THEATRES

Liberty Theatre. Seldom has the adaptation of a great stage success proved a picturesque success to such an extent as to the case of "Smooth as Satin" is giving a picture more than worthy of its fine origin. Colorful atmosphere, thrills, characterization, and the human element with which Miss Brent is somehow able to invest all of her picturesque interpretations are interlarded with comedy and sentiment in such a manner that even the scattering few who do not like "crook" stories can not fail to enjoy this picture. The direction of Ralph Ince is again much in evidence in the power, directness and punch of the production. The supporting cast is fine, and all-in-all the star's latest vehicle is an exceptionally interesting feature from an entertainment viewpoint.

Antlers Theatre. Universal Pictures Corporation obtained a "corner" on some of the screen's finest character artists when it selected the cast to support Reginald Denny, star in "Oh, Doctor!" Universal Jewel coming to the Antlers Theatre next Sunday and Monday. The picture is the screen version of the celebrated Saturday Evening Post serial of the same name, written by Harry Leon Wilson, and was directed by Harry Pollard who directed Denny in "Sporting Youth," "The Reckless Age," and the first series of "The Leather Pushers."

"Oh, Doctor!" is the story of a young man who, since childhood had been codded and nursed and made to believe that only by the greatest care could he live. Through a series of humorous events the story emphasizes the manner of life he leads.

An aunt who has little patience with his fears endeavors to restore him to a normal condition of mind. Then comes the necessity of borrowing money enough to permit him to remain in luxury and to die in luxury. He will inherit a considerable fortune if he lives three years and after three old physicians have been convinced by specialists that he has nothing the matter with him, other than his mental attitude.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Fullerton, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Bates and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schwartz are among the Roseburg people who will spend the week end at Idleyld.

LONG PILGRIMAGE TO ROME MADE AFOOT BY MOTHER AND CHILDREN

ROME, July 25.—(A. P.)—Thousands of devout Catholics have made Holy year pilgrimages to Rome, but few have come in the manner in which the word truly connotes. One such, however, has been completed by Luisa Cruces, a Spanish woman living in Morocco, with her three children, whose ages are seven, four and two years. Senora Cruces left Morocco with her little brood on December 9, 1924, and they made practically the whole journey on foot. They started with 25 pesetas in their possession, and throughout the trip they had no other means of support, except from the sale of picture postcards showing their photograph. For the most part they slept on the grass under the stars or along the sand beaches, but occasionally they were taken in by kind people along their route.

They have received the special Holy Year benediction from Pope Pius XI.

LITTLE BILL PLAYS IN FINE FORM TODAY

SKOKIE COUNTRY CLUB, Glencoe, Ill., July 25.—William M. Johnston of San Francisco, the little "Bill" of tennis, swept aside the fighting but futile efforts of Wray Brown of St. Louis to enter the finals of the Illinois state tournament today winning 7-5, 6-4, 7-5.

Brown's playing, which has been the pronounced sensation of the tournaments, providing two upsets, proved of little avail against the crushing devastating drive off Johnston's forehead, his accurate and deadly net game and his strategy on the court.

W. T. Tilden and Howard Kinsey went on the court for their semifinal match.

DANE CRITICIZES GOVERNMENT FOR PRIVILEGE TO MacMILLAN

COPENHAGEN, July 25.—The Danish explorer, Peter Freuchen, launches a violent newspaper attack on the Danish government for permitting the American explorer, MacMillan, to search the ruins of Viking homesteads in Greenland on terms liberto refused to highly reputed Danish explorers.

Freuchen winds up his attack by saying that while Amundsen remained unharmed from, any attempt at saving him—even by MacMillan—might have been tolerated, but now that Amundsen is safe there is no reason to grant MacMillan any facilities.

Warrant Issued.—A warrant was issued today for the arrest of Joseph, Eben and Arthur Mode, who are charged with operating a car for hire without the proper license.

Back From Nebraska.—Mr. and Mrs. Dan Egly returned yesterday from a two month's visit at their old home at Sutton, Neb. Egly farmed near that place for 31 years, but his final preference both as a farming and residence location is Roseburg, after a five-year period.

POETS' CORNER

Signed Contributions for This Department May Be Sent to the Society Editor of The News-Review, and Will Be Used as Space is Available.

The following original poem was read at the annual picnic of the Yoncalla Study club at Boswell Springs recently:

Again the glowing season brings,
The annual meet at Boswell Springs;
Our cares and troubles all forgot,
We sense the beauty of this spot.

Some can make a flowery speech,
In figures far beyond your reach,
Others give a grand oration,
About the troubles of our nation,
While I must lapse in jingling rhyme.

So, in this world we're going through,
Something there is for all to do;
The wisest man of all his race,
Is he, who finds and keeps his place.

After a long and weary chase,
I found at last my rightful place,
My destined place and true vocation,
Yoncalla for my inspiration.

This it was, and hence these rhymes,
Touching "the morals of the times".

I hear not to the colts, nor shall I
Go far afield beyond Yoncalla,
No need to go to foreign land—
Romance enough is here at hand.

Daily, in this sylvan grove,
Some native tells his tale of love,
In that out on yonder hill,
Is born a bard whose song will thrill.

A wondering world—down this stream,
Some future Caesar dreams his dream,
The history of our early days
Is fitting theme for poet lays.

But I must clip my muse's wings,
And tune my harp to mumber things,
Fly not so wild, but come to rest
At home upon the Eagle's Nest.

One time our ladies were selected—
To all our offices elected,
They told Old Nick and kept him down—
Their fame reached far beyond the town.

Alas! how brief is love's dominion,
Depending on the mob's opinion—
Unstable as the melting snows,
A prey to every wind that blows.

Old Nick scraped from out his den
And collapsed round among the men,
In some such way it came about,
That men went in and women out.

Oh! ladies if you only knew,
The crafty schemes Old Nick can brew,
When deep lab plots dark and unjust
To capture every place of trust,
You cannot hope to win the prize.

Unless you strongly organize,
The only way to meet and match
The schemes that politicians hatch—
And so, to usher in the hour
When women have their share of power.

Woman in strength and wisdom grown—
The Woman comes into her own.

OUT IN THE GOLDEN WEST
By Abigail Rees Johnston
Out in the beautiful golden west,
Where wild flowers grow and bird-
ings nest;

Where mountains, and rivers, and valleys and glens
Vie with each other, and Nature blends
All in one glorious acme of rest
Out in the golden west.

Out where the roseate morning breaks
On valleys green, and mirrored lakes;
On orchard, and woodland, and valley, and glade

The green and gold are softly laid,
And God from His storehouse gives
His best
Out in the golden west.

Out where the radiant sunsets fall
On mountain crag and canyon wall;
Where wind and hail and frost and snow
Pass gently by in the evening glow
And the shades of night bring peace and rest
Out in the golden west.

Out where the evening shadows lay
On ocean blue and created wave;
Where the moonbeams dance and the fireflies glow
In God's out-of-doors, where all things grow;
Where the cuckoo sleeps in his
dowry nest
Out in the golden west.

What are the wild waves saying?
Sh! don't tell your secret to me,
The waves were o'er your bare,
bleak shore
Like a dull headache to me.

The rough rocks tower above thee,
The prowling gulls o'er you fly,
And the song they sing, in the cold fog rings
As the stinging brine leaps by.

No hope of the part so enduring,
No life in the future so great;
As the cold, bleak chill of thy rest less will
From this briny waves dull ache.

I sit so lonely beside thee,
I wonder along thy shore,
As the day drifts past, in a dull
gray mawk
Oh! for the sun once more.

YELLOW BEADED GOWNS WITH FLARES ARE BEAUTIFULLY BECOMING TO BLONDES

AMBER, GOLD, & GOLDEN BEARDS. GRETA NISSEN IN YELLOW & GOLD. BLACK SATIN TRIMMED IN SHADED PAILLETTE.

FOR many, many years—as far back as one can remember reading about blondes have been told to dress in light blue, a color thought to lend the proper contrast to their yellow hair. Then, perhaps a light green, or certain shades of pink, were second and third choices. But the loveliest shade for a blond to wear wasn't recommended. Why, one does not know. It simply wasn't thought of. And if it were, it was dismissed from the mind as soon as it entered it. And that color is—Yellow.

Blue may be all right, so may green or lavender or pink. But yellow on a blond is divine. There is no other color that so well brings out the amber beauty of a blond better than yellow, or some tone of near shade to it. Greta Nissen has found this out, and is seen in the photo wearing a corn-puffed colored chiffon gown trimmed in gilt, tortoise and amber beads. Long chains of amber circle her neck and wrist. Golden slippers adorned her feet, and sheer gold colored stockings show beneath her dress. Her hair is the mellow, yellow, very fair blond of northern women. In her golden yellow gown she is as sparkling and lovely to look upon as a glass of bubbling, so champagne? And it is this she sustains in the new Paramount picture, "In the Name of Love."

The beaded gown of this type is to be seen in the fall models. Two adaptations from French beaded gowns by Martial et Armand are seen in the two sketches at either side of the photo. The first is an amber georgette trimmed in golden beads, with flare at the bottom just dripping with drops of gold bangles. The second gown is of black satin, aglitter with paillette's of black, shaded through greys to white. The flare appears again in this model. Purses make ideal dance skirts; straight-lined tops make ideal and smart dinner frocks—and the combination of the two makes an ideal gown for whatever an evening may offer in dining or dancing. A gown filling all social needs.
