers Association for some time for a lease of the building, but the association was desirous of selling the property owing to the fact that it was out of the fruit packing business, hence did not care to lease.

Arrangements were finally made, however, whereby Mr. Norton was able to lease the property for the present season, and within a short time much activity can be looked for at the local plant.

The first crop to be handled will be blackberries, which will be ready to harvest by the end of the present month.

Pears, prunes and apples will follow, and it is probable that the plant will be in operation until the close of the year. Mr. Norton has not yet decided whether he will handle green prunes again this year or not. He is investigating the present situation with a view of reaching some decision in the matter.

The local cannery has proved a big asset to Sutherland in the way of providing a good pay roll, and it is a matter of much satisfaction to know that it is to operate again this season.

The Terminal Garage has the most complete stock of piston rings in town.

RULE ON LABELING "CRUSHED FRUIT" FOR SODA FOUNTAIN

Fruit from which the juice has been abstracted in part should not be labeled "Crushed Fruit" or with other similar designations unless the name is immediately followed by an equally conspicuous declaration that juice has been abstracted, according to a recent ruling by the officials of the bureau of chemistry, United States Department of Agriculture, who are charged with the enforcement of the federal food and drug act. The ruling states also that sugar and artificial color.

CROPS OVER STATE ARE REPORTED GOOD

(Associated Press Local Wire.)
PORTLAND, July 20.—Crop growing conditions in central and eastern Oregon have been reported by agents of the O. W. R. & N. lines to H. E. Lounsbury, the system's general freight agent, as follows:

Hood River—Soil contains sufficient moisture for all crops, which are progressing nicely. The Dalles—Threshing will be in full swing next week. No change in estimates of wheat yield or of soft fruits. Test cars of cantaloupes will be sent to Chicago and Montana markets about August 1 with view to developing markets there.

Madras—Soil and pasture are in good condition. Grain ripening nicely and harvesting will start soon.

Bend—Crops are in fine condition.

Moro—Soil is getting very dry and pasture has dried up. Livestock is in good condition, but none is in sight for shipment. Conditions in some wheat fields good while in others very bad on account of recent hot weather.

Grant valley—Wheat is very dry, but pasture is good. Livestock in first rate condition. Prospects are that there will be better than an average crop of grain.

Condon—Soil and pastures too dry. Livestock is in good condition and moving to market. Wheat and barley damaged 30 to 50 per cent.

Pendleton—Wheat harvesting has commenced. Due to extremely high temperature the past few weeks wheat has ripened too fast, resulting in slight shrinkage of kernel, which will reduce early estimate of Umatilla county's crop 5 to 10 per cent. Quality of wheat is hard and good for milling, bringing $1.25 to $1.35 a bushel.

La Grande—Weather has been clear and warm, but not detrimental to ripening wheat. Cherries will not be more than 40 per cent of normal yield.

Imbler—Soil is in good condition with plenty of moisture for growing crops, livestock is in good condition, all being grazed. Wheat will show 15 to 20 per cent increase over last year's yield. All crops looking well, especially apples.

Enterprise—Farmers busy haying; yield heavy. Spring grain growing fine. Pasture land and livestock in good condition.

Haines—Wheat indicates good crop. Pasture is fair and livestock in good condition. Hay will yield as much as last year.

Baker—Pasture and soil in good condition. Wheat crop indications very good.

Excellent hay crop. Only national brand parts are carried at the Terminal Garage. You are sure of a quality article when you purchase your automobile parts there.

THEATRES

Antlers Theatre
Comedy, action and romance are ingeniously combined in "Old Home Week," the new Paramount production starring Thomas Meighan, which opened last night at the Antlers Theatre, also tonight and Tuesday.

"Old Home Week" is something more than merely a vehicle for the exploitation of Mr. Meighan's magnetic personality and undeniable histrionic ability. It is a graphic representation of the small town in all its glory.

The story, which was scenarized by Tom Geraghty, is an original one devised by George Ade, famed American humorist. It strikes out along brand new lines, develops a host of delightful complications, sweeps along to an exciting climax and finally winds up in a blaze of love and glory.

Mr. Meighan scores a distinct personal triumph in the part of the small town youth, who poses as a wealthy oil man. His performance is natural, sincere and tremendously human because he has taken the role and made it his own.

Majestic Theatre.
The Paramount picture, "Salome of the Tenements," produced by Sidney Olcott from the popular novel by Anzia Yezierska, author of "Hungry Heavens," is the feature at the Majestic today and Tuesday.

Olcott's picturization of court life in France and England during the reign of Louis XV in "Monsieur Beaucaire" made the characters of that story as interesting as the lives of outstanding personalities of our own day.

In filming "Salome of the Tenements," he has captured the flavor of many-sided New York, and transferred it to the screen with the fidelity and imagination of an artist.

The featured players move through scenes that include New York's Ghetto slums, a fashionable Fifth Avenue modiste shop. The rigid conventionalities of the East Side settlement house and the staid and gloomy mansion on Madison Avenue of a millionaire philanthropist, a little Russian cafe and dingy newspaper office are additional points in this story of an unusually beautiful girl who rises from waifs to wealth.

Liberty Theatre
An intriguing little strong story that is so real it might easily have happened to you or to me, brilliant acting, fine setting, and one of the best all round casts seen in a motion picture in many a day, are a few of the distinguishing marks that set "Innocence" above the average motion picture.

We advise all lovers of good film drama to go to the Liberty theatre to see this picture tomorrow and Wednesday.

"Innocence" is a film version of Lewis Allen Browne's story, "Circumstances Alter Divorce Cases," and it has found excellent screenability. There is, in this reviewer's opinion, a great deal to be said for motion pictures based upon printed stories, for they seem to have a continuity of theme that is not always found in stories written originally for the screen—that is, if such printed stories are given intelligent filming. In this case this feat has been accomplished. The producers have been wise enough to give their screen version of the story the same well balanced sense of values that made the printed story so popular, and Mr. Browne may well be proud of "Innocence."

A BRIDE'S DIARY

A Love Story of Today
By Idah McGlone Gibson

MRS. MELBOURNE, FRIEND.
Cleo Madison elopes with Lieut. Paul Armstrong, U. S. A. It does not take Cleo long to discover marriage is not a path of roses. On the train, going to the army post, she has an allegorical dream indicating her future problems. The colonel, Arthur Blazy, besides, of the post, is a "lucky kisser" and his actions have compromised Rita Moradine, wife of a reputable lieutenant. Rita is innocent and Cleo forms an immediate and deep friendship for her. Rita, at Cleo's suggestion, decides to leave the post and join a vaudeville troupe under the name of Rheda Thorwaldson. Paul has been having his troubles, quietly liquor and gambling. Cleo returns to be gaspingly sympathetic. The post is agog with gossip and suspicion when Rita leaves and the colonel implores Cleo to give him information—unsuccessfully. At opportune moments Cleo reads from her grandmother's diary for renewed courage. She also decides that the women at the post are pretty catly.

But Mrs. Melbourne is a real friend. When some officers' wives call on her Cleo again reads from her grandmother's diary—about gossip.

MORE THOUGHTS OF GRANDMA
I laid down my grandmother's diary for I thought Lieutenant Doring's wife looked rather bored. But she insisted that I should go on. "I am sure the rest of it will be very interesting," she said. And I proceeded to read:

In a few minutes Thomas said he must get ready to go back to the office. "He said he needed a handkerchief from upstairs and would I go up and get it for him. For once I asserted myself, however, and told him that I was very tired and that his handkerchiefs were in the right-hand corner of the left-hand drawer. He went rather sullenly, and when he came back Hannah asked him if he would drive her home as she had to get back in time to help her mother with some quilting before supper."

Soon after they had both gone a neighbor came in and abruptly said to me that she thought I was a fool to let Hannah barton pull the wool over my eyes, that everyone in town was talking of Thomas and her.

After this pleasant snail she left me and I found out afterwards she spread such a tale about my jealousy of Thomas and Hannah that it finally got to him.

He has not been speaking to me for a month now, not since he heard that I had said something derogatory to Hannah. I had not done so, but my neighbor had put into my mouth all the ugly things she had told me herself.

I had never seen Thomas so angry as the night he came home and told me this. He said that to stop the gossip I must give a party for Hannah immediately.

This I refused to do for I knew that I could not go through with it. I give him my condition as an excuse for not entertaining anyone.

Dear, dear diary, I could not have that false friend in my house. I did not have the strength either mentally or morally to stand up before the gossips in the town and while my neighbor was breaking bread and everything was all right among the three of us.

Since my refusal Thomas has been home very little and when he is here he pays no more attention to me than he does to the servants—not as much, for he will ask them to do him some courtesy or favor.

Hannah has left town. I wonder if Thomas is with her tonight. He told me this morning that he had business away and would not probably be home until tomorrow. My daily prayer is that when the time comes for my travail, God will take both me and my baby to him.

How can it be possible that a man can love a woman as Thomas did me when we were first married and hate her, after she has done her duty by him and born him seven children? Thomas hates me now.

Oh God, please God, let me die!

Mrs. Doring was really very much interested in my grandmother's diary and when I stopped at this place she asked me if my grandmother died when her child was born.

"Not right at the moment," I answered. "She lived about two

ARMY PLANES START COAST TEST FLIGHT

(Associated Press Local Wire.)
MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., July 20.—Six army pursuit planes commanded by Major Thomas G. Lampher left Selfridge Field this morning for the Pacific coast. The purpose of the flight is to test the value of the air mail route for national defense.

Following the schedule approved by Major-General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the army air service, the ships were due to arrive at Maywood, west Chicago at 7-15, where they were to take off for Omaha, Neb., after refueling and inspection.

The second day is to find the best air routes and the high way, says the Glendale News. Mr. Dyer had gone to a neighbor's ranch, where a party of tourists traveling in three automobiles, noticed smoke coming from the roof of the Dyer home. They immediately stopped and went into the house and asked Mrs. Dyer if the house was afire, that being the first she knew of the fact. Sparks from the fire had set fire to the roof, and a large hole had been burned in this place, while fire from there had lodged in the roof of a lean-to. The ladies of the party handled the pump, while the men formed a bucket brigade and the blaze was soon under control.

While the damage to the roof was slight, the interior was damaged considerably by water and smoke. Had it not been for the timely arrival of the tourists the home would have been burned to the ground. The loss was covered by insurance.

WORKING ON ROAD

A fine improvement is being made on the road north of Dixonville. The county court recently appropriated a large sum of money for the Dixonville-Glide road, and it is planned to do considerable work during the year. Directly out of Dixonville the road is being widened, a complete new roadbed being built. For a distance of about a mile beyond the surface has been scarified and scraped and will soon be in good condition. Where the work is being done, the road is now quite rough, but will be put in thorough shape within a week or ten days, it is expected.
