MOVIE SCREEN IS AIM OF THOUSANDS FEW ARE CHOSEN

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., August 1. Varied types are included in the many thousands of men, women and youths who come here each year seeking careers in the motion picture. Few ever reach stardom.

Estimates compiled recently revealed that since 1917 more than 150,000 persons registered with screen employment agencies on the Pacific Coast. Today the list of those steadily employed numbers little more than 10,000. Therefore, some 130,000 failed to find a footing on the stepping-stone to cinematic fame.

Statistics obtained from film labor bureaus here and in Los Angeles show that 200 bald-headed men, whose principal job on screen fame is their lack of hair, and 100 one-legged men, who believe that they should be in the pictures because they have but one limb, are registered. On the list of these agencies also are listed 200 professional and non-professional gamblers, 12 musketeers, glass eaters and sword swallowers.

So great is the desire of persons to get into the pictures that in an hour's time counterparts of all famous men of the past, enough cowboys to stock a rodeo or sailors sufficient to man a ship can be brought together. In a day's time 9,000 persons for a movie scene or 1,200 women for a ballroom can be assembled.

The wage scale at a majority of the studios is similar. Extras for most scenes, who are taken irrespective of age, size, or nationality, receive an average of $3 a day. Hand picked extras of approximately the same size, similar features and color of eyes are paid $5. Character extras, those who are "camera wise" including women extras and young men who possess complete wardrobes, are paid $7.50 a day. Young women in afternoon and evening gowns, capable of giving proper "atmosphere" to gatherings of the elite, are given $10.

A scrubwoman is paid $7.50 for a few minutes work before the camera. A stunt man is paid $15.00 to drive a motorcycle at forty-five miles an hour into a racing car. Swimmers are given $100 to dive 100 feet into the sea and a rider $400 to "tail" a horse over a cliff into a mountain stream. An ex-prostitute earns from $25 to $100 to give and take, bare-fisted, in a scrap of a few minutes duration and a juggler receives as high as $200 for showing his tricks in a circus side-show scene.

Sixty per cent of the thousands of persons registered at the film employment offices are women. The greatest number of individual girls are girls and young women seeking employment in ballroom scenes and similar work. Many who are listed possess wardrobes as elaborate as any owned by a millionaire's daughter.

A BRIDE'S DIARY

A Love Story of Today
By Idah McGlone, Gibson

The Story So Far.
Cleo Madison, after eloping with her boyhood sweetheart, Lieutenant Paul Armstrong, goes to his army post and she finds married life is not too rosy. There is much intrigue at the post. Rita Thorne, niece of a no-good lieutenant, flies from the post after much gossip about her and Col. Haskely Borden. Cleo helps Rita and resolves not to let her own name become the subject of gossip. Paul exhibits a passion for gambling; loses $500 to the Colonel one night, pays, and loses $500 to a pair of cheap gamblers the next night. He is broke and gives the gamblers his wife's car in settlement of the debt. Cleo is furious; the Colonel wants to help and Paul is somewhat sulky.

"AN OFFER REFUSED."
Hastily I looked out of the window and saw the Colonel coming up the street.
"Go and smooth your hair a bit," said common sense. "It is true you are looking quite pale and interesting, but I think the Colonel likes better the type of woman who is always gay and happy—at least always gay."

"I hardly had time to rub out the tear marks on my face when I heard him almost run up the steps, as though he had lifted a great load off his mind and was going to do a similar act for me. I opened the door, however, on a very serious man.
"I am very glad to find you at home my dear," he said. "I have come to ask you to give me a promise. Will you do so?"
"I must hear what you want me to do first," I answered quite as soberly as he had asked the question.
"Sensible child," was his rejoinder as he seated me in a chair and stood by the mantle looking down at me.
"Please do not call me a child Colonel. You know you do not think of me as a child. You know I am an old married woman."
"Very, very old my dear and very long married?" There was a quizzing tenderness in his voice. I almost felt as though he were my father. "Let me see you are about 19 are you not? And I remember the date on your announcement cards, you have been married three whole months."
"Did I not hear that you had a run-away marriage, Cleo?"
"Yes, I married in haste—"
"And I hope you are not beginning to repent at leisure?"
"No, I rather think that I am beginning to hastily repent."
"Smartly said, Cleo, but I am quite sure it is only a passing mood. Paul will be here soon with his car and when you two young people go for a long ride I am sure you will clear up all your misunderstandings."
"Wait a minute Colonel Borden. Let us clear up our misunderstandings first. You know well enough that it is not Paul's car, but mine, he is bringing around. You know you suspected as much last night when I told you the car which those gamblers were in looked like the one which my father gave me, and which he had just written me he had sent me."
"I don't know how you found out that it was ours, whether he told you or whether you went back after I left you to those men and dickered with them about it. I know a mile like the one which he had just written me he had sent me."
"When I got into the streetcar to come home, there was another little straw that pointed to the fact that Paul had sold my car. I found my husband slumped down in a seat looking perfectly disconsolate. He didn't see me at all; in fact he saw no one. He was busy trying to make himself think that under the circumstances he had done the only thing that he could do. He was afraid of what I would do when he would tell me the awful truth."
"I did not make myself known to him, but sat down in a seat behind and he did not see me until we got off. He seemed greatly surprised to see me and we had quite a controversy about my staying in town to dinner with you. As we were walking home I told him that I had seen a car very much like mine, with the two men who had visited him that morning in it. I did this to see if he knew anything about it.

"After a moment's hesitation he said it was my car that he had turned it over to pay that debt of which he had told me in the morning. I confess to you Colonel that I saw red. There were so many terrible things contained in the transaction. In the first place my husband was a thief. It made no difference that I was his wife, and owned the car. He had stolen it and I knew it was gone from me forever, for he would probably never get enough money again to buy another—particularly if Paul kept up his gambling habits."
"Well my dear, Cleo," said the Colonel, "you need not worry over that any more for after you left me last night, I got thinking about what you had said and I looked up those men and made them own up. I told them if they did not sell the car to me for just what they had given for it, I would run them out of town."

CARRIER PIGEON EMPLOYED TO CARRY NEWS COPY IN JAPAN
TOKYO, Aug. 1.—While there are 19 daily newspapers in Tokyo and hundreds of others throughout the empire, the gathering of news in Japan is somewhat more difficult than it is in America and other countries. The reason is that the telephone and telegraph services are exceedingly primitive and almost worthless for the rapid transmission of news.
The tardy wire services, however, are overcome to some extent by the use of carrier pigeons. Every news agency and large newspaper has its own special trained birds which daily are sent by train to the various correspondents. The pigeons, when released with the "bulletin of news" sheets attached to them, make rapid time back to the editorial rooms.

THE POTATO BUG MENACE FEARED.
BERLIN, Aug. 1.—Fear that the potato bug, which has settled in France, will overrun all Europe, is expressed by the Berlin Daily Der Deutsche, with the possibility of diminishing of "sooty" potato crop by one third "at a time when the increase of the crops has become a vital question." The newspaper proposes that all persons in the empire be enlisted in a war on the bug. gw edw.dpac wf@postulst m

GLENDALE THREATENED BY A SMALL BLAZE
What might have been a very disastrous fire, had it not been nipped in the bud by the prompt response of the city fire department, was discovered at the rear of the city meat market, last Friday night about 10:00 o'clock, says the Glendale News. Mr. Austin and Mr. Mills had a small building at the rear of their shop that was used for the curing of meat, and had left a small smudge going. It was thought to be perfectly safe when they left it, but in some way it caught fire to the walls and in a few minutes the whole building was in flames. The glare of the flames was noticed by people on the street and an alarm was turned in, which brought the firemen on the jump and the blaze was soon under control by the use of the chemical engine. The loss was around $80 in meats that were being cured besides the loss of the building, the value of which was not stated.
This is a good time indeed, to call attention to the efficiency of our fire department, and how fortunate we are in having such fire protection. Glendale has better fire protection than nine-tenths of the towns in the state that have a population of from one thousand to five thousand people. This protection is due to the efforts of our city mayor, A. H. Hazen, who through foresight and executive ability, secured the automobile truck and mounted the chemical tanks for the very small sum of $400. The chemical tanks were purchased under the administration of I. H. Smith, at a cost of around $1000, making a total of $1400 the whole thing complete.

SMITH RIVER FAIR COMMITTEES PLAN FOR GREAT EVENT

Two meetings of Smith River fair workers in the past week have resulted in considerable progress toward putting over a successful celebration, says the Port Umpqua Courier. A meeting of all committees was held at the Grange hall Sunday afternoon. County Agent Cooney of Roseburg was present. He advised the committees how to proceed and willingly agreed to assume several important assignments, Wednesday morning and afternoon, the premium list committee and the chairman of the committee met at the city hall here. Distribution of the premium money was agreed upon. It was found that the state money available is greatly inadequate. The problem of furnishing additional money for that and other purposes is left to the finance committee consisting of J. G. Startup, H. L. Edmunds and Geo. V. Staples.

Nearly 11,000 in premiums will be paid winners this year. Residents in the Port of Umpqua district are invited to bring exhibits of all kinds to the fair. This was decided at the meeting held Wednesday.
The rules of the fair have been adopted and will be printed with the premium list for distribution as soon as possible. The premium list should go into the printers' hands within the next few days. A meeting of the program committee will be called over the week-end for the purpose of deciding on the sports attractions for the fair.
Louis Seymour of Gardiner, who is furnishing the trains for this part of the plans, has several "hot" ones under his hat. He promises to keep the patrons of the fair in the best of humor during the entire two days' celebration. Jerry Startup, H. L. Edmunds, F. W. Varetman, County Agent Cooney and Geo. V. Staples will work as his aides.
An effort is to be made by County Agent Cooney to secure the services of the Roseburg Juvenile band for at least the first day's program.

The tentative arrangements call for a dance to be given the evening of the second day.
There will be several speeches by men prominent in Oregon, including Governor Walter Pierce, State Senators B. L. Eddy of Roseburg and Isaac E. Staples of Portland, Dairy and Food Commissioner Mickel and others. County Agent Cooney is to secure the services of O. A. C. judges for livestock exhibits and of Mr. Garrett, who handles the Douglas county agricultural exhibit, for the grains and land products.
The Reedport Kiwanis Club was on record as being solidly behind the fair, Wednesday night, when it was voted that all members be required to attend at least one day of the celebration. The public affairs committee is asked to have the business men observe the first day, September 7, as a community holiday.
A committee of the Chamber of Commerce of Reedport is actively cooperating with the fair committee.

From now on until the opening date, the common word in the Lower Umpqua section will be Smith River Fair, Sept. 7 and 8.
