KAPLAN RETAINS FEATHER TITLE BY DRAW WITH HERMAN

Champion Breaks Finger in Eighth Round—Former Driving Power Is Not Displayed.

...Last night's combat was staged after a seething afternoon in which Kaplan barely managed to scale the 125 pounds which is the limit for his weight. Police had to be called before the weighing had been completed, Herman's manager claiming the title, because as he said, the champion was over the limit. Representatives of the Connecticut boxing body, however, ended the argument by declaring that Kaplan had made the weight. Timekeeper Saved Kaplan. NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 25.—Sports followers here were busy today discussing the Kaplan-Herman fight of last night and some of the incidents which followed it, including the resignation of David F. Fitzgerald of this city, as a licensed referee of boxing, and the claims that many of the rounds went less than the required three minutes. Twice during the bout, Herman's manager walked around the edge of the ring to protest that the time of the rounds was being clipped many seconds. Fitzgerald, who is one of the best known sports followers and former boxing and wrestling officials in the state, today said that he returned his license as a referee to State Commissioner Thomas A. Donohue, last night as a protest against the use in the Kaplan-Herman bout of Jack Sheehan of Boston, when he understood up till 6 p. m. that he (Fitzgerald) would be the referee. Fitzgerald says that if he had referred the bout he would have given the decision to Herman, as in his opinion the latter took a majority of the rounds. James Cavaloro of this city, a licensed timekeeper, said today that after Herman's manager had made his first protest against "short rounds," State Commissioner Donohue sent him to the other side of the ring to check up on time, and that the watch showed that some rounds were eight and ten seconds short, and one round was 33 seconds short. St. George's Episcopal Church. Sunday services. Early service at 9:00 a. m. Church school at 9:45. No 11:00 a. m. service. Services at Riddle at 11:00 a. m. Rev. A. O. Dodge, Vicar.

First Church of Christ, Scientist. — Regular services are held Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Sunday School convenes each Sunday morning at 9:45; pupils from the age of 4 to 20 years may be admitted. The Reading Room in the basement of the Church is open daily from 2 to 4 p. m. The public is cordially invited to attend the meetings and visit the reading room. Subject of Sunday's Lesson is: "Christ Jesus."

Lutheran Services: Services next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Episcopal Parish House, 214 E. Cass St. "The Restoration of the Image of God Through Christ," will be the theme of our discourse. All are welcome. H. H. Young, pastor.

International Bible Students Association. Meet at the Moose Hall Sunday at 10 a. m. Bible study for children at 10:00 a. m. Adult Bible study at 10:30 a. m. In what twofold sense is the term "Kingdom" used? To what did most of the parables of Jesus relate? Should Christians expect the fulfillment of their prayers. The Kingdom come. They will be done on earth as in heaven? These and many other kindred questions will be the basis of our study Sunday. Study to show thyself approved. All are cordially invited to come and study with us.

Catholic Church, Kane and Oak streets. Rev. B. Clero, pastor. August 30th. Mass at 7 a. m. Catechism Class at 8:45 a. m. 2nd. Mass and Sermon at 9:30 a. m. Rosary and Benediction of the M. B. S. in the evening at 7:30.

First Presbyterian Church. Morning worship at 11 o'clock. "I live, yet not I," is the subject of the address. Choir must be under the direction of Mrs. Strang, with Mr. Arundel at the organ. One hour a week for the cultivation of the spiritual nature. Surely you need the tuning up of your life for the strain of the week. Sunday school opens at 9:45. The children should be learning Bible principles, getting moral culture, getting started right, if you expect them to end well. Come then with us and it will do them good."

First Methodist Church. Corner of Main and Lane streets. Rev. Joseph Knotts, pastor. Sunday school meets at 9:45 a. m. We have interesting classes. If you are not attending now is a good time to start. The morning sermon theme is, "The Time for Christian Activity." The Epworth League meets at 7 p. m. All young people urged to be present. Morning Worship, message by the pastor. An invitation to all to worship with us. 6:30 p. m. Young People's Social Hour. 7:00 p. m. Young People's meeting. Louise Jennings, acting president. All young people invited. 8:00 p. m. union services at the First Methodist church. The Baptist pastor will preach the sermon. The public is invited.

Christian Church. A nation that rides in automobiles ought not to let its children walk in ignorance. Yet that is what we are doing. Seventy per cent of our children are spiritual illiterates. Spiritual illiteracy is the seed bed of moral disruption, and national dissolution. Two hundred and forty thousand children in Oregon are getting no religious instruction. What are we going to do about it? One thing we can do is to put our children in the Bible classes that will be arranged for them this school year, during regular school hours as allowed by our last legislature. Parents see that your children attend these classes. The paper will give you full information later. September 6 is "Baby Day" in our Bible school. It is a day for all cradle roll members and their mothers. Come and see the babies.

They are to have their pictures taken at the church. We plan to have a half hundred present. Regular morning service at church next Sunday. In the evening the last union meeting will be held at the M. E. church. Brother Caldwell of the Baptist church will speak. The gospel team will speak next Sunday morning at Glengary. H. E. Mow.

Seventh Day Adventist—Church Building 1162 Military street. Sabbath school at 10 a. m. Saturday morning Devotional services at 11 o'clock. You are cordially invited to worship with us.

M. E. Church, South Corner Lane and Main streets. Stewart O'Dell, minister; W. L. Cobb, Sunday school Supt. Sunday school 9:45 a. m. Let all the parents bring their children to Sunday school this Sabbath day. There is a class for you here in a growing school. Preaching at eleven by Vernon R. Taylor, ministerial student at Willamette University. Senior Epworth League at 7 o'clock. Prayer meeting on next Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. Thursday at 2:30 o'clock the Woman's Missionary Society meets at the church in the regular business meeting of the month.

Bible Standard Mission. There will be no services in the hall while the tent meeting is in progress. Rev. L. F. Burrill, pastor.

PROPOSAL MADE TO
NAME IRISH BATTALIONS
AFTER FAMOUS CLANS

DUBLIN, Aug. 27.—(A. P.)—The Free State Army has 27 battalions of infantry, and it is now proposed that they shall be named after the most famous of the Irish clans, O'Byrnes, MacMahons, O'Neills and others. There are enough clan names to go round, and it is urged that the new titles would encourage patriotic ideals among the soldiers. It is also proposed that some units should bear the names of great Irishmen of the past from Sarafied to Collins.

MEMBER OF COMMONS
VIOLATES RULES THREE CENTURIES OLD.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—When Sir Harry Hope rose in the House of Commons to speak from one of the front benches, he was greeted with loud cries of "Order." He sat down, puzzled, but rose again only to be greeted with more shouts of "Order."

A member pointed out that he had violated a 200 year old rule by putting his foot beyond a red line at the edge of the carpet in front of him. These lines, he said, were placed there in Stuart days, when the Roundheads in Parliament were bitterly attacking the Cavalier supporters of Charles I. The members in those days were alarmed and it was feared that debates might end in violence, so the red line was placed beyond which they were not supposed to pass during debate.

A BRIDE'S DIARY

A Love Story of Today

By Idah McGlone Gibson

Cleo Madison eloped with Lieutenant Paul Armstrong, U. S. A. It does not take Cleo long to discover marriage is not a path of roses. On the train, going to the army post, she has an allegorical dream indicating her future problems. The colonel, Arthur Blakely Beldon, of the post, is a lady killer, and his actions have compromised Rita Thorndike, the wife of a reputable lieutenant. Rita is innocent and Cleo forms an immediate and deep friendship for her. Rita, at Cleo's instigation, decides to leave the post and joins a vaudeville troupe under the name Rheda Thorwaldson. Paul has been having his troubles, chiefly liquor and gambling. Cleo refuses to be gushing sympathetic. The post is a series of domestic troubles when Rita leaves and the colonel implores Cleo to give him information—unsuccessfully. Cleo, between Cleo and Paul, Cleo puts Paul in the hospital by hitting him on the head with a vase. After a serious time Paul passes through due to a blood transfusion from Chick Adams, an old sweetheart of Cleo's. Paul's mother and father have arrived, called to the post because of their son's desperate illness. Cleo's father has also come.

"OH DADDY"
I didn't want to make any explanations, dear diary, to Paul's mother, until I knew what Paul really wanted me to say. I could see that she was overcome with curiosity and would not be satisfied until she knew the whole story. I intended to tell her that I had thrown the vase at my husband's head, but I wanted him to know that I was a temptress. I would have said, "I'm a temptress, I have always thought that I had the courage of my convictions, and I had—when the consequences did not amount to much."

There is nothing in a world that takes the ego out of a woman like marriage. She goes to her husband thinking that everything she does is right, and if it isn't right, her husband will always think it is. The first thing she finds out is that there are very many things which she thinks perfectly right which her husband thinks all wrong. I wonder what my satiated grandmother thought—for I am quite sure she ran up against as many problems in "The Behavior and Etiquette of a Wife," as I have. I just can't say that she really almost murdered her husband, but I know she had a temper, for when I got mad at home everyone said, I was just like her. Oh, I want to forget all about my awful fit of temper. Every time I think that perhaps Paul might have died, I grow perfectly cold. And I grow almost as shivery and cold when I think that I have to tell Paul's mother what I did. Again I tried to persuade Mrs. Armstrong to go over to the house, and finally got them coming up the steps into the hallway, and lastly murmuring: "There comes Dad!" I left Mrs. Armstrong standing in the middle of the hospitable reception floor and started out the door. When I saw the fat, squatly figure of my father, I knew it was he that I wanted. I rushed up to him saying: "Oh, Daddy, I'm so glad you came," as I threw myself into his arms. As he bent down to kiss me, I whispered to him: "I don't think I ever lived through another day without you."

"Here, here, little girl, don't go crying like that, just because your old Dad has come down to see you. Everything is all right. The doctor says Paul will be out in a week, so there's nothing to worry about. To have had Mrs. Armstrong here that probably it would have been better if we just had stayed at home and I had let Mrs. Armstrong come alone as she wanted to."

You may be sure, dear diary, that I blessed the destiny or fate that sent the two men with Paul's mother. To have had Mrs. Armstrong alone would have been a punishment for me that would have fitted my crime. I didn't tell this to Dad, though, for at this moment Mr. Armstrong came forward and kissed my cheek.

"I'm glad we both came, Cleo," he said, "for I am sure that your father and I can work out things for you two children much better than my wife can all alone. I would never be satisfied that you and Paul had started out right until I had seen it with my own eyes."

"Here, Madison, you take Cleo and I'll go in and get my wife and we'll go over to Paul's quarters and get all straightened out. I began to tremble again. Oh, I couldn't go the whole thing again before Mrs. Armstrong—they must let me wait until Paul could be there with me."

I was very grateful to Mr. Armstrong for giving me a few moments with my father, but when he had gone in to the hospital to get his wife, I did not know how to tell Dad quickly all that I had to relate. Instead, I blurted out: "Daddy, I'm very unhappy."

"I know it," answered my father, "I saw it on your face, daughter, before you spoke."

"Father, I wish I never had married!" I caught my breath shortly—I had not intended to say that!

"Come, come, my child, you are overwrought, what with Paul's accident and—" I interrupted my father.

"But, it was not an accident. Dad—I did it."

"What are you talking about, Cleo?" my father asked sharply. (To be continued.)

HOTEL MAN SAYS HIGH PRICES MAKE AMERICANS SHUN BERLIN

BERLIN, Aug. 27.—High prices and not enough for the visitors' money is the answer of Kurt Luep-schultz, general manager of the Hotel Operating Company, why so few American tourists visit Berlin. Writing in the weekly Berlin he expressed that opinion at the same time declaring it possible for foreigners to live cheaper in Berlin than in Paris, London or New York. The prices charged by hotels in Paris and London, the writer said, are at least 50 per cent higher than in Berlin, not to speak of New York.

Hans Lonert, head of the largest hotel and restaurant syndicate in Germany, recently returned from a trip to the United States. He expressed the opinion that nowhere in the world is the cost of living so expensive as in New York.
