INTERNATIONAL AIR RACES TO BE HELD AT MITCHELL FIELD

International air races will be held this year at Mitchell Field, Long Island, on October 8, 9 and 10th. The army air service will be eligible to enter four events, these being the Pulitzer trophy, the Mitchell trophy (for pursuit type planes); the observation (Liberty engine builders trophy), and the Bombardment (Detroit News Air Transport trophy) races.

It is contemplated that in the last three events only military entries will be accepted, although so far no information has been received as to whether or not the navy will participate in any race other than the Pulitzer trophy.

The Pulitzer trophy race is flown over a 200 kilometer (124.7 miles) triangular course, requiring four laps of 50 kilometers each. There have already been received twenty three applications from air service officers for entry in this particular event.

The races are held under the auspices of the national aeronautic association, the arrangement of details for this year's events being made by an organization founded in News York and known as the New York 1925 Air Races, Inc.

LEGION ENDOWMENT FUND $3,000,000

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 30.—More than $3,000,000 has been raised for The American Legion endowment fund for disabled veterans and orphans of the World War, according to an announcement made here today by National Commander James A. Drain, of the Legion.

Twenty-one states are reported "over the top." Oklahoma is the latest to reach its quota, with a total of $75,000.

During the past month $1,000,000 has been reported raised to national headquarters here.

Meantime, the campaign is moving forward with all speed. New Hampshire continues to lead the nation in percentage of oversubscription of quota. It registered a 200 per cent oversubscription. As reports continue to come in from North and South Dakota, those states are pressing that record closely.

Minnesota is the latest of the states to join the $100,000 class. Reports from out-state during the past week showed that total, with the campaign yet to be held in the larger cities. Ohio had reached the $100,000 class the week previous.

Organization work started this week in Iowa and Michigan, two of the last states in the Union to be organized. Preparations are being made to conduct the active campaign in Michigan the latter part of August and the first of September and in Iowa in September.

Eighty-four California towns have been added to those "over the top" for the fund. Twelve towns have raised more than 200 per cent of their quotas. Winters and Fellows raised 300 per cent of their quotas and Cotati something over 700 per cent. Oakland has raised more than its quota, with a total of $35,000. Pasadena and Berkeley have done the same, Pasadena with more than $10,000 and Berkeley with almost that amount.

The campaign is under way in Los Angeles. Arrangements are completed for the San Francisco drive. Santa Barbara had raised its quota before the earthquake.

Flights were made over St. Louis by Captain Charles Nungesser in the interest of the fund. He expressed his desire to do "everything he could for his American comrades."

William T. Tilden, II, tennis champion, has promised to play an exhibition match for the fund at Newark, New Jersey. The date has not yet been announced.

SHOT OF HOOTCH WAS HIS DOWNFALL

EUGENE, Ore., July 30.—A drink of moonshine liquor proffered by newly made "friends" resulted in the loss to R. E. Balfour of Cottage Grove of his money, watch, pocket knife and hat here last night. About $19 in change and a gold watch were the heaviest losers, he said.

The victim came here Tuesday and stayed at a rooming house where he met the "friends." Yesterday evening they went out to look at some property they said was for sale, and they produced the bottle of moonshine. It was stronger than Balfour thought, he told the police, and while he was under its influence he was robbed.

One of the robbers was an Italian, one a Canadian and the third a Scandinavian, he said.

A BRIDE'S DIARY

A Love Story of Today

By Idah McGlone Gibson

Cleo Madison, entertaining friends, reads from her grandmother's diary. The flapper friends are thunderstruck by its quaintness and suppressed desires. Soon after Cleo elopes with her boyhood sweetheart, Lieutenant Paul Armstrong, U. S. A. Cleo's parents wished her to marry wealthy Chick Adams; so did Chick. Paul's parents wished him to marry the rich and willing Connie Terhune. Cleo begins to learn that marriage is not a path of roses almost at once. The young couple departs for the army post. On the train Cleo has an allegorical dream indicating the problems she will have to face. On arriving, undomestic Cleo is able to serve tea to the "lady killer" colonel, through the help of Johnson, a striker. Col. Beldon has become involved in compromising circumstances with Rita Thorndyke. Rita is innocent; her husband is a crook. Rita secretly leaves the post to join a vaudeville troupe, a job which Cleo gets for her. Cleo's domestic life proceeds rockily onward, largely due to Paul's passion for gambling and lack of understanding.

While downtown one afternoon Cleo thinks she sees her roadster which her father was to ship to her, being driven by two gamblers.

She has a chance dinner with the colonel.

Unknown to Cleo, Paul has sold her roadster to the gamblers to satisfy a gambling debt.

For this act Cleo threatens to leave Paul.

RESTITUTION, OR ANOTHER CRIME?

With a few final choice remarks I left the room and locked myself in my own and then I laughed hysterically, for there had not been one night since we reached the Post that I hadn't done this little act.

"I don't like being married. I don't like being married." I repeated the words between sobs as I fairly tore off my clothes and got into bed. But I could not sleep. I found myself listening, listening again and again for Paul's feet on the stairs. But I listened in vain. And I did not hear Paul come up to bed.

I heard him the next morning, however, calling to Johnson to bring up a cup of hot coffee, and I heard Johnson ask: "Will Mrs. Armstrong have one, too?"

"I don't know. You had better ask her."

I lay very still. I didn't intend Paul should know I was awake. After he had left the house and I had heard Johnson go out the back door, before parade began, I crawled down and made myself a cup of coffee.

"What shall I do?" I asked myself. "How shall I begin?" I hadn't a friend in the Post that I could confide in. I was in the same condition that Rita had been in. The only person that I could by any possibility confide in, was Col. Beldon. I wanted someone to suggest a lawyer, but I knew that after last night and my open quarrel with Paul on the street that every eye was turned that morning on my front door and I knew that I would be watched all the day.

My surmises were all too true, for I had hardly gotten into my sportsuit when Mrs. Ralston came in.

"Did you hear the noise on the street last night, Mrs. Armstrong?" she asked.

"I didn't hear a thing. I was down town until rather late."

"It was a wonder that you and your husband did not run into them—the couple, I mean.

"At first, you will forgive me, dear, if I tell you that for just a moment I thought that it might be you and your husband. (I know that young people very often have spats before they adjust themselves to married life.) However, I found that this could not be for I must confess I was curious enough to run around here to ask you if you had heard the fracas.

"Your windows were unshaded—you really must draw the shades of your room, my dear, anyone can see all that you do. Last night it was a good thing that they were unshaded, for it convinced me that everything was going along swimmingly with you two children.

"I am always glad to know that young married people are starting off right. As I glanced into your brilliantly lighted living room I found your husband leaning against the mantlepiece of your imitation grate smoking a cigarette.

"He was looking into the dining room where you evidently were, for he was talking."

I smiled. At that moment I was very grateful that Paul had the bad habit of talking to himself. It made such a nice alibi for us both.

"You are sure you did not see those two young people?" Mrs. Ralston again asked with a keen look.

"Quite sure," I answered calmly, although I knew that the gossipy lady did not believe a word I said and she knew that I knew that she did not believe me. However, I contrived to keep a perfectly stony face.

"Your husband went away early this mornin," Mrs. Ralston persisted.

"Yes." The monosyllable seemed to make her angry, for she said:

"You are not very talkative this morning, Mrs. Armstrong. What is the matter?"

"Nothing, my dear Mrs. Ralston, nothing. I expect I am not talkative because I have nothing to say."

"Well, as you are busy, I must go," she announced, and not waiting for me to even proffer the politely hypocritical regrets which I might have possibly hesitated a little over—she flounced out.

She had hardly gone when Paul called me up. "What do you think? What do you think Cleo?" he said. "I've got some wonderful news for you and when I tell it to you, you'll be very sorry for all the things you said to me last night."

"Will I?"

"You bet you will."

I did not answer.

"Can't you guess what it is? I've bought back your roadster, Cleo. Why do you not say something? Aren't you glad?"

"I'm not sure yet. I will be glad or sorry according to where you got the money."

"Cleo, you know very well that there is only one person of whom I could get the money."

"Then I'm not only not glad, but I'll never ride in the car again. As far as I am concerned, Paul, the car is yours."

LOOK OUT FOR SELF POISONING

Neglect of the liver results in self-poisoning! Not so quickly, perhaps, but just as surely as if you drank poison out of a bottle. If your liver is not doing its work of helping digestion, eliminating waste from the bowels and purifying the blood, you will always be troubled with sick headaches, nausea, biliousness, bad breath, gas, sour stomach, or constipation.

Cleanse and tone your liver! Put your system in condition so you feel your very best again! Try just a spoonful of Dr. H. F. Thacher's excellent Liver and Blood Syrup after the next few meals and notice the quick improvement in the way you eat, sleep, look and feel—the return of strength, vigor and energy. You will be completely satisfied; otherwise there will be no cost. Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup is sold and recommended by Nathan Fullerton, Roseburg, Ore. Drain Pharmacy, Drain, Oregon.

TROUT DIVE 1,500 FEET DOWN GIANT CATARACT FROM LAKE TO LAKE.

GLACIER PARK, Mont., July 29.—Connected in high water periods by a water fall that drops 1,500 feet over a sheer wall are two oddly situated lakes, Ellen Wilson and Little St. Mary's in Glacier National Park, Montana.

The upper lake was named for the first wife of Woodrow Wilson. It was stocked with rainbow trout a couple of years ago and occasionally schools of these fish are seen tumbling down this giant cataract safely making the "high dive" into the seething waters of Little St. Mary's, much to the amazement of watching tourists.

EMPLOYMENT PEAK IS HOLDING STEADY

PORTLAND, July 29.—(Special)—Employment which two weeks ago reached the high peak of the year in the Pacific Northwest is holding steady and there is even a shortage of help in a few districts, according to reports from 4L employment service offices in various northwestern cities received at 4L headquarters here today. The labor shortage is reported from the Inland Empire.

Reports from the various 4L offices are as follows:

Marshfield, Ore., — Employment conditions in the Coos Bay district are good. All resident labor is employed. Activity continues in building, highway construction and the government jetty work, with quarries for jetty fills in full swing. Coal mines are working at capacity and the dairy industry is using a large force of men. Logging is at 60 per cent and lumbering at 85 per cent of capacity.

Portland—Logging along the Columbia river and in adjacent districts is at 60 per cent of capacity. Seventy-two out of a total of 121 sides, including both mill and independent operations, are running. Six Portland sawmills are down. Three of these have been down for periods varying from two months to over a year, two are closed for repairs and one for rebuilding because of fire. There are plenty of jobs on employment boards here to care for all men in this city who want work. The Natron Cut-off continues to require many replacements and several hundred fire fighters were hired for nearby districts during the week.

Raymond, Wash.—All sawmills on Willapa Harbar except the Hart Wood are operating. The Lemah river camps have resumed logging but logging operations on the Milwaukee are still down. There is a slight surplus of common labor on Willapa Harbor.

Aberdeen-Hoquiam — Logging in Grays Harbor district is now 65 per cent of capacity. Thirty-two operations with a total of 52 sides are operating and are employing a total of 3600 men. All sawmills in this district are cutting; six Aberdeen and Hoquiam plants are operating two shifts and one is running three shifts. Railroad maintenance, highway work, and city construction and building continue active. There are but few jobs being offered here and there are but few men seeking work.

Tacoma—With 44 out of a total of 73 sides operating, logging in the Tacoma district is at present 55 per cent of capacity. Lumber production is close to 100 per cent of one-shift capacity in this city and most of the outside mills are sawing. There is almost no surplus of common labor here and a scarcity of some kinds of skilled help was noted last week.

Seattle—Logging in the Puget Sound districts is 65 per cent of capacity and close to 4000 men are at work in the camps, not including more than 800 who are employed in truck logging. Practically all sawmills in Seattle, Everett, Bellingham and nearby towns are operating. There are few unemployed in Seattle. The wheat harvest in the Inland Empire has called many men from this district and the migration continues.

Spokane—A continued shortage of labor was noted in Spokane last week. More than 1500 men are fighting forest fires and demands for help from farmers have increased. Railroads have many crews doing track maintenance work. There are calls for miners from the Wallace districts. The Winton Lumber company is operating eight camps and practically all woods operations in the Inland Empire either are running or are fighting fire. Experienced woods help is extremely scarce. All large sawmills are cutting. The Blackwell, Coeur d'Alene, will add a night shift August 3, it is reported. The usual quota of loafers who are unwilling to work is in evidence here in spite of the fact that seasonal orders for short time jobs call for a large number of men daily.

Cook with gas.

REXALL STORE WILL HAVE NEW MODERN FOUNTAIN.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Fullerton and W. F. Chapman, left this morning for Portland to visit and attend to business matters for a few days. Mr. Fullerton, while away, will place an order for a new 12-foot Frigid-Air soda fountain, one of the most complete pieces of equipment manufactured. This fountain will maintain four temperatures by automatic control, and will have capacity for ten gallons of brick ice cream. It will also permit the handling of two kinds of sherbet and four kinds of ice cream for counter service. All liquids are kept just above the freezing points, doing away with the necessity of maintaining a quantity of chipped ice about the fountain. It also freezes its own ice.

DANCE AT TILLER

Saturday night, Aug. 1. Good music and a fine time for all. Come and bring your friends.

Perfume special—A distinctive summer odor. Bring your bottle with you or we can supply you with a small one for your purse. Lloyd Crocker.
