

HOME OF INDICTED MAN'S BROTHER IS PARTLY WRECKED

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 25.—An explosion, believed by sheriffs deputies, to have been caused by dynamite, today partially wrecked the sleeping porch and did other minor damage to the home of William Downs at Alta, Canada, foothills suburb near Pasadena.

Downs' brother, Charles Downs, Los Angeles City councilman, is now under indictment, charged with accepting a bribe in connection with a tunnel transportation enterprise.

ROCKNE LAUDS FOOTBALL CHANGE GOVERNING KICK-OFF

DETROIT, Aug. 25.—Because the ball is to be kicked from the 40-yard line this season rather than from midfield, one of the greatest thrills in football, the return of the kick-off, will be more frequently experienced and the game will be a lot more fun for the fellows in the stands and for players as well.

A major result of the decision of the Football Rules Committee, in starting the kick-off from the 40-yard line without the tee, will be that teams will develop a strong kick-off return, said Mr. Rockne.

SPITZBERGEN PEOPLE LIVE IN COMFORTABLE HOMES.

ROSEBURG, Aug. 25.—Travelers who imagine Spitzbergen to be inhabited by a few rough trappers and seal hunters, living on raw blubber in wretched hovels, are agreeably surprised at the comforts and even luxuries enjoyed at the different administrative buildings at Barentsburg, Longyear City and Ny Alesund.

These local headquarters of the different coal companies are provided by the average high class visitor with the comforts of the tourist steamers which run up to these ports during Spitzbergen's brief summer season, between July 15 and August 15.

There is no field here for the "drummer." All supplies are provided by the coal companies, and meat is obtained at reasonable prices fixed for the common benefit by the company administrators.

Here in Barentsburg, all the houses, which are of wood, as they are elsewhere in Spitzbergen, look trim and freshly painted.

CROOKED AGENTS STRAND WHITNEY CHORUS OF BOYS

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 25.—Fifty boys, members of the Los Angeles Boys Chorus, are stranded here. Three weeks ago the chorus, made up of boys ranging from 8 to 22 years of age, set out from Los Angeles on a cross-country concert tour.

Two weeks ago, in Albuquerque, N. M., an advance agent fled with $150 proceeds from concerts. Two new agents were hired. They disappeared from Kansas City, together with funds advanced them for expenses.

A two-night concert had been scheduled for Kansas City, but when the chorus arrived it was learned the advance agents had departed without making arrangements for the concerts.

Financial relief may come tonight, however, for the Independence avenue Christian church, one of the largest in the city, is to stage a concert by the organization.

CARNATIONS USED AS BAIT FOR RATS IN LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 25.—The fragrant garden variety of carnations, used as bait, has proved far more irresistible than cheese to the rat population of the Hall of Records and Court House buildings here.

Discovery was made recently by L. C. Robinson, chief janitor of the two buildings, after several weeks of investigation, that rats have a liking for carnations. Through the use of the flowers as bait in traps large numbers of the rodents, which gradually were reducing hundreds of law and record books to a mass of dilapidation, were exterminated.

COST OF LIVING IN ROUMANIA RISES

BUCHAREST, Aug. 25.—There is a conspicuous rise in the cost of living in Rumania as compared with last year. The Argus points out that food has risen 18 points over the level of August last year.

WALKER DEFEATS FRIEDMAN; THRILL KILLS SPECTATOR

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) CHICAGO, Aug. 25.—Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, had the better of Sailor Friedman in his 10-round bout at East Chicago last night, newspapermen decided. But after Friedman, in the eighth, recovered from the effects of a knockdown in the first ten seconds of the bout, he staged a whirlwind comeback that threatened to even things up.

So thrilling were the last three rounds of mulling that one spectator of the $500 present, collapsed and died, presumably of heart disease.

A short right to the chin from Walker knocked Friedman through the ropes. But once in the last two rounds, Friedman turned Walker half way around with a right to the chin.

PHONETIC SIMILARITY CAUSES CONFUSION IN TWO TOWNS

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 25.—Confusion in the town names, Bayreuth, in Germany, with Beirut in Asia Minor, which led recently to erroneous reports that the Dutch government had decided to establish a consulate in Bayreuth instead of Beirut, recalled to the Alleghens Handelblad that the two names had been confused once before in 1876.

On the latter occasion, the Oriental city was somewhat surprised to receive at the time a specially constructed machine which had been intended to animate a dragon in the Seifried performance of "The Ring." In the first Wagner festival at Bayreuth, the machine had been made by an English firm and as Bayreuth was a small and little-known town a shipping clerk thought an error had been made in the spelling and that such a complicated bit of machinery could only be intended for Beirut.

PLACER GOLD DISCOVERED IN NORTHEASTERN IDAHO

POCATELLO, Idaho, Aug. 25.—At a desolate point at the juncture of Clark, Butte and Jefferson counties in northeastern Idaho, where three rivers sink into the sands of the Snake river basin, a gold placer, which is expected to be as rich as that of the Boise Basin of early days has been discovered.

Announcement from Dubois confirmed the discovery and with the movement just started claims are being rapidly staked out.

The three streams, Big Lost River, Little Lost River and Birch Creek, have in ancient times and up until the advent of irrigation in the early eighties, virtually merged their waters and disappeared in the sands on the same square mile of desert.

For nearly 50 years these mysterious rivers have been the despair of geologists, engineers and gold seekers because they gave but a negligible indication of the gold values that geologists insisted must be present.

B. T. Murphy, a Dubois civil engineer, sometime ago set out to locate the deposit. Concluding that the three torrential streams carried values but moved too fast to deposit them, the search rapidly led to the sinks where the theory was verified.

Besides gold and indications of platinum, gems of the corundum family of which emeralds and rubies are typical, have been found.

FARM REMINDERS

The season for the fall planting of vegetables for fall, winter, and spring marketing in western Oregon is the fourth regular planting time listed by the experiment station. The first is for planting the seeds of early hardy vegetables, the second of tender vegetables after the disappearance of frost, and the third of vegetables in late summer for fall and winter use.

In late cabbage production the seed strain, soil fertility, good moisture holding capacity of soil, and protection from injurious insects are listed by the experiment station as factors determining the quality and profits of the crop.

Clean nursery stock is the first recommendation of the experiment station for prevention or control of systemic diseases of brambles in Oregon—mosaic, leaf curl, and bramble streak. These diseases are carried from diseased plants in the tips and transplants taken from them.

PROBE OF OREGON PENITENTIARY IS STARTED BY TWO

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 25.—Governor Pierce today received a report from the special committee investigating conditions at the state penitentiary and contributing causes of the recent jail break. The governor declined to comment upon the contents of the report which was not made public.

Jefferson Myers, chairman of the committee, delivered the report to the governor. Adjutant General White, the other working member of the commission left for the east this morning, indicating that the inquiry is completed at least for the present.

Myers stated that the committee had learned some facts which they felt should be given to the governor at once. He declared the committee wanted to see the penitentiary turned into a successful institution.

"There are only about 15 successful prisons in the country," he said, "why shouldn't we go ahead and make a sixteenth? We don't need a new prison. The prison's all right as a prison, but it ought to turn out something other than delinquents. And it ought to be made self-supporting."

SALEM, Ore., Aug. 25.—Withdrawal of Colonel C. G. Thomson, manager of Crater Lake national park, from the governor's committee to inquire into conditions at the state penitentiary has halted the probe and the other two members of the committee, Jefferson Myers and Brigadier General George A. White, are today marking time pending the appointment of a successor to Colonel Thomson.

The telephone rang. We both turned to it. Miss Murphy and I. I reached it first and snatched up the receiver.

"Will you please tell Mrs. Armstrong," said a voice in my ear, "that Ma Stetter says she may visit her husband any time now. You might take her up to his floor, Miss Murphy, and show her to his room."

"This is not Miss Murphy," I answered. "It is Mrs. Armstrong."

"Oh, you are up, Mrs. Armstrong?" The man I expected Miss Murphy would help me to dress and that you would get up to your husband's room in about an hour.

"My anxiety was so great, I couldn't stay in bed, so I dressed

A BRIDE'S DIARY

A Love Story of Today By Idah McGlone Gibson

The Story So Far. Cleo Madison after eloping with her boyhood sweetheart, Lieutenant Paul Armstrong, goes to his army post and she finds out almost immediately that married life is not too rosy.

There is much intrigue at the post. Lilla Thorndike, wife of a no-good Lieutenant, flees from the post after much gossip about her and Col. Blakely Nelson. Cleo helps Lilla and resolves not to let her own name become the subject of gossip. Paul exhibits a passion for gambling; loses $300 to the colonel one night, pays, and loses $500 to a pair of cheap gamblers the next night.

He is broke and gives the gamblers his wife's car in settlement of the debt. Cleo is furious; the colonel wants to help and Paul is somewhat sullen. One angry word follows another after the colonel leaves. Cleo finally becomes so enraged at an insult from Paul that she throws a vase at him. It hits his head, makes a nasty gash and Paul is now in the hospital at death's door, due to the wound. Chick Adams, an old sweetheart, drops in at the army post and offers a blood transfusion to save Paul. The offer is accepted. He is now talking with Cleo in the hospital preparatory to undergoing the transfusion operation.

Cleo discovers Chick still loves her. He leaves the operating room and Cleo gets almost hysterical—waiting for the outcome. She is a murderer if Paul dies.

The parents of the distressed married couple have been sent for and have arrived. Cleo hates Paul's mother—a nosy cat.

OUT OF THE VALLEY. "I wanted to be ready to go to my husband," I said to Miss Murphy when she exclaimed at my coming out of bed and dressed.

"You know I'm not really sick—I was just all in last evening." Then I stopped and looked at her expectantly; for the life of me I could not ask the crucial question, although for the smiles I knew that everything was all right.

"Ma! Stetter sent me ahead to tell Mrs. Armstrong, that your husband responded immediately to the blood transfusion. His pulse and respiration show a marked improvement and his temperature is almost normal. He is able to speak. Indeed, Ma! Stetter said he had all he could do to keep him from talking too much."

The ready tears were running down my cheeks. You know, dear diary, that I'm not a weeping woman, but it seems to me I have wept gallons of tears since I came to this army post.

"When may I see my husband?" I asked. Now that no one was opposing me, I felt shy about meeting Paul again.

"Very soon, I am sure," answered Miss Murphy. "Ma! Stetter says that your husband is coming to the hospital as soon as I see my husband."

"What a charming man Mr. Adams is," remarked Miss Murphy brightly.

"Yes," was my fervent confirmation. Chick Adams has always been not only sympathetic and understanding ever since I have known him—and that has been since my first day at school when he was 8 and I was 6.

"At our first meeting I fell down and bumped my nose and my ridiculously tiny handkerchief was soon crumpled. While the other boys laughed at me, Chick pulled out his handkerchief and laid it over my forehead and with sympathetic words he helped me repair the damages."

The telephone rang. We both turned to it. Miss Murphy and I. I reached it first and snatched up the receiver.

"Will you please tell Mrs. Armstrong," said a voice in my ear, "that Ma Stetter says she may visit her husband any time now. You might take her up to his floor, Miss Murphy, and show her to his room."

"This is not Miss Murphy," I answered. "It is Mrs. Armstrong."

"Oh, you are up, Mrs. Armstrong?" The man I expected Miss Murphy would help me to dress and that you would get up to your husband's room in about an hour.

"My anxiety was so great, I couldn't stay in bed, so I dressed to be in readiness to leave this room and go to Paul the moment I was allowed to do so.

"Will you please send an orderly to Ma! Stetter and ask him if I may come up right away."

I hung up the receiver and rushed to the mirror. I sometimes think, dear diary, that the mirror is a woman's greatest friend and confidant. When we're sad we look into it and we weep. When we're glad we look into it and smile. When we're mad we look into it and frown, and when we're bad we look into it and snarl. The face in the mirror smiles back at me. My cheeks were pink with excitement and my eyes bright with returning hope. I had been reprieved at the last moment. Paul was going to live. I was not a murderer.

Shortly Ma! Stetter came after me. I felt my knees go wobbly as I walked down the hall and came to the door back of which my husband was lying. Evidently Ma! Stetter felt my arm tremble as it lay on his, for he whispered, "Courage, Mrs. Armstrong. There's nothing to be afraid of now. All your troubles are over. Your husband will live."

There was a slight commotion in the hall below. I heard Mrs. Armstrong, Sr.'s voice. Evidently the combined families had arrived.

"I am Lieut. Armstrong's mother," she was saying. "Why can we not go directly to his room?"

"I'm very sorry, madam," said an orderly in a courteous voice, "but Mrs. Armstrong, Jr., has just gone to her husband, and that will probably be all the company he can see today."

"Young man, you don't seem to realize that Cleo is my son's wife, and we are his parents. We are not company. What did the doctor send for us for, telling us our son had had a bad accident if the hospital authority did not intend to let us see him when we arrived?"
