ACCIDENT THEORY HOLDS IN TRAGIC DEATH OF SILK PROCESS EXPERIMENTER

MARTINEZ, Cal., Aug. 2.—Continued investigation by police and others tended today to disprove the theory of murder in connection with the death at Walnut creek of a man thought to be Charles Henry Schwartz, chemist of Berkeley.

The body was found in the laboratory of the Pacific Cellulose company after there had been an explosion. It happened within a few minutes of the time that Schwartz had notified the president of the company of the perfection of a compound to be used in the manufacture of artificial silk.

Mrs. Schwartz, his wife, again today made a careful investigation of the body in the presence of the Contra Costa sheriff's office. She said she was positive that it was that of her husband.

Professor E. O. Heinrich, University of California criminologist, is of the opinion that if the body can be identified as Schwartz' there is little doubt but that the death was accidental.

LOGGERS DENOUNCE RUN-OUT OF JAPANESE AT TOLEDO

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) PORTLAND, Aug. 1.—The Columbia River loggers information bureau in resolutions made public today by John Dugal, manager, denounced the recent riot at Toledo, Oregon, which resulted in the expulsion of Japanese laborers employed at a mill there.

The resolutions declared "the offenders should be given the maximum penalty of the law for this disgraceful travesty on justice and fairplay."

REOPENING OF MINES IN RUSSIA RESTORES HOPES OF OLD ORDER

LONDON, Aug. 1.—(A. P.)—Reports in mining circles here indicate that some approach to the old economic order in Russia is gradually being made. In this connection it was announced recently that the properties of the British Spassky Copper Mine, Limited, which were twice nationalized by the Soviet authorities, were being operated privately again, and that a new issue of capital is contemplated at an early date to be offered pro rata to the shareholders.

REDECKING BRIDGE

Douglas county has started the work of redecking the Oak street bridge. The bridge finally reached such a state that repairs were absolutely necessary and a new floor is being put in. While the new decking is being put on the stringers underneath are being painted and repairs are made for the future.

WOOL CLIP IS LARGER THIS YEAR

An increase of 11,350,000 pounds of wool shorn in the United States this year over 1924 is shown in a preliminary estimate issued by the department of agriculture today placing the 1925 clip at 243,885,000 pounds, compared with 232,535,000 pounds in 1924. The average fleece this year was a little heavier than last year's, the department says, being 7.43 pounds compared with 7.40 pounds.

IMPOSSIBLE TO DECIDE ON FUTURE TO QUIT OFFICE

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 2.—(A. P.)—Lew Shank, who has combined an intermittent career of public service with auctioneering, horse racing, acting and operation of a storage plant, will retire again to private life at the end of this year, when his second term as mayor of Indianapolis expires.

Shank has not decided whether he will climb back onto the auction block or resume management of his storage plant. His friends say he no longer has any inclination for the race track, and he has said he will not be lured back to the stage, where, as a professional humorist, he attracted attention throughout the country some years ago.

His present objective is to cap his career as mayor with the purchase of the 650-acre Laurel Hill estate and mansion near the city club. The property valued at more than $1,000,000, belonged to Stoughton Fletcher, Indianapolis capitalist, and is now in the hands of trustees, Shank, conceiving the idea of acquiring it for a city playground, recently inserted page advertisements in Indianapolis newspapers urging citizens to visit it.

Thousands of residents inspected the estate on the day set, but much opposition has arisen to purchase or lease of the estate by the city.

Since the day Shank decided suddenly, over a card table in the back room of a saloon, to run for the mayoralty of Indiana's metropolis, he has kept his city at a state in the limelight and has become a notable character. He has been unusually well informed on all branches of city government, he has shown aptitude for business administration, and he has been indomitably persistent in attainment of his municipal objectives.

Shank aspired last year to the republican gubernatorial nomination but was beaten. He met indirect defeat again in the city primaries last May when Ralph Lemke, who had Shank's support for the mayoralty, lost the republican nomination to John L. Duval, present county treasurer, leaving a breach in republican party ranks which has not yet healed completely.

Heat with gas. PAGEANT WILL DEPICT BLACK HILLS GOLD RUSH DEADWOOD, S. D., Aug. 3.—A reproduction of the early gold rush in the Black Hills of South Dakota will be staged here in Deadwood's annual celebration of "The Days of '66" on August 12, 13, and 14.

A duplicate of the mining settlement that existed in the seventies at Deadwood Gulch has been fashioned and in it a pageant, typifying the characters and life of the frontier days, will be presented.

The reproduced mining settlement will include dance halls, saloons and gambling dens, while persons, representing the leading characters of the frontier mining town, Wild Bill, Calamity Jane, Colorado Charley and California Joe, will figure prominently in the pageant celebration.

Pioneers of the frontier days will assist the directors of the celebration in making an accurate reproduction of the life of that period.

A BRIDE'S DIARY

A Love Story of Today By Idah McGlone Gibson

The Story So Far. Cleo Madison, after sloping with her boyhood sweetheart, Lieutenant Paul Armstrong, goes to his army post and she finds out almost immediately that married life is not too rosy. There is much intrigue at the post. Rita Thorndike, wife of a no-good lieutenant, flees from the post after much gossip about her and Col. Blakely Beldon. Cleo helps Rita and resolves not to let her own name become the subject of gossip. Paul exhibits a passion for gambling; loses $500 to the Colonel one night, pays, and loses $500 to a pair of cheap gamblers the next night. He is broke and gives the gambler his wife's car in settlement of the debt. Cleo is furious; the Colonel wants to help and Paul is somewhat sullen. Cleo will not accept the car which the Colonel has bought back for Paul.

HARSH TALK "Of course," said Col. Beldon to me, "they tried to lie out of the transaction, but I finally bluffed them into telling the truth, and found that Paul had lost $500 in their place and have given them the car for the debt."

"I will say this for the men, they did not know the car belonged to you. Your father had made the mistake of addressing it to Paul. As $500 was the amount that Paul had lost and paid to me, I bought the car this morning, I told Paul to bring it around to his house and say nothing about it."

"Of course, I never counted on the fact that you had met Paul last evening and he had told you what he had. That complicated matters, especially as he had an idea that you would jump at any chance to get the roadster back and was very happy over the fact that he had gotten it back, while I was sure you would not."

"I was in the room when he telephoned you, and you cannot realize how disappointed and unhappy he was when he found out that you would not accept it on any terms that he could make."

"He turned his face around to me when you clicked off and said, like a little hurt boy, 'She says she will never ride in the roadster again.'"

"And I never will!" I reiterated solemnly. "Don't be foolish, child! You know what that little car means to you. I haven't put you under any obligations to me. I will never mention it to you again after today. I have only taken this way to assure my conscience and give back to Paul the money that I thought he was perfectly able to lose in a friendly game of cards. I give you my word that remorse has not set up on me for one moment since I knew he was absolutely dependent on his army pay."

"I am very sorry, Colonel, you feel that way. I am reluctant to add to your load of remorse, but I must tell you that I shall never ride in the car again."

"When Paul returns I shall ask him to sell it. Surely he can get more than $500 for it. It cost my father over three thousand not six months ago."

"Then he must pay you back your money, and if he wishes he can return to me any other money that remains."

"In this way he will partly have discharged his debt to me."

EX-CROWN PRINCE DEFENDS GERMAN POLICY IN WAR

BERLIN, August 1.—The former crown prince has written a book, "I Seek the Truth," with which he takes his place among those seeking to refute the accusation of war guilt against Germany.

"Who would cavil at Bismarck, at Kaiser Wilhelm II," he asks "for having conducted an expansive policy, when all those powers allied against us had been pursuing the identical policy for many years? At all times those rulers and statesmen enjoyed the greatest prestige who had succeeded in increasing their national prosperity. For centuries the paramount object of those nations who became Germany's violent accusers had been their own aggrandizement. By what right then is Germany stigmatized as a would-be devourer of the rest of the world?"

The writer points out that England managed to conquer one-fifth of the globe and says that France grabbed numerous overseas possessions, in many instances with the most ruthless means. Even the mighty Russian realm, which he says was capable of supporting double its pre-war population, is described as striving to extend its vast east-Asiatic domain to the shores of the Pacific.

"But Germany," the writer asserts "was begrudged the few colonies she had acquired almost without shedding a single drop of blood." The writer then goes to some pains to dispel the widespread belief that the old-time imperial policy of expansion, which he stated emphatically that the conservatives before all others were the ones to offer unrelenting opposition to the acquisition of colonies.

England is told that, living in a glass house, she is not justified in throwing stones at others for an infringement of Belgian neutrality. A detailed description is given of the bombardment of Copenhagen by the British navy in 1807 and the looting of the Danish fleet, without a declaration of war.

The pre-emptive object with the view of getting at the truth, the former crown prince considers to be the annulment of the note signed by Clemenceau June 16, 1919, which furnished the commentaries to Article 231, establishing Germany's war guilt.

"Not before the spirit of Versailles has been destroyed," the book concludes "will Germany, Europe, all humanity be at peace."

CHICAGO HUB OF WET MOVES SAYS ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE CHICAGO, Aug. 3.—(A. P.)—The Anti-Saloon League of America will open its convention here the first day after the November election, which F. Scott McFriede, general superintendent, said would have an important bearing on the future program of the league. The league has not met here since 1909, when national interest was directed towards Illinois because of the development of the local option movement.

"New Illinois, and particularly Chicago, has become the center of national interest because this state has been made the center of wet movements to break down prohibition enforcement," the league said.

The convention will come to Chicago at the invitation of the Chicago Church Federation.
