PLANE FORCED DOWN WITHIN SIGHT OF GOAL

The afloat tender Langley came from the Doyen at 4:45 o'clock, 13 hours and 27 minutes as the official point of departure. A few minutes after Rear Admiral Williams Moffatt, chief of the naval aeronautical bureau, and Captain Stanford E. Moses, flight project commander, had ordered the mines sweeper Gannett with its equipment for hoisting a plane from the water, to hasten from this port to the point where the PN-9 number 3 was forced into the water about four hours and a half after the start of the flight, word was received from the Destroyer William Jones that it had taken the plane in tow.

Commander H. B. Taylor, of the William Jones, advised Admiral Moffatt that he was making seven knots an hour with the plane, and was directed to proceed slowly toward San Francisco, while the Gannett continued toward him.

Adjustment of the new power plant in the PB-1 plane, the 24,000 pound aircraft from a Seattle factory, was being made today by the expert machinists who yesterday completed its installation and made a short test flight. Every effort was being made to make the big Boeing plane ready to start tomorrow afternoon on a flight which it is now planned will be 85 miles than that on which the PN-9, number 1, was still flying. The Boeing aircraft will be given orders to continue, if possible, past the Pearl Harbor landing on the island of Oahu to Nawiliwili, 5 miles farther west.

What was declared by the flight headquarters here to be a record for radio transmission from a plane was established last night when the PN-9, number 1, established wireless communication with Hilo, from which it was then still 1,500 miles distant.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—The seaplane PB-1, third of the trans-Pacific fliers, probably will take off for Honolulu tomorrow.

Carrying 24,000 pounds, the same amount it will lift when it sails over the Pacific, the mammoth plane made a successful flight today with Rear Admiral William A. Moffatt, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics, as a passenger. Naval headquarters announced that PB-1 probably would begin her flight for Hawaii from the wa-

DALRYMPLE FIRES ANOTHER PEN GUARD.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

SALEM, Ore., Sept. 1.—Wright Gardner, guard at the prison, who testified as to the lack of discipline in the institution before the coroner's jury investigating into the causes of the Murray-Kelley-Wilcox break of Aug. 12, was discharged yesterday by Warden Dalrymple for disloyalty. It became known today.

During the manhunt for the three fugitive convicts last month when Gardner was in the field night and day almost without sleep, Warden Dalrymple told the newspapermen: "Gardner is one of the best men that I have and I have every confidence in him and his judgment."

ters of the Golden Gate off Crissy Field, instead of from San Pablo Bay from which the other planes departed.

The disabled seaplane PN-9, number 3, will try another non-stop flight from San Francisco to Hawaii as soon as she can be repaired.

FIND CAMELS BONES.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1.—Six million years ago, a freak storm drove thousands of camels, each eight or nine feet high, into an area 10 by 4 miles near Lusk, Wyoming. Probably all of them perished.

The skulls, limb bones and neck of one of these American Camels have been discovered by Paul C. Miller, curator of the Walker museum at the University of Chicago. He is sending them together with 1600 pounds of miscellaneous fossils, found in the Miocene and Oligocene areas of Nebraska, Wyoming, and South Dakota, to the museum here.

A million years after the storm, two megalotheriids, or three-toed horses, ancestors of the modern Dobbin, died near Sheep Creek, Nebraska. Their skeletons, about as large as Shetland ponies, have been found.

In the Oligocene strata, going back 10,000,000 years, Dr. Miller found a saber-toothed tiger, another three-toed horse, and a giant Hantherium, a distant relative of the modern rhinoceros with a skull two and a-half feet long.

The camel was encased in a rock covering built around it by centuries. More than a year will be required to remove all the bones from their rock envelopes.
