WANTS $15,000 FOR STOLEN AFFECTIONS OF HIS JUNE BRIDE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
PORTLAND, July 21.—Justin A. Dawley today filed suit for $15,000 damages against Thomas B. Coffelt, alleging that Coffelt stole the affections of Dawley's wife four days after Dawley was married. The complaint states that Dawley married his bride July 1 at Vancouver, Washington. By July 5, the complaint states, Coffelt had so won the affections of Mrs. Dawley that she went to live with him. Coffelt won her, Dawley alleges, by telling her that he (Dawley) had two wives in the east and by promises to deed property to her if she would leave her husband. On July 19, the complaint says, Dawley won his bride back, but lost her again on July 14.

THAW WILL OPPOSE SUIT TO RECOVER GIFT OF GRANDMA

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
NEW YORK, July 21.—Lawrence C. Thaw, sued by his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Conley Thaw, for the return of a "gift" of $500,000 declared void, the legal action had been instituted by others and he would oppose it to the utmost. "The gift, which my grandmother made to me in January was made voluntarily," Mr. Thaw today in a statement said to the Associated Press, "and was transmitted to me by a deed of gift, witnessed by her own attorney and secretary in Hillsburgh."

U. S. TELEPHONE LINES REACH MEXICAN RESORT

American telephone users can call up friends or business associates at the popular resort of Tijuana, Mexico, under an arrangement recently entered into by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph company for the connection of its telephone toll lines with the Tijuana exchange. The point of connection is at the international boundary, one mile north of Tijuana, and about fifteen miles south of San Diego, California. Tijuana is famous as a pleasure resort much patronized by Americans who motor across the border from southern California. The new telephone line will undoubtedly be popular with these pleasure seekers, particularly during the racing season when the Mexican resort attracts large crowds from the United States.

MARKETS

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
PORTLAND, July 21.—The local berry season is about ended. A few blackberries offered at $2.50 per crate, but supplies are exhausted of other varieties and huckleberries have not come in. Peaches are more plentiful in the market this week with the arrival of the first Elbarans from California. The Southern Crawford crop is gone already. Tomato supplies are much more generous and prices are off about one third from last week with The Dalles boxes selling for $22.25. Butter and egg prices were unchanged at the dairy exchange session yesterday. Receipts were light in both lines. There was a good demand for butter, but the call for eggs was hampered by the poor quality of many of the receipts. There was a general downward movement of prices in the milked market this morning. Milked ton to $19 and $15 respectively. Rolled barley was reduced 13 and rolled oats $2 a ton. KLAMATH BOOZE SELLERS FOUND GUILTY TODAY

Medford Jury Convicts Two Men of Selling Liquor Last June.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
MEDFORD, July 21.—B. J. Hodges and R. Dawson, of Klamath Falls, in a sealed verdict opened this morning by the court, were found guilty of possession of possession of liquor. Their wives, tried as co-defendants, were acquitted. This is the third conviction in a week for the two men. The trials grew out of a raid on "The Hut," a candy store located near Camp Jackson during the National Guard encampment in June.

SENTENCES HEAVY

Following the verdict, Judge C. M. Thomas sentenced Dawson and Hodges to state prison, the county jail and payment of fines. On the conviction of selling liquor while armed, both were given terms of three years in the penitentiary. This is a felony, and thought to be the first conviction and sentence in the state under the law passed by the last legislature prohibiting the carrying and bootlegging, as alleged crimes.

Terms in County Jail, State Prison and Fines Dealt to Violators—Wives Are Acquitted.

For transportation and possession of liquor, both received sentences of six months in the county jail, and fines of $500. The two men received their sentences without a show of emotion, but their two young wives broke down and wept. T. Eddy, local junk dealer, aged 60 years, convicted of a statutory offense involving a 10-year-old Gold Hill girl, was sentenced to 20 years in the state prison. Eddy, before the sentence, told the court he was innocent and bowed his head and trembled when the fateful words were spoken from the bench. The court in reply to the plea of Eddy, said he had no alternative under the law, but to impose the judgment. Eddy is well known in this city and Gold Hill, where he formerly operated a movie.

the consumers' organizations they will be obliged to operate their own stores in competition. The purpose of the farmer-consumer is to raise the price paid to growers and lower the prices to consumers. This they say can be accomplished by eliminating the several middle profits and expenses. They claim that lower prices to the farmer will increase consumption and better conditions generally. RUSSIAN CAPITAL MOST AFFECTED BY REVOLUTION

LENNINGRAD, July 20.—No city in Russia has been more profoundly affected by the revolution and its aftermath than Leningrad, the old capital. Once the "heart" of Russia, as Moscow was its "heart" the old St. Petersburg seems even to have lost its intellectual supremacy and its artistic prestige. The city is merely a decaying monument of the past. The removal of the capital to Moscow would inevitably have spelled Leningrad's doom as a political center, but the metropolis which Peter the Great built more than 200 years ago has greatly deteriorated in other respects. Most of its great public buildings and private mansions are falling into ruin for lack of money with which to repair them. All the fine foreign embassy buildings, including that formerly occupied by the Americans, show the ravages of time, weather and neglect. The Winter Palace, the Admiralty, all the elegant edifices along the Neva, the palaces of the nobles, wear a dull, drab dress as if mourning for the past. The population has decreased from 1,600,000 to 650,000. The foreign visitor expresses wonder how even this reduced number can support themselves, for the city has few industries, and there is much unemployment. The business life of the city is confined almost entirely to halting retail trade. The famous Nevsky Prospect, the "Broadway" of Leningrad, is only a ghost of its former splendor, gayety and picturesqueness. The small retail stores, bazaars, arcades, confectioners, emporiums and bookshops, that once made the broad thoroughfare vie with Fifth avenue in New York, have given place to unattractive co-operative and state stores, cheap cinema theaters, and communist centers. All credit, however, must be given to the Bolsheviks for having, on their slender means, kept the public museums, picture galleries, parks and other places up to their former standards. As in the days of the Czars, the Hermitage Fine Arts Museum retains its place as one of the finest in all Europe. Its collection of Rembrandt, Van Dyck, Murillo, Velasquez, Snyders and Wouwerman paintings is said to be superior to that of the Metropolitan Museum in New York.

The Bolsheviks appear to have shown the same indifference and lack of sentiment toward Leningrad as a political center as the Turks have manifested toward Constantinople. In removing the seat of government from Leningrad to Moscow, the Bolsheviks, like the Turkish Nationalists, who transferred their capital to Ankara, were actuated by reasons of security. They believed the site which Peter the Great chose for the national capital on the shores of the Gulf of Finland exposed them too much to the danger of foreign attack. There was nothing, they said, to prevent any of the European navies from sweeping across the Baltic Sea and the Gulf of Finland and invading Russia's shores. Moreover, there are few railroad highways out of Leningrad in the event of foreign attack, while in Moscow there are many convenient exits if the Government should ever be pressed to leave the capital in a hurry. Moscow is 400 miles inland from the nearest body of water to which a foreign foe would have access which gives the Bolsheviks immunity from foreign incursion.
