ROSEBURG, OREGON, MONDAY, AUG. 31, 1925.

PIERCE AND HIS INCOME TAX.

In his campaign for re-enactment of the income tax law, Governor Pierce unmistakably shows the need of relief for the over taxed farmer, but the general belief seems to prevail that such a law will never again come into being in this state unless a distinction is made between the individuals and the corporations. Thousands of individuals who voted to reject an income tax applicable to themselves would probably not hesitate to favor such a law for corporations, although the latter can present arguments well worth serious consideration. It has been pointed out that the proportion of farmers to Oregon's entire population is greater than in California or Washington; that this state needs more factories and other mechanical industries; that added tax obligations will keep them away, and that more industries naturally mean more consumers for the products of the farms. These contentions were largely responsible for the repeal of the income tax law, but it is doubtful if they would carry as much weight with the average individual if his own income were not also involved in the result of the ballot. The action of the governor and his former colleague—Jefferson Myers—in reducing the state levy has been ascribed to pique over the defeat of the income tax law, but be that as it may the situation is here to be met. If the state government can be maintained by taxes not drawn in most part from farm revenues, as Mr. Pierce advocates, it will make the upkeep of municipal and county governments comparatively easy and at the same time permit of more rapid local development. An example of the latter sort is before this county now in the way of projected road improvement in the coast region, where over $100,000 must be raised by local taxation through a union of road districts. If the taxpayers thereof were relieved of the burden of their share of state taxes, it would make the other obligation proportionately easier to bear. And this is but one instance of the kind out of a great many in this state. There should be some revision of the tax laws to make the burden more uniform, but little hope is seen for success of the plan suggested by the governor, chiefly because it has once been rejected and too recently. Besides his advocacy of a tobacco tax has stirred up animosity that has alienated support that would have been given to an income tax measure and caused credence to be given to the assertion of his political foes that his motives are based on "soreness" rather than on feelings of sincerity and sound judgment.

Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth have made baseball history by their pre-eminence as players in America's premier sport, but how differently they approach the termination of their careers. After 20 years in the service of the Detroit club, Cobb was honored by a vast throng of fans in his home city last Saturday and presented with a specially voted gift of $1,000. On the same day and about the same hour, at St. Louis, Mo., Ruth was fined $5,000 and sent home because of his failure to keep in proper physical condition and resultant mediocre playing in ill-requital of the princely salary which his club was paying him. Ruth has been in the game professionally about one-half as long as Cobb, yet he is about done for as a player in fast company. Cobb, on the other hand, at nearly 40 years of age, is second on the list of American league batters at the present time, the man ahead of him—Speaker—being also a veteran in the game. These cases illustrate the need of "keeping fit" if one is to succeed in his chosen field of endeavor and in that success win the esteem and plaudits of his fellow beings. Cobb and Speaker have lived clean normal lives and are rounding out careers that attest to it. Ruth, on the other hand, by failure to control his appetite and moderate his habits, has plunged from the highest pedestal of popularity into a grave of "has-beens" to be pointed out as an object lesson to others inclined along the same path.

The tide of wealth that has been flowing into Mexico to satisfy the craving for interior irrigation, horse racing and bull fights is about to begin ebbing back across the border. Mexico announces that she is preparing to pay off her national debt of half a billion dollars, most of which is due the United States. What a pity Canada is not also on the debit side of Uncle Sam's ledger. She does face, however, the moral duty of preventing the running of contraband, but so far she has made little effort to perform it for the obvious reason that the boasted million-dollar-a-month patronage of our "scofflaw" horde is a material contribution to the liquidation of her domestic obligations. Principal (and interest) first, principle afterwards.

Well, boys, how about that road up the North Umpqua river? Isn't it about time that some action, in a concrete form, was taken? This would be a good job for the Chamber of Commerce publicity manager to initiate and place before our representatives in congress. Once under way it will go over.

Into the discard with the three R's. Give us instead a slogan better suited to modernity, such, for example, as the three J's—Jazz, Jags and Joy-riding.

A lot of people are coming down to earth for September morning—after their annual vacation. And, it's a terrible trial getting back on the job.

School days are fast approaching. Even the youngsters have important tasks before them.

A HEAT SPASM

At home, the office, on the street, the only topic is the heat. Forgotten is all the talk of shop, of books, of travel, and what-not. For politics we do not care, we are simply gasping for more air. The ship of state may spring a leak, but what care we in all this heat.

Our one-time friends we now abhor, their presence merely is a bore. Indifferent to their joy or grief, we are vainly seeking some relief.

We hie unto some stream or lake and in a boat we sit and bake. A brief respite sometimes we snatch, in case we have a goodly catch.

We'd like to kill the folks who say: "Is it hot enough for you today?" Down our cheeks the moisture streams and good old winter haunts our dreams. Why, oh, why did we complain of frost or snow or chilling rain? The price is high of coal and oil. 'Tis better far to freeze than boil.

We eye with deep distaste our food. It isn't suited to our mood. The butter's soft, the milk is sour, the bread gets mouldy in an hour. When in some park we spread our lunch, the ants come running in a bunch. They swarm the pie, they mob the cake, of each viand a sample take. As for those mangy pests, the flies, each seem to have a thousand lives. When on our porch we sit at night we hear the mosquitoes' droning flight. And then a rapier thrust we feel as he consumes his evening meal.

Sweethearts no longer love the moon. It really is too hot to spoon.

The corn is wilting, so are we, we are just as hot as we can be. The sun beats down in sweltering waves. We wish that men still lived in caves.

Let us, each weary, heat-razed soul, migrate to the old North Pole. There in a nice, cool house of snow, dwell like the merry Eskimo. Let's Go.

CAILLAUX COMING TO UNITED STATES TO FIX WAR DEBT

PARIS, Aug. 29.—Official announcement was made today that Finance Minister Caillaux will sail on the liner Paris September 16 to initiate the debt funding negotiations with the United States.

M. Caillaux will be accompanied by one expert. The remainder of the French mission is to follow either on September 19 or 23.

It is also announced today that there is no disagreement between M. Caillaux and Foreign Minister Briand concerning the ratio of political men to financiers on the mission. The ministers, however, are finding it extremely difficult to choose from all the political applicants, three times as many having applied as there are places.

The financiers have already been chosen, but their names are withheld pending completion of the list.

CITY DUMP FIRE BREAKS OUT AGAIN, NEW FIGHT STARTED

After a four-day fight in an effort to gain control of the city dump ground fire, the fire department reported Saturday evening that they had the blaze extinguished, but today the dump was pouring out smoke again, almost as bad as ever, and the city officials were making preparations to resume their efforts to overcome the stubborn fire. Saturday the firemen poured water from two lines of hose on the dump for six hours, and for four hours after every visible sign had disappeared, they continued the soaking process. At 4 o'clock there was not even steam to be seen and they were confident that they had reached the bottom of the pile with the water and that the fire was entirely out.

Sunday morning, however, the smoke was again seen issuing from the rubbish, and today the smoke and smell were as bad as ever. The only method to be used in extinguishing the fire, apparently, is to tedious, shovel out the rubbish from the burning section, sifting down ... rubbish as the workmen uncover it, until the bottom of the pile is reached. This will take several days, and a great deal of hard work, but evidently is necessary. The fire must be halted, as the smoke carries a most offensive odor.

R. D. RAMP UNDER ARREST ON CHARGE LODGED BY WOMAN

Rolla D. Ramp, a former butcher of this city, and a son of B. F. Ramp, a prominent socialist politician who once lived on Deer Creek, east of Roseburg, is under arrest at Marshfield, Coos county, charged with lewd cohabitation. Concerning the case, the Marshfield Times of August 29 says:

Ramp is accused by Leona Uehlinger, stepdaughter of L. H. Way, local fisherman. She is said to be about 40 and Ramp about 50.

Justice Rust and Constable Richardson were looking into a report today that Mrs. Uehlinger has a husband in Texas from whom she has never been divorced. The charges in the case extend back over a period of about three years and date from the time they lived on the lower Umpqua, near Gardiner.

Ramp, Justice Rust said, admitted that he had been caring for the woman and said that he paid a hospital bill of $300 for her last spring. She is said to have suffered a stroke of paralysis. She has no children.

Ramp has been fishing on Rogue river recently.

GROWERS FACE LOSSES FROM PRUNE BROWN ROT

O. A. C. Experiment Station, Corvallis, Aug. 31.—Severe losses from prune brown rot are indicated in western Oregon this year in numerous observations by extension horticulturists. Growers who spray for it immediately will probably net a large profit on the costs of application. While infection cannot be entirely prevented it can be materially reduced by thoroughly covering the fruit with spray.

Either a bordeaux mixture 2-2-50 to which casein spreader may be added if desired, or atomic sulfur 12 pounds to 100 gallons of water, or Oregon cold mix 8-4-50, or other sulfur-containing sprays not likely to burn as does lime-sulfur is recommended by the experiment station plant pathologists.

The correct methods of making bordeaux and Oregon cold mix are described in station bulletin 201. Proper preparation and thorough covering are essential to success.

ROOF FIRE SUNDAY.

The fire department was called out Sunday for a roof fire at one of the small houses at the corner of Sheridan and Mosher streets. The fire was extinguished before any great amount of damage was done.

CHINESE STRIKE SPREADS.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

SHANGHAI, Aug. 29—The strike movement against foreign employers gradually is spreading to Chinese concerns. The employes of a large Chinese printing plant are out and unrest is reported among the workers in two department stores and the printers employed by the Chinese newspapers.

PEKING, Aug. 29.—The students at the government colleges have decided to end their strike, called in sympathy with the anti-foreign movement. They will return to their studies when the fall term begins.

PORTLAND EIGHT BEATS MEDFORD 2 FLIGHTS TO ONE

MEDFORD, Ore., Aug. 31.—In one of the most successful tournaments ever held at the Medford golf club, a team of eight players from various clubs in Portland defeated the local goners here Saturday and Sunday by winning two flights to one. W. J. Roup, of Portland, won the finals in the first flight from C. E. Nelson of Portland six up and five to play; Walter E. Pearson of Portland won the second flight from L. C. Newlands of Portland six to five, and George Roberts, of Medford, won the third flight defeating Gordon Voorhies of Medford two up.

Chandler Egan, of Medford, made the lowest score of the tournament when he turned in a 67 for 18 holes, establishing a new course record. He defeated Nelson in a first flight exhibition match, but defaulted, so as to give the less prominent players a chance for the prizes. H. Thompson, captain of the Waverly Golf team, made the second lowest score, a 76, but defaulted to Roup, leaving Sunday morning for Portland.

The closest match of the meet was between L. C. Newlands of Portland and Harry Rosenberg of Medford, in the semi-finals of the second flight, finally won by Newlands on the twentieth green. The winners and the runners up in each flight were given handsome prizes.

A consolation handicap match was also held Sunday afternoon and was won by Wheldon Biddle of Medford with a net score of 73; H. Chandler Egan, who played scratch, was second with a 74. A return match between the two teams will be played in Portland at a later date.

KEARNS OFFERED $150,000 FOR HIS DEMPSEY RIGHTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Charlie Rose, manager of Bartley Madden and eastern representative of Floyd Fitzsimmons, Michigan City, Ind., promoter today wired to Jack Kearns offering $150,000 for Jack Dempsey's contract.

Rose would not reveal whom he represents in the venture, but he intimated that two others were interested with him in the $150,000 offer. His telegram, addressed to Kearns at the Hotel Barbara, Los Angeles, Cal., follows:

"Would you be willing to sell your contract with Jack Dempsey? Will give you $150,000 cash. Will leave for Los Angeles immediately upon answer to this wire if you mean business."

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Aug. 31.—Promoter Floyd Fitzsimmons today said he had not authorized Charlie Rose to offer Jack Kearns $150,000 for his contract with Jack Dempsey. "I guess Rose is after some free publicity," he commented.

AUTO ACCIDENT AT MEDFORD PUTS TWO IN HOSPITAL

MEDFORD, Ore., Aug. 31.—Leonard Price, of San Francisco, and Albert Shaw of this city are in a local hospital, suffering from scalp wounds and lacerations as a result of an automobile accident last night at Riverside avenue and Jackson street. Frank Joslyn of San Francisco, driver of the Price car, is held on a charge of reckless driving. It is alleged that the Price automobile was traveling at a high rate of speed when it crashed into the Shaw car, wrecking both.

ROSEBURG TENNIS PLAYERS WIN AT COOS BAY TOURNEY

Roseburg tennis players walked away with all honors at the inter-city tournament held at Marshfield yesterday. Royd Bruton, of this city, took the singles championship, while a team composed of Bruton and Hubert Gilmore won the doubles.

Two teams were entered by Marshfield, Roseburg, Coquille and North Bend, while individual players from these teams made up the contenders for the single honors. In playing singles Bruton won all his matches by straight sets with one exception three sets being required in that match.

In the semi-final doubles a Roseburg team composed of Ritter and Hunt was defeated by a Marshfield team, but this team was beaten by Bruton and Gilmore, who in turn won from Coquille in the finals, the winning sets being 11-9 and 6-2.

HAS CONCLUSIVE EVIDENCE OF LIFE ON MARS, SAYS CAMBRIDGE MAN.

CAMBRIDGE, England, Aug. 31.—G. H. Hamilton of Trinity College, soon will present to the International Astronomical Union what he regards conclusive evidence of the existence on Mars of sentinent being with a civilization of 90,000 years to their credit.

"My proofs are forthcoming," said Dr. Hamilton recently, "that Mars is in the condition the earth is approaching—that is, a desert. Once it had seas, but they have disappeared. The mountains and hills are gone, worn away by wind erosions. The canals are not ditches nor water courses, as commonly supposed, but vegetation on each side of conduits of water. These conduits are routes of travel for commerce and anything else."

CALIFORNIA TOWN PICKS UP AND MOVES TO NEW LOCATION

BARSTOW, Cal., Aug. 31.—This little town of approximately 3,000 persons, lying on the outskirts of the Mojave desert, an important link in transcontinental railroad traffic, is on the move. The business section is being shifted to a new site a quarter of a mile away.

Two conditions were largely responsible for the transplanting. One was that the National Old Trails highway runs through Barstow three blocks from the business center. The other was that the old townsite lies between passenger tracks and freight yards used jointly by the Santa Fe and Union Pacific. Both were in the market for the land, for its acquisition would enable freight and passenger yards to be united.

CANADIAN BEER HAS LOST CHARM FOR U. S. TOURISTS

DETROIT, Aug. 31.—The tourist season is under full steam now and the ferries and bridges are crowded with Ontario-bound Americans, but the situation in the Promised Land for the thirsty is peculiarly drab for those who expected to get a quench out of the widely heralded "4.4 beer."

What has become of the emigrating thousands whose feet tramped hurriedly across the gang planks of Detroit-Windsor ferries and rushed the International bridge at Niagara in that grand but rather short-lived offensive extending along a great front from Port Huron and points north to the Georgian bay region to Buffalo and along the St. Lawrence river?

It is a question that frequently confounds the callous border city citizen when the visitor whispers the inquiry. The answer, which is indirect, but pertinent to the question, usually comes readily and with a tinge of scorn, though polite: "Oh, it's on tap over there," indicating a hotel or inn. "We don't drink it, you know."

The beer is available in most inns, hotels, and restaurants throughout the province. Diligent search in some instances will disclose cases of a beverage resembling in color and hardly exceeding in alcoholic content the near-beer concoction so freely sold in this country. The connoisseur, if there be such in the field of beerology, has proclaimed it weak, tasty but weak.

In the meantime, the province has gone placidly on its way maintaining to the ordinary observer the same aspect it bore before the amended temperance act went into effect.

LABOR DISPUTES CAUSE LOSS OF MILLIONS OF DAYS IN ENGLAND

LONDON, Aug. 31.—Over 8,000,000 working days were lost during 1924 in England owing to labor disputes, which numbered 709 and involved 612,000 work people, says the Ministry of Labor Gazette. The annual loss of working time owing to industrial disputes during 32 years averaged 12,400,000 days, equivalent to less than one day per head of the whole employed population. During 1919-22 the figures were much above the average, but in 1923 and 1924 as well as the first six months of 1925 they have fallen to considerably less than an annual average of one day per head of the employed population.

In 1921 nearly 86,000,000 days were lost through disputes mostly in the coal trade.

SARGENT'S WORK WILL NOT DEPRECIATE SAYS BRITON.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—It is sheer nonsense to suggest that the late John Singer Sargent's pictures will be worth less in a hundred years than they are today, Sir Iliam Orpen, declared when told of a rumor that some of the pictures which fetched such high prices recently already showed signs of deterioration on account of the inferior quality of modern pigments.

"Modern pigments are just a good, and certainly as durable, as those used by any of the old masters," continued Sir John. "A great deal of nonsense has been talked about those Sargent prices," he added. "Six thousand pounds is none too much to pay for a copy of a masterpiece, if Sargent was the copyist. I should have paid it myself if I had the money.

"After all, it is Sargent's interpretation of a great work, and it has a tremendous artistic interest on that account. It is not merely slavish imitation. I have not seen this particular work myself, but he has surely breathed something of his own spirit into it.

"He was not, however, like Manet, another great copyist. Manet used original works in the same way that a great pianist uses a theme on which to improvise. Sargent did not improvise. He merely interpreted. And I should like to see the same work copied by other masters, just as I would like to hear a dozen pianists play the same Beethoven sonata.

"As far as I know, this is the first sale at which a copy has fetched a high price. It will not be the last."
