DRIVE LAUNCHED TO COMPLETE FUND BY SEPTEMBER 30

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 5.—With splendid progress reported from every section of the country, a final drive was launched by the executive committee for the American Legion $5,000,000 endowment fund at a meeting at national headquarters here recently to conclude the campaign by September 30.

The general public has been responding splendidly to our appeal for those who gave the most for country, the disabled veterans and the orphans of the war. National Commander James A. Drain said: "Everywhere they have been meeting the need with the same spirit as these disabled men and the fathers of these orphans themselves showed when they went forth to battle for their country's cause in the day when they were needed."

A complete success is perfectly possible, indeed, an over-subscription of the total is probable if every effort is concentrated on completing the campaign in September. We urge every department and post where the campaign is now under way to take immediate steps to complete it by the end of that month.

"In that way we can go into the national convention at Omaha on October 5 with the fund completed, our object attained and the welfare of these unfortunates assured. I know that Legionnaires everywhere will give this last ounce of enthusiastic effort. Let us clear the decks of the problems of 1923 that we may go forward to meet the needs of 1924."

A resolution was adopted by the committee asking every department and every post to transmit its endowment funds to national headquarters as rapidly as possible, so the interest for the current year may be available now for the work.

The endowment fund corporation is functioning and investing the funds in approved securities. "The total of child welfare work is growing rapidly. Many new cases, some of them very pitiable, where need for help is immediate, have been brought to the attention of the Legion. We are pressed for means to meet their needs now and the interest from this fund is vitally necessary."

The committee was particularly impressed by the voluntary action of the Department of Mexico in raising $2,642 for the fund and by that of Panama in adding $1,000 to its previously announced total of $6,000. It was gratified by the action of Joseph W. Fordney, former representative from Michigan, and a national figure, in coming out of retirement to accept the chairmanship of the Michigan campaign committee.

Richard S. Jones, who is educational director for the endowment, was elected executive secretary of the endowment committee. He takes the place of National Adjutant Russell Creviston, whose resignation becomes effective on July 31.

An airplane tour of southern Minnesota was made last week in the interest of the fund. This marked the launching of the campaign in St. Paul, Red Wing, Lake City, Wabasha, Winona, Rochester, Austin, Waseca, Mankato, Faribault and Northfield.

LOOTING DONE ON SYSTEMATIC PLAN IS THEORY

Organized Gang of Robbers Is Responsible for Theft in Stores.

HAVE LOCAL SPOTTER

One Person in Each Town Visited Provides Data Upon Which the Thieves Operate.

That there is a gang of organized thieves and robbers preying upon the larger cities of the state, is the belief of local officers, who in the robbery of the Wilder and Agge store find a parallel to other crimes, of a like nature. It is believed that there are a number of criminals who have banded themselves together in a well organized group, and are systematically looting business and mercantile establishments.

Evidence gathered in various towns and cities strengthens this theory and it is believed very probable that the robbery of the local store was committed by parties belonging to the gang.

The organization, officers believe, provides a "spotter" in each town in which the ring works. It is the duty of this person to obtain information regarding the buildings in which businesses are situated, to prepare diagrams showing doors, and windows, means of entrance and exit, location of lights etc., and to obtain a check on the movements of the officers at specified times, and collect other data for the use of the crooks.

The actual robberies, it is believed, are performed by a traveling group, consisting of two or three men and one or two women. They visit a town, confer with their local man, commit the robbery and skip out.

The existence of such an organization was hinted at when Lee Duncan was arrested several months ago. Duncan was accused of robbing five Roseburg business houses, and in each case his movements indicated that the building in which he had operated had been carefully studied, and officers were at a loss to account for the way in which he had obtained this information during the short time he had been in the city. Duncan had helped in the robberies, a fact which he admitted himself, and the presence of a woman was shown by the handbag and feminine articles found in Duncan's possession.

Duncan also had a number of notations written in code, and following the existence of the ring, but refused to divulge the names of any of them, saying that it would be sure suicide to do so.

Officers today were informed by a railroad shop laborer that he had seen the car loaded with the loot from the Wilder and Agge robbery going north at about 2:30 a. m. yesterday. He noticed the car, but paid no attention to it until he read the account of the robbery, when he conveyed his information to Sheriff Starmer.

He noticed that the auto was a touring car, but was unable to give the make or license number, or a description of the driver, as there was no one in the car at the time, but officers are convinced that the traveling party uses two cars, and that there are at least three members.

A further check of the missing articles at the store, causes the loss to mount considerably higher, and it is possible that the thefts will amount to as much as $2,500. A fine overcoat was taken, and four very expensive outing coats are missing. The outing coats were of fine leather and were silk lined, the very best obtainable to afford protection to the outdoor man.

Officers have little to work on in tracing the thieves, but are doing all that they can to spread the description of the stolen goods, so that the responsible parties can be located through that method, which is evidently the only way that they can be apprehended.

PARENT WANTS GIRL ADOPTED SIX YEARS AGO

(Continued from page 1.) girl in New York than go through all this," she sobbed. "Yes, if I had known that this was going to happen I would have starved to death rather than offer myself for adoption."

ST. JOHNSBURY, Vt., Aug. 7.—Dorothy Sunshine Browning, 9-year-old adopted daughter of Edward W. Browning, wealthy New York real estate operator, has been ill for days at the May house, a summer camp for girls overlooking Crystal Lake at Barton, and does not know of the controversy regarding the adopting by her foster father of Mary Louise Spas. Her illness is diagnosed by physicians as summer gripe.

Copy of newspapers containing references to the adoption have been kept from the child, who was taken into the Browning family seven years ago. She told associates at the camp that her father had intended to adopt a little sister for her and said she had received the same information from Miss Coburn, who conducts the school on Riverside Drive, New York, where Dorothy attends.

Browning's last visit to the camp was on June 1. Dorothy writes to her mother, but he never replies to her letters, she said. She receives her information regarding her foster father from Miss Katherine Wilcox, principal of Miss Coburn's school.

PRUNE GROWERS AGREE TO FORM ASSOCIATION

(Continued from page 1.) principal place of business, and the term of the association is for fifty years. The association has no capital stock, but shall admit members upon the payment of a membership fee of $10. Each member shall have one unit in property rights. Certificates of membership are non-assignable. The articles of incorporation are signed by R. W. Cooney, R. A. Hercher, B. J. Ballif, L. Antles and L. Crocker.

Quire to the pressure of business and the many counter attractions, the meeting yesterday afternoon was not attended by as large a number of prune growers as was desired, but enough were present to properly represent the district. The meeting took the form of a general conference and discussion of the advisability of organization.

Keneth C. Miller, of the Marketing department of the Pruned Chamber of Commerce was present and laid before the meeting statistics indicating the value or organization of pruning. Talks were made by R. A. Busenbark, J. H. Leah, B. W. Cooney, L. Antles, H. A. Hercher and others.
