BRYAN'S BREATH WITH WILSON IS DISCUSSED

Many Versions of Difference Between Former President and Secretary Told.

WAR ISSUES BLAMED

Commoner's Speeches Indicate Cause of Resignation From Cabinet Was Opposing Notes.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Many conflicting stories bearing on the break between William Jennings Bryan and Woodrow Wilson have gained currency since the death of the commoner and most of them have served to accentuate the differences which arose between the two over the negotiations which preceded American entry into the World War.

It was apparent at the time that their disagreements on questions of policy were very far reaching, going beneath the surface of the submarine note to Germany which Mr. Wilson prepared and which Mr. Bryan refused to sign.

Although the former never publicly went into these differences at length, the latter on many occasions on the platform and in public statements indicated his disagreement with many features of the Wilson foreign policy.

Mr. Bryan's letter of resignation, written on June 8, 1915, revealed directly the specific incident over which he came to a parting of the ways with his chief. He wrote:

"Obedient to your sense of duty and actuated by the highest motives, you have prepared for transmission to the German government a note which I cannot join without violating what I deem to be an obligation to my country.

"I therefore, respectfully tender my resignation."

In a statement on the following day the retiring secretary called attention to this statement, and then recited at length the difficulties that had arisen, but indicated that others were in the background.

It was apparent that the handling of the submarine question with Austria also had been a matter of disagreement and one of Mr. Bryan's friends in a statement issued yesterday in Portland, Oregon, declared that to have been the real cause of the break. Other friends of the dead man here also asserted that Austrian relations had much to do with Mr. Bryan's resignation, although all agreed that the submarine policies in general rather than any one particular incident brought the whole disagreement to a head.

There is no doubt that Mr. Bryan and Mr. Wilson also differed seriously at times over questions of federal patronage. In his three campaigns for the presidency the commoner had gathered about him a circle of friends whom a desire to see appointed to office when at last the party came into power, and some of his recommendations did not receive the attention he thought they deserved.

A certain amount of friction also arose by virtue of Mr. Wilson's close personal supervision over the affairs of the state department. More than one of the important diplomatic notes of the war period was first written by the president on his own typewriter. It was not unusual for him to make revisions on notes

Jealousy Over Artists' Model Is Cause of Youth Killing Three In Burst of Gunplay Yesterday

RICHMOND, Va., July 29.—His jealousy for Mrs. Vivian Tomlin Peery, former artist's model, caused Rudolph E. Disse, 18, to kill her and two men and seriously wound another man in a sudden burst of gunplay yesterday, the youth confessed to police.

Detective Sergeant J. Harvey Burke, who died last night as the third victim, was one of the two men whom Disse said he shot because he was afraid they would frustrate his purpose of killing G. Carter, the other victim and his supposed rival after he had shot Mrs. Peery. Willis Britt, who was seriously wounded, was a stranger to the others and had simply volunteered to take Mrs. Peery, Disse and Burke in his automobile when they were leaving police court. Mrs. Peery had been arraigned on

Sec. Wilbur Prays Over Navy Officer

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) SAN DIEGO, Cal., July 29.—While Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the navy, was inspecting the naval hospital here yesterday, word was brought that a naval officer, who was seriously ill, wished to speak to him.

Commander Edward S. Stalnaker, who was on duty at Washington prior to coming to San Diego, was the officer. Secretary Wilbur excused himself and went into the sick room and before he left offered a fervent prayer in behalf of this officer.

Friends were expressing their appreciation of the act of the secretary when Mrs. Wilbur said:

"Yes, Curtis firmly believes in prayer and he was only too glad to have the privilege of petitioning his Lord and Savior that Commander Stalnaker's life might be spared."

A high officer in commenting upon the incident, said:

"The questions of preparedness and peace are in safe hands when we have such a God-fearing man as Curtis Wilbur at the head of our navy."

Regarding the recent charges made in Germany concerning his amateur status and that of his companion, Loren Murchison, Paddock told the Associated Press he felt it was unnecessary to answer the German charges, as he had not violated amateur rules.

"Immediately upon our return to the United States, Murchison and I will give the American Athletic Union a complete report," declared Paddock. "We have in no way violated either our own or international rules."

Paddock sails on the Arable Saturday from New York. He will not compete again this year.

charges made by Disse and the latter was in court on charges by Carter that he had threatened him. Both cases were continued and as the two left court Burke arrested Disse on a bed check charge. He accompanied them with Britt when Mrs. Peery said she wanted to get some clothes at Disse's home.

Remaining in the car as the others stepped to the sidewalk Disse suddenly whipped out a pistol, and without warning shot down the woman and the two men.

Rushing in the car to a restaurant owned by Carter, Disse started a crowd there by bursting through the door and brandishing the revolver.

Before Carter had warning, witnesses said, he was shot through the heart by Disse. Disse was captured by a traffic policeman.

MEN ACCUSED OF MOVIE RANSOM PLOT ON STAND

Trio Charged of Planning to Kidnap Mary Pickford Tell of Treatment.

CONFESSIONS FORCED

Say Detectives Used Cruelty to Force Admission of a Plan to Hold Famous Movie Star Captive.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) LOS ANGELES, July 29.—A bitter legal fight with the defense scoring heavily over the prosecution, marked the resumption of the trial here today of three men accused of plotting to kidnap Mary Pickford, film star.

The trio is composed of Adrian Wood, Claude Holcomb and C. Z. Stephens.

Today the defense succeeded in having excluded from the testimony a so-called confession made by Holcomb after his arrest which he declared on the stand yesterday had been forced from him by advanced third degree methods of violence.

Holcomb sat in the witness chair again today and reiterated his charges that "police officers had beaten him up" to force him to confess.

He also said that he had been arrested May 30, and that he had been kept in the city jail until June 12, several days after his case had been transferred to the superior court, and when he should have been under the custody of county authorities.

The prisoner was placed on the stand early at the very frequent interruptions of the "voir dire" law, under which an accused man is permitted to offer testimony along the lines given by Holcomb.

Wood followed his fellow defendant to the stand with the declaration that detectives had offered to obtain his release on probation if he would make a confession. This proposal, Wood said, was put forward by Harry Raymond, a private detective now engaged in that business with George K. Home, former chief of detectives of Los Angeles. It was Home who informed Douglas Fairbanks of the alleged plot to kidnap the latter's wife.

Wood testified that G. P. Mayer, Los Angeles city detective, was also present when Raymond made the proposition.

Mayer and Raymond were next called to the stand by the prosecution and entered denials in the court record that they ever used coercion, violence or held out hopes of immunity to the men for the alleged confessions.

Deputy District Attorney H. S. G. McCartney, conducting the prosecution, announced that Mary Pickford may be called to the stand late today.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 29.—A large crowd of film fans were on hand early at the court house here today where three men are on trial charged with conspiring to kidnap Mary Pickford and hold her for $200,000 ransom. The scramble for seats started when the district attorney announced that the actress might be called to tell what she knows of the alleged attempt to kidnap her.

It was not entirely definite that she will be called, but the district attorney said she was ready. The bombshell thrown into the proceedings late yesterday when the defense called C. A. Holcomb, one of the defendants, to the stand to testify that he had been beaten into making a statement to detectives, threw the testimony out of order, the district attorney said.

The defense attorneys said they expected today to offer further proof that C. Z. Stephens and Adrian Wood, the other defendants, suffered at the hands of the officers when they refused to make a statement after their arrest. Several newspapermen are on the witness roll to substantiate these charges, the attorneys said.

An investigation of the case was opened by the coroner.

GEORGIA INITIATES EVOLUTION STATUTE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) ATLANTA, Ga., July 29.—An amendment designed to prohibit the teaching of evolution in the common public schools of Georgia today was voted down overwhelmingly by the state house of representatives.

The amendment so provides that any educational institution receiving funds from the state which permits the teaching of evolution, shall be cut off from further aid from the treasury.

Since the amendment was offered to the common school section of the general appropriations bill, it would not affect the higher educational institutions of the state if adopted.

ALANTA, Ga., July 29.—Teaching of evolution in Georgia schools would be prohibited under provision of an amendment offered in the house of representatives today.

The amendment was offered to the general appropriations bill now before the house, and would provide that any teacher who taught a theory of the origin of man in contradiction to the Bible's account, could not receive a salary from the common school appropriation.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) TORONTO, Ont., July 29.—Once again the Canadian open golf championship to be decided on the Lambeau course here tomorrow and Friday by 7-hole medal play, appears lost to Canada.

Thirty Americans, including the greatest of the professionals, carrying so many titles that it would be almost impossible to enumerate them, are ready with polished irons to seek the title won by Leo Diegel a year ago and Diegel is here to defend it.

Willie MacFarlane, American open champion, and Walter Hansen, champion, at one time or another holder of about every title in golfing, appear to hold the center of the stage. There is the youthful Johnny Farrell, always near the top. Gene Sarazen, returned to power by his marvelous play in the American open and the Metropolitan championship which he won, is considered sure to be among the leaders.

TWINS WILL HAVE ONE PART IN PLAY

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) OMAHA, Neb., July 29.—Because they look so much alike and are of the same ability, both in the classroom and on the school stage, Cora and Jenn Laverty, 16-year old Omaha twins, will alternate in the lead of the class play to be given by South high school August 5.

EXPANSION DIAMOND LAKE EGG TAKING STATION IS URGED

PORTLAND, July 29.—Diamond lake offers facilities for the development of one of the best fish culture stations in the country, according to Dr. Henry B. Ward, consulting expert of the United States bureau of fisheries, who returned yesterday from a visit to the station. Dr. Ward, who has been engaged by the state game commission to make a study of conditions affecting fish life in the streams of Oregon, declares the recent losses in eggs at Diamond lake due to natural causes and to conditions which will be obviated when the men in charge become more accustomed to the "Alpine" location.

The short creek location at the head of the lake is ideal for the hatching of trout eggs, he said. The temperature of the water is 35 degrees and the food supply is good. Dr. Ward urges an expansion of the station.

EXPECT 2,000 CARS BROCCOLI TO BE SHIPPED

Over Five Thousand Acres Being Planted This Year Is Estimate.

WEATHER IS FACTOR

Amount and Quality of Crop Depends Largely on Severity of Winter Weather.

If the elements do not conspire against the Umpqua valley during the ensuing nine months, Douglas county will have a broccoli crop, conservatively valued at one million dollars. Plantings, it is roughly estimated, will amount to approximately 5000 acres, which under average conditions would give 2,000 carloads.

Figures at the present time, of course, are only guesswork, but from the indications now to be found throughout the county, it is quite evident that the average this year will be the heaviest in the history of the industry.

Myrtle Creek and Riddle, where the crop was at its best during the past season, will plant heavily again this season. Riddle reports 1,200 acres, while Myrtle Creek has between 700 and 800 acres, and Canyonville, nearby, also will have a large crop.

In the Riddle and Winston districts the growers are going back into the industry on a larger scale than ever before, in spite of the heavy losses of the past winter, when the crop was almost entirely killed by the freeze.

Roseburg growers likewise are planting heavily, and on the Curry tracts, alone, it is reported that approximately 200 or 250 acres are being set out.

Last year's plantings were in excess of 4,000 acres. Many new growers are setting out plants this year, and some of the experienced growers are extending their acreage.

The increased plantings indicate one important fact. The broccoli industry is at last established on a permanent basis and is no longer an experiment.

For the past ten years the industry has been growing. At first there were only a few carloads. The acreage grew until there were nearly 100 cars. Then came a bad year and the pessimistic declared that the experiment was a failure, (Continued on page 3.)

ANCESTRY OF WILLIAM J. BRYAN IS TRACED BACK TO IRISH CAPTAIN WHO FOUGHT AGAINST WILLIAM OF ORANGE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) NEW YORK, July 29.—The ancestry of William Jennings Bryan has been traced to William O'Brien, a captain in King James' Irish army in the war against William of Orange.

Michael J. O'Brien, historiographer of the American-Irish historical society today told how 18 years ago he had traced the O'Brien genealogy directly as far back as 1689 and showed that there was a possibility the commoner was descended from Brian Boru, an eleventh century Irish King.

Mr. O'Brien said the name O'Brien was changed to Brian and subsequently to Bryan after the removal of one of the family to Culpeper county, Va., from North Carolina, where Captain O'Brien first settled.

Chas. Bryan May Take Up Ape Conflict

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) CRESTON, Iowa, July 29.—Congress eventually will be called upon to take stand in the evolution controversy, Charles W. Bryan, brother of William Jennings Bryan, said, when he passed through Creston last night, enroute to Washington to attend his famous brother's funeral.

Mr. Bryan indicated he was deeply interested in the cause for which the great commoner made his last fight, and that he might be active in carrying on the work of his dead brother.

"The people of the United States," he said, "are becoming aroused to the real issue in the conflict between religion and evolution.

"Several states already have passed laws prohibiting the teaching of evolution and more will soon follow suit.

"Eventually congress will be forced to meet this problem.

"My brother studied the theory of evolution for 10 years and his heart and soul were in the fight against it. My sympathies were with him in his last great fight down in Tennessee."

SALMON PRICE WAR AWAITS INJUNCTION

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) MARSHFIELD, Ore., July 29.—Contenting factions in the salmon price war were today awaiting a hearing on a petition for an injunction against outside fishing interests on the Rogue river sought by J. G. Johnson, attorney for the Roderick L. MacLeay fisheries at Gold Beach. The attorney asks that the outside interests be restrained from trespassing upon the property of the MacLeay estate and interfering with business. The hearing will be at Gold Beach tomorrow.

The injunction suit is the outgrowth of the price war on the Rogue river caused by outside fishermen coming into the river, resulting in a big increase in price. Last night salmon had reached 18 cents a pound, the highest ever paid here.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) BEND, Ore., July 29.—Of sixty-seven fires so far reported from the Deschutes National Forest this season only nine have been man-caused, according to H. L. Plumb, forest supervisor, whose headquarters are in Bend. The others were caused by lightning, 30 having resulted from the last electric storm.

Most of the man-caused fires were set by fishermen, but only one arrest and conviction has resulted from the nine different instances, Plumb said. This one was at East Lake and covered an area of three acres.

COMMONER'S BODY STARTS LAST JOURNEY

Funeral Car Leaves Dayton in Night, Taking Bryan to Resting Place.

THOUSANDS GATHER

People Line Tracks and File Through Car to View Dead Figure—Last Rites to Be Held Friday.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 29.—The Bryan funeral party arrived in Chattanooga at 10:15, central standard time. The public was admitted to the special Pullman, where in single file they viewed the remains of the dead statesman.

A crowd estimated at about 1500 persons pressed against the iron barrier of the station as the train from Dayton pulled in. Captain W. L. Baker, of the Chattanooga police, restrained the eager throng and his men formed in double lines to expedite the orderly review.

In single file men and women, with a few children, passed into the car where the statesman lay and looked into the metal casket where the peaceful leader's countenance was seen. They moved on without halting, leaving the coach at the other entrance.

Flowers, the tributes of patriotic and civic organizations, were brought and placed within the compartment where the body reposed. Room was lacking to hold them all.

The widow remained in her seat in the rear section of the Pullman part of the car. Her face showed the strain of the sorrowful burden which she has resolutely sustained.

During the trip from Dayton, Mrs. Bryan sat in her section, the one nearest the flag-draped casket. She maintained her composure so remarked upon by her associates since the death of her husband.

The resting place of the commoner was beset with flowers. A truck load has been conveyed to the train at Dayton in addition to the wreaths which filled the carriage.

Employees of the Southern railway along the tracks traversed by the funeral train suspended their work as the train passed and stood with uncovered heads.

The car with the growing passenger was transferred here to the last Southern train which would reach Washington early Thursday after stops in Knoxville, Bristol, Roanoke and Lynchburg.

Conductor G. W. Mitchell of Knoxville was in charge of the train which drew the funeral car northward.

Mr. Mitchell for four winters has been a member of Mr. Bryan's Sunday school class in the Presbyterian Church in Miami.

"Everybody loved him," Mr. Mitchell said. "He was the greatest speaker that ever lived, and I believe he was right."

J. G. Collette, flagman, has known Mr. Bryan for 20 years, he said. He, too, had been during three winters a member of the commoner's Sunday school class in Miami.

"I differed from Mr. Bryan in politics," said the flagman on the funeral train, "but we know that he was a truly great man. If what his Sunday school pupils think of him is true, he certainly has without doubt passed to his happy home."

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) NEW YORK, July 29.—The ancestry of William Jennings Bryan has been traced to William O'Brien, a captain in King James' Irish army in the war against William of Orange.
