CANAL COMPANY IN DESCHUTES SUED BY GOVERNMENT

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
PORTLAND, Aug. 11.—The government filed suit this morning in federal court to annul its grant to the North Canal Company for permission to use part of the Deschutes national forest as an irrigation reservoir site.

The suit also asks damages of $47,895 to standing timber and also for the costs of clearing away a dam and other improvements made by their irrigation company under the project.

The government in its suit charged that the company had failed to live up to stipulations it had made to the secretary of the interior January 28, 1922.

The agreement with the government called for the company to pay all the damages done to roads, cabins, telephone lines and marketable timber within the forest reserve.

It called for removal of brush and dead timber on the site of the reservoir, for paying all damages caused by overflows or leakage of water from the reservoir and for building and maintaining a crossing over the flood waters at the suggestion of the forest supervisor.

It was also agreed by the company "to build new roads and trails and other improvements as required by the supervisor."

The government claims these promises have not been fulfilled.

The court is asked for a permanent injunction to keep the company from using the Deschutes water shed within the national forest for purposes of storing water.

The right of way through the national forest was granted September 20, 1920 to the Central Oregon Irrigation company. It runs through the national forest over Crane prairie, which forms the basin for the reservoir. On September 21, 1921, these grants were assigned to the North Canal company.

R. W. Harrod is president and Oswald West, former governor, is secretary of the North Canal company.

Some 4950 acres of land were under water when the dam was completed and flooded, 2600 acres of it in the national forest.

CONDEMNED PRISONER KICKS BECAUSE HIS HEAD WAS SPARED.

BERLIN, Aug. 11.—Otto Leest, murderer and robber, was highly indignant recently when German officials refused to "hop his head off," and instead commuted his death sentence to life imprisonment. He also berated the lawyer who saved his neck. He has no choice now, however, but to keep his head on for a commutation represents a sovereign act and may not be annulled.

Leest had previously waived the right of appeal and insisted on being executed. In the meantime, and unknown to him, his counsel had petitioned for commutation, which was granted. The moment Leest heard of the change in sentence he became very much incensed and immediately wrote the following petition to the minister of justice:

"I won't accept the pardon and insist on having my head chopped off under all circumstances. It is I who have the right to decide about myself and not my lawyer. He is altogether too officious."

STATE MONOPOLIES PROVE PROFITABLE FOR POLAND.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—The establishment of a match monopoly by the Polish government, which, as recently announced, will be operated for a period of 20 years jointly by an American and Swedish corporation, brings the number of state monopolies in Poland up to four. The others are alcohol, tobacco and salt.

Revenues from the existing monopolies during the first quarter of 1925, official reports received by the American Polish Chamber of Commerce show, amounted to $15,000,000. The budget estimates for the current year anticipate total net receipts from the existing monopolies, exclusive of the match monopoly, at $7,000,000. Profits from the monopolies will constitute about 18 per cent of the government's revenues this year.

The alcohol monopoly is expected to yield $20,000,000 in 1925, the first year of its operation.

ALL OUT OF SORTS?

So Was This Roseburg Woman Who Tells Her Experience.

All too often women accept their pains and aches as natural to their sex. They fail to realize that weak kidneys are often to blame for that headache, those dizziness, those spells and that tired, depressed feeling. Thousands have found new health and strength by helping the weakened kidneys with Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic. This Roseburg case is one of many.

Mrs. E. A. Matthews, 300 Short St., says: "My kidneys were out of order and acted irregularly. I also had severe backaches. Headaches were frequent; I became run down and all out of sorts. Doan's Pills from Fullerton's Drug Store soon rid me of the aches and the other signs of kidney disorder disappeared."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for kidney remedy—get Doan's Pills—the same that Mrs. Matthews had. Foster-McBurg Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Love Story of Today
By Idah McGlone Gibson

MISSING A GOODNIGHT KISS

"Where did you learn all this, Cleo?" asked my husband when I told him that I thought it was the silly things of life that were the greatest instruments of torture. "You never used to talk this way before we were married."

"I didn't know any of those things before we were married; at least I wasn't conscious of the knowledge," I answered.

"Marriage makes for many things, Paul, and if it takes away our unthinking joyousness—or rather, our unthinking joyousness, for I am almost sure that when we are young we confound the two words—it puts in the place of this joyousness a maturity of thought and responsibility of action. I have come to the conclusion that the joyousness of youth is not real happiness, for I believe that happiness is not an ephemeral thing. It should be a state of mind that would last as long as life."

"Then you're sure you know the difference, Cleo?"

"Yes, I've known happiness. Haven't you?"

"I think I know it this minute, dear."

"No you don't, Paul. You're just ill. You're ill and I'm sorry, for I made you ill; consequently, we're both in a very receptive mood. Just this minute, instead of being perfectly happy, you were wishing that I would get you a little, because men, when they are ill, are children. At first you liked this philosophy which I have been expounding, but for the last 5 or 10 minutes you have been restless. There or four times your hand has stole out to cover mine. Three or four times you have looked at me beseechingly, and you know in your heart that you wished I would bend down and kiss you."

"Cleo, I am afraid of you. How do you know all this?"

"We're all human, Paul, and I know that when I am ill or unhappy, I want some one to be nice to me."

"Then why won't you kiss me, dear?"

"I don't know. I seem to be kind of frozen in my heart, isn't it a terrible thing, Paul, that we don't know when love comes, or when love goes. It seems to be just something that is thrust upon us or taken away from us without any volition on our part whatsoever."

"Are you trying to tell me you don't love me?"

"No, dear. I'm trying to make up my mind whether I know what love is."

"Oh you do, you do, Cleo—this is just a passing mood. I'm sure it is."

"But, Paul, I am not so sure that you still love me, are you?"

Paul was silent. I will say this of him, whatever else he may be, Paul Armstrong is honest with other people. He doesn't always tell the truth himself, but he very seldom lies to others. In this I think he is very human, for as nearly as I can make out, most of us tell ourselves those things which we like to hear about ourselves. It is always some one else who comes and puts before us the plain, unvarnished, unflattering truth. I was in very much more of a softened mood, however, at this moment. Paul had appealed to the maternal that is in me as it is in every woman. He seemed more like my son—a foolish irresponsible boy who was appealing to me to give him back a toy he once had thought beautiful and still wanted to keep and play with occasionally, although it had become tarnished and tawdry.

This softness he dispelled, however, when he recognized that I was feeling more tender toward him. He again referred to his telegram.

"Bring me pen and paper, Cleo," he said, "and I will write the note so you can get this money."

"But I'm not going to get it for you. Don't you understand? I've told you that I couldn't lower my pride enough to let Constance Terbone know that I helped you to get money out of her. Naturally she would jump at the conclusion that the plan was mine."

"But it wasn't, Cleo."

"No, but I would be accessory after the fact, as they say in murder trials."

"Well, what are we going to do, then? We have no money, do we? Just to try my husband—to see if he would react to my borrowing money from Chick in the same way I reacted to his borrowing money from Connie—I said:

"Well, I think I will telegraph Chick to send me a check."

"You'd do nothing of the kind—I'll starve first!" cried Paul angrily, starting up in bed.

"There! I thought you would feel the same as I. Paul, we'll try to get along some way. I've still got a little money in my bank account, as I told you."

From the expression of Paul's face I knew he was going to ask me again where I got that money, and to keep him from doing so, I lightly placed my hand over his mouth. I said good night quickly and left him.

RAILROAD WORKERS UNCOVER TWO GIANT ANIMAL SKELETONS

HOQTAM, Wash., Aug. 11.—Two prehistoric skeletons, more than 80 feet in length, recently were uncovered near here by workers in a railroad cut. Rev. J. Herbert Geochogan of this city, who examined the find, pronounced the bones those of dinosaurs, Ichthyosaurs or pterodactyls.

The skeletons were imbedded in 40 to 60 feet of limestone deposit, and were partly petrified. The railroad excavation cut through the animal's ribs, which could be seen extending for a distance of several feet in parallel lines.

No skull was found, but a long tearing tooth discovered among the debris was taken as indicating that the animals were carnivorous. The ribs vary from three to 12 inches in thickness, while a portion of slender blade is four feet long and five inches thick. Knee joints and other bones discovered vary in size from several feet to only a few inches in circumference.

"The character of the rock indicates that it was once sea or river bottom, which through a fault has been overturned," said Rev. Mr. Geochogan. "The layers of strata have been upended, leaving the animals lying in an unnatural position."

"The upheaval which placed the bones on the top of a high hill, probably took place at the time the Cascade range was formed."

"The animal was a vertebrate, and probably stood 40 feet high, counting the long expanse of neck found. The classification of the bones could be determined more exactly if we could locate the skull of one of the beasts."

"This entire country appears to have been tropical or subtropical in character, and the presence of rocks and gravel proves that the glacier which covered the northern part of the continent at one time, never touched this section."

"From the character of the soil, either river or ocean bottom, I am inclined to believe the animals were Ichthyosaurs or marine reptiles rather than the dinosaurs, land reptile, or pterodactyl, flying reptile."

TRAVEL BETWEEN MEXICO AND U. S. EVENLY BALANCED

CALIXICO, CAL., Aug. 10.—(A. P.)—Figures released by the United States immigration office here showed that 93,307 persons passed through the Calixico-Mexical international port during the fiscal year of 1924-25.

Of 4,899,651 persons who traveled on the United States into Mexico, 3,627,582 were aliens and 1,251,778 were Americans. Statistics for travel into the United States from the central American country were 3,429,277 aliens and 1,281,770 Americans.

The heaviest travel through the port was recorded during the summer months of June and July and the minimum movement in February.

Consuls of the United States plus his imports into the United States at the port during the last fiscal year amounted to $5,155,961 of which $1,447,314 were dutiable and $3,718,252 were free.

Exports to Mexico during the period of July 1, 1924, to July 1, 1925, aggregated $1,065,621 and collections at the port were $115,920.

UNIFORM PRUNE PRICES BEING PAID IN CALIFORNIA

At the same time as opening prices by the California Prune Association, there were announced prices by the commercial packers concerned with prunes in California, which are identical with the association's prices says the California Prune News.

The prune association has sold the commercial packers a good-sized block of its handlings that has been set aside for these opening prices. The balance the association will sell itself through its own office and pack through its own facilities. Every recognized packer in the state has, we understand, gone into the arrangement, and all will pay cash, or practically so, for the prunes bought, which were at the association's price less packing, brokerage and selling costs. This is intended to stabilize the situation at the beginning and avoid operating any dumping scheme at the other end, which usually is disastrous, so far as the average prices are concerned, and the most serious crop market. The prune association is practically cleaned up on old prunes and will have its growers paid off up to 1925 very shortly. The 1925 money will come in later than usual and there is little, if any, possibility of a lowering of prices, unless such a lowering should be able to buy from independent growers in volume as well under the association's price, which, quite presumably, for the present will not be a condition.

The general prospect is far more than last year's prune crop in California and we are still of the same opinion as previously expressed, that it will be under last year in total. The Pacific northwest has a very small crop and while some of the European prune producing districts will be in excess of last year, there is not in prospect a big crop there. And in addition to that, the world's carry over is gone or practically so. All the conditions of supply indicate a firm prune market if prices are considered reasonable, and the opening prices of the California Prune Association appear assuredly to be so. Business coming in as soon as prices were announced and up to the present has been exceedingly heavy and it would look as if the prices decided upon were just exactly what was wanted to start off an active selling market.

JAPANESE PLAN TO FIGHT BOLSHEVIST PROPAGANDA

TOKYO, Aug. 11.—Fear of Bolshevist propaganda in Japan is ever present among the heads of the government and it was recently reported that the Home Department is planning to introduce a bill at the next Diet session for the organization of a special police service to deal with the situation. It is said a yearly outlay of 1,000,000 yen will be asked for this purpose.

The government has not been amies in adopting measures calculated to be effective in coping with outward developments that may follow the re-opening of the country for intercourse with Soviet Russia. Of these measures the most important is, of course, the new press censorship law which the Diet voted at its last session.

Along with this precautionary piece of legislation may be mentioned the steps taken to unify orders issued to the police at home and in Korea, so that there may be cooperation as well as coordination in their activity on the trail of propagandists. There is also the creation of special police organs to be on Korean frontiers and South Manchurian borderlands.

All these innovations are now in full working order. But it has been found that channels for the introduction of "Red" propaganda are rapidly increasing owing to the growing frequency with which the people of the two countries are exchanging visits for commercial, touring and other purposes and also because of the freedom with which new publications are being imported.

The home office regards it as imperative in consequence that a police service of special nature be perfected to deal with the problem of propagation of radical thoughts.

CUTWORMS CAUSE HEAVY LOSSES IN COOS COUNTY.

COQUILLE, Ore., Aug. 10.—Crop losses from the action of cutworms will amount to $100,000 this season in Coos county alone, according to estimates of C. R. Richards, county agricultural agent.

The striped cutworm has been working on hay crops, creeping bent, canary grass and pasture crops in the Coquille valley and in the Coos river districts, while the variegated cutworm has attacked potatoes, corn and root crops in all parts of the county.

Some farmers have lost the larger portion of their hay crop, for while it is possible to poison the worms in the hay, application of poison may result in poisoning of the cattle, which feed on the hay.

HOPE WITH BERS.
