

URGES THE STATE TO ADVERTISE AT VET CONVENTION

State Legion Commander Wants Oregon to Gain Publicity at National Meeting.

Dr. E. B. Stewart, state commander of the American Legion, is endeavoring to interest the chambers of commerce of advertising at a systematic campaign of advertising at the Omaha national convention of the veterans' organization.

At the banquet the veterans from each state meet around their own table, and this is an opportunity which Oregon might well take advantage of.

He is having each American Legion post take the proposition up with their respective Chambers of Commerce, and he is also taking up the matter with the state chamber.

MEXICAN INDIANS SLAY AN AMERICAN

EL PASO, Texas, Aug. 26.—An American was killed and another man, whose nationality was not determined, had his lower jaw shot away by a band of Indians who ambushed three cowboys southwest of Palomas, Chihuahua, Mexico, Saturday.

The report reached here through J. T. Lorios, chief of the fiscal guards at Palomas south of Columbus, N. M., who came to Juarez today to confer with officials about conducting warfare against the Indian band.

The American killed, Mr. Lorios said, is an employee of the Benton ranch, south of Columbus.

"We do not know to what tribe the renegades belong," Mr. Lorios said. "We do know that they are a desperate, bloodthirsty band and that they should be wiped out."

SOVEREIGN GRAND LODGE I. O. O. F. TO MEET IN PORTLAND

Representatives From Every State in Union to Be Present at Session Sept. 21 to 25.

A convention of international scope that will take place in Portland September 21 to 25, of general interest to the whole state of Oregon, is the Sovereign Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows.

This convention is not for Portland alone, but is being financed and handled by all of the Odd Fellows of the state.

The Odd Fellows Lodge has probably more members than any other fraternal organization in Oregon, there being over 43,000 members in the state, with approximately 500 separate lodges.

The whole world will be represented at the last census, at 2,700,000. There are 15,728 subordinate lodges, 3,671 Encampments, 10,182 Rebekah Lodges and 789 Cantons.

There will be official representatives from every state in the union as well as each of the Canadian provinces. The Order will also have representatives from all parts of Australasia, Cuba, and eastern countries.

The visitors are coming as guests of the lodge in the jurisdiction of Oregon, and an active committee has been at work in Portland since January this year planning the entertainment of the visitors which will likely run as high as $50,000.

An Advisory Committee, including the leading members of the Order in all parts of the state, is assisting the General Committee in arrangements to plan for the work. Among other things in the program which includes daily meetings of the Sovereign Grand Lodge, the Association of Rebekah Assemblies, and the General Military Council, there will be numerous bands to entertain the thousands of lay members who will be in Portland to put on drill contests and participate in a monster parade through the streets of the city Wednesday, September 23.

Practically every lodge in Oregon is sending organized marchers, floats and other special features to take part in this big parade, which in times past has had in the line as many as 50,000 people.

Besides the members of Oregon who will attend the big gathering almost en masse, the state of Washington is joining hands with Oregon and they are pledging 15,000 members from that state alone. Idaho has also organized to send to Portland numerous bands and organizations and will have three floats in the parade, one from the subordinate lodges, one from the Rebekah Lodge, and one from Eastern Idaho sponsored by the lodges at Pocatello which will depict Indian life and products.

One of the spectacular features of the big gathering will be the pageant showing the officers and uniform ranks of Patriarchs Militant. This is the military branch of the order, and a number of years ago, when the international gathering was in San Francisco, there were 2400 plumed marchers marching through the streets of that city.

Every city, as well as every small hamlet, has its Odd Fellow Lodge. It is really the lodge of the common people, and each of these lodges have a band of earnest workers now laying plans to participate in the international gathering.

PARAMOUNT WEEK TO BE ADVERTISED BY 3500 PAPERS

The power of newspaper advertising is revealed by the fact that 3500 newspapers, daily and weekly, will serve as the first line trench when the Famous Players-Lasky corporation tells the world about the eighth annual Paramount week, September 6-12.

More than $100,000 will be loaded into its big advertising guns that will be fired simultaneously on the first day of the week, one of the largest sums ever spent by any organization in American newspapers in a single day.

In the background, as a sort of reserve, will be the advertising guns trained on weekly and monthly magazines.

Exhibitors are looking forward to its advent because in the past it has proved a week of unusually good business and has attracted thousands to the theatres who do not attend regularly.

OREGON APPLES SHOW DECLINE

Oregon Apple conditions declined seven points during June, while Idaho improved 25 points, and Washington about 20 points, according to an article in the current issue of The California Produce News. Oregon shows a five-year average shipment of 5,263 cars. Shipments for the 1920-1924 period were: 4,271, 6,233, 3,830, 6,287, 6,144. The 1925 total should reach 5,500 cars.

Hood River District—This is one of the best known boxed apple districts of the country. About 80 per cent of Oregon apples come from this limited area. The district includes several Washington points, which supply about 600 cars total. Hood River proper ships around 2,000 cars; Mosier, Oregon, about 200; White Salmon, Wash., 400; Underwood, Wash., 200, and Lyle, Wash., about 75 cars, making the district show around 4,000 cars. These figures are based on the 1923 crop.

Eastern Oregon District—This is the second district of the state, shipping in 1923 about 1,700 cars. Milton led with 500; Freewater, 375; Imbler, 175; Brogan, Nyasa, Ontario and Vale, about 100 each. In other years these points have averaged about 50 cars. The only other stations of any importance are Elgin, 60; La Grande, 60; Hermiston, 40 and Stanfield, 40.

Rogue River District—Medford is the leading point. The district in 1923 shipped nearly 800 cars. Medford supplied 535. No other station showed 200 cars. Other points in the district are: Douglas, 300; Crescent, 30; Eugene, 30; Sheridan, 30; no other points move above 10 cars each.

Oregon counties, in their respective importance in shipping are: Hood River, 3,000 cars; Umatilla, 800; Jackson, 300; Malheur, 400; Wasco, 400; Union, 300; Douglas, 300.

The Hood River district shows about 10,000 acres in bearing, of which 49 per cent are Yellow Newtowns. Spitzenbergs show about 20 per cent. The other 20 per cent include Ortilys, Arkansas Blacks and Winter Bananas.

A BRIDE'S DIARY A Love Story of Today By Idah McGlone Gibson

The Story So Far. Cleo Madison after eloping with her boyhood sweetheart, Lieutenant Paul Armstrong, goes to his army post and she finds out almost immediately that married life is not too rosy. There is much intrigue at the post.

Rita Thorndike, wife of a no-good lieutenant, flees from the post after much gossip about her and Col. Blake's son. Cleo helps Rita and resolves not to let her own name become the subject of gossip. Paul exhibits a passion for gambling; loses $500 to the colonel one night, pays, and loses $500 to a pair of cheap gamblers the next night. He is broke and gives the gamblers his wife's car in settlement of the debt. Cleo is furious; the colonel wants to help and Paul is somewhat sullen. One angry word follows another after the colonel leaves. Cleo finally becomes so enraged at an insult from Paul that she throws a vase at him. It hits his head, makes a nasty gash and Paul is now in the hospital at death's door, due to the wound. Chick Adams, an old sweetheart, drops in at the army post and offers a blood transfusion to save Paul. The offer is accepted. He is now talking with Cleo in the hospital preparatory to undergoing the transfusion operation.

Cleo discovers Chick still loves her. He leaves the operating room and Cleo gets almost hysterical—she is waiting for the outcome. She is a murderer if Paul dies. The parents of the distressed married couple have been sent for and have arrived. Cleo hates Paul's mother—a nosy cat. Due to the transfusion of blood, donated by Chick, Paul will live, say the doctors.

COLD EMBERS. I stepped inside the hallway and clucked at the Major's arm. "That's Paul's mother and father. I don't mind his old dad so much, but please don't let his mother come up until after I've seen my husband. She would find it out if there was the slightest deviation in our stories."

"My dear chick, I won't let her get in to him until tomorrow morning. I don't like her voice. I am sure she would worry him."

"Thank you, dear Major. Will it hurt him if I talk to him a little?" "You can talk as much as you want to, if you do not say anything that will excite him. He's already asked to see you, and I don't blame him, for the knowledge that your husband is going to live has made you lovelier than ever."

"I'm afraid you're a flatterer Major."

I stepped inside the door. My husband looked very white as he lay with his eyes closed. His head was still bandaged. I called his name very softly. I did not want to wake him if he were asleep. "Paul! Paul! It is I, Cleo. Slowly my husband opened his eyes. As his glance caught mine his drawn lips widened into a smile."

"Dear Cleo."

His voice came to me just above his breath. "Dear Cleo," he repeated, then stopped as though even that effort was almost too much for him. I glided to the bed and kissed him.

"I'm so glad I did not kill you, soldier man."

Paul smiled again at my pet name for him, then he frowned. "Don't you ever speak that way again, Cleo. If I had died you would not have killed me. Always remember that."

"You were no more to blame for that accident than I. It was only because your temperament is more impetuous than mine, and I know that I provoked you beyond endurance. Since I have been lying here, I have thought a good deal about it. I think we have both found out that we have made many mistakes," he said sorrowfully, as he tried to lift his hand to my bowed head, but let it drop back again on the coverlid, and sighed.

"The Major says you're going to be all right in a very few days," I hastened to assure him. "I wasn't sighing about my body, dear. I know that Major Setter has taken care of that. I was sighing about—oh, dear. I don't know what I was sighing about. I was sighing, I guess, because I am too undisciplined in the affairs of life to make a game of it. I think we have both found out that our runaway marriage was all a mistake, dear."

"We had never had to take the initiative before and were too arrogantly sure of ourselves to marry and be happy ever after."

"What shall we do, Paul, in the future, when you are well?" "I don't know—I don't know. We'll talk that over when I do get well, dear."

"Did you know who saved my life by giving me his blood?" "Yes, Paul; it was Chick Adams."

"He's been a very good friend to me, dear. I don't think I've always appreciated him."

"There's something else that's very strange in all this. I've come to believe there is a special Providence that watches over such foolish, childish people as you and I. No one can ever tell me, after Chick's appearance on the scene at just the right moment, that it was just chance that sent him here to save my worthless life."

"Do you know, Cleo, I almost wish that I had died. Only you would have always charged yourself with my death."

"Dear diary, I wonder how other people feel when they look into each other's eyes and see only dead love lying between them. I am sure neither of us know what relief I could see that he was facing the future with as much uneasiness and uncertainty as I."

PENDLETON, Ore., Aug. 26.—(Special)—What Easter day means to the so-called gentler sex, Round-Up Hat Day, September 3, means to the men folks of Pendleton, for it is on that day that all loyal citizens cast aside their regular head-gear and don the western sombrero.

Hats ample of crown and brim are strictly the vogue, and to add further to the ensemble, Pendletonians wear gaudy Round-Up shirts and boots, so that staid citizens assume all the sartorial glory of the cowboy.
