Supplies are limited with hardly sufficient stocks available daily to meet local requirements. Hot weather conditions in the dairy sections contributory to Portland and burned out pastures has seriously curtailed cream production. With lighter butter fat receipts the market has fallen off materially. All grades of cube are higher on the exchange today and the market is displaying a good healthy tone. Extra cubes are posted at 49 cents, standards at 48 cents and prime firsts 47 cents. This is a cent advance of the way round. Prices are selling briskly at the 52 cent level and cartons at 53 cents. Butter fat prices are firm at the 2 cent advance with 51 cents being paid the dairy men, f. o. b. shippers track in zone 1. The local egg market is inactive with quotations unchanged for the day. Choice light veal nominal at 16 to 17 cents and choice light hogs 17 to 17 1/2 cents. Records of Cow Testing Groups are interesting First-class, profitable dairy farms are usually found in groups. The center of each group is some farm, some man, some idea, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The 732 cow-testing associations now active in the United States represent that many groups if improved dairy farms. What has been accomplished by these associations is told in Farmers' Bulletin 1446, entitled "Cow Testing Associations and Stories the Records Tell," and is now ready for distribution. The purpose of this bulletin is to show the need and the value of cow-testing associations, to present briefly some of the outstanding results obtained from a tabulation of cow-testing association data, and to show how such associations may be organized and conducted. In most sections of the country we have enough cows, but not good enough cows, says the author of the bulletin. Our slogan should not be "More Cows" but "More Good Cows." Here is one place where there is an abundance of room at the top. Knowing the individual production records of the cows in the herd is one way to get more good cows. This information is made available to dairymen through the cow-testing association. In the Newaygo County, Michigan, cow-testing association the herd that one year had the highest average production of butterfat per cow consisted of 10 cows, and the herd that had the lowest average production consisted of 20 cows. The herd of 10 cows had a total income over cost of feed of $664 and the herd of 20 cows $455. The owner of the larger herd needed nine more cows of the kind he was keeping to get as much income over cost of feed as was produced by the smaller herd. It is better, however, to own 10 good cows than 20 poor ones. It demands less labor and other costs.

To build up a herd of 10 good cows requires much handwork. To take care of a herd of 20 poor cows requires much handwork. The man who does not use his head must work harder with his hands. The value of association records is not limited to the improvement of the females of the herd, but may also be used to determine the true value of the herd bull or the bulls in the bull association. In the vicinity of Grove City, Pa., there are two bull associations and one cow-testing association. From the latter, records are now available for the yearly production of 18 daughters of the bull-association bulls as well as for the dam of each daughter. When all records were figured to maturity, it was found that on an average the dams produced 8,785 pounds of milk in a year and the daughters 9,212 pounds. The dams averaged 355 pounds of butterfat a year and the daughters 394 pounds. Thus the daughters produced about 5 per cent more milk and about 11 per cent more butterfat than their dams. The figures further showed that the daughters were by six bulls; and that in no case did any daughter bring discredit to her sire. What would have happened if the 18 daughters had been sired by scrub or inferior bulls is not hard to guess. In nearly every case a cow-testing association depends upon the activity of a few progressive farmers and centers around the idea that every dairyman should know the individual records of his cows if he is to manage and develop his herd properly. The knowledge can be obtained through cow-testing association records. A copy of the bulletin telling how to start and conduct an association may be secured free of charge as long as the supply lasts, by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. It is economically unwise to put fertilizer on Oregon soils deficient in lime, says the experiment station. "Sluggish" soils do not make the best use of fertilizer while lime adds "lith" to the soil. New Leader of Disabled Vets John W. Mahan, newly elected national commander of the Disabled American Veterans, is in Washington, conferring with officials of the veterans' bureau. He is a Helena, Mont., attorney.
