DOUGLAS COUNTY SCOUTS TO JOIN IN HIKING PARTY

An excellent opportunity for a real outing is being offered by E. A. Britton, Douglas county scout executive, over Sunday and Monday, September 6 and 7. The Eugene boy scouts are taking their annual camps and lads hike on that day, and have invited Roseburg scouts and business men to accompany them. Mr. Britton, who has made 15 trips to the summit of the Three Sisters, has been secured as the guide for the trip. Mr. Britton has made eight trips to the top of the Middle Sister, which is to be climbed by the Eugene and Roseburg parties. Mr. Britton desires to get in touch with any men or scouts who desire to make the trip, and those interested can reach him either at his office at the army or at his home.

PIONEER MAN DIES

(Associated Press Local Wire) PENDELTON, Ore., Sept. 2.—Thomas J. Loftus, 62, Union county pioneer, died here yesterday afternoon. Mr. Loftus is survived by his widow, a brother, Patrick Loftus of Enterprise, Ore., two sisters, Miss Della Loftus of San Francisco and Mrs. Anna Quinn, county Galway, Ireland.

Mr. Loftus was born in county Galway, Ireland, in 1863 and came to Oregon, where he settled at Starkey, Union county, where he took up farming. He moved to Pendleton four and one half years ago.

Today's Markets

(Associated Press Local Wire) PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 2.—With the poultry association carrying out their threats to sell eggs under the exchange prices, values were posted lower during the yesterday afternoon session. Extras are down one cent to the 41 cent level. At the same time current receipts advanced a cent to 33 cents net. Firsts and pullets held unchanged. Today the association is offering extra eggs to Portland stores at 39 cents, according to Manager Dixon, or two cents a dozen under the price established on the dairy exchange. Negotiations are under way to patch up the differences between the association and the exchange, but as yet, little headway has been made. In the meantime the "egg war" continues with the retail dealers reaping the benefit. A large part of the controversy is woven around storage eggs, the association claiming that the large holdings in the coolers are the reason for boosting prices on the exchange, so that operators can get out with a profit on storage stocks. Other members of the exchange emphatically deny that cooler stocks have any more than the usual influence in the trend of prices on the board. Cube butter is practically higher in the local market today with standard and prime firsts cubed up a half cent at 43 and 47 cents respectively. Other grades unchanged, but market firm. Storage holdings are lighter than a week ago in local coolers and considerably total holdings a year ago at Portland. Country dressed meats and live poultry are steady and unchanged. Receipts continue moderate with little trading along the street. There is a good demand for fancy hogs and calves and all lines of poultry. The local hog market is firmly established at 20 cents. Not only are buyers unable to pick up stocks under that figure, but several sales of new crop have already been transacted at 20 cents. One sale of foggles brought 20 1/2 cents. PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 2.—Eggs, extras cent lower; receipts cent higher; current receipts 32 cents a dozen. Pullets 30 1/2@31c; firsts 32 1/2@33c. Extras 36 1/2@37c. Butter firm; fractionally higher; extra cubes city 50c; standards 48c. Prime firsts 47c. Butterfat firm, unchanged. Poultry firm unchanged. Spuds and onions steady, unchanged. Nuts steady, unchanged. Canned bark steady, unchanged. Hops firm at 20c; new crop 18 1/2@20c. PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 2.—Cattle nominally steady unchanged; receipts cattle 80; calves 15. Hogs nominally steady; receipts 160 (90 on contract). Sheep nominally steady; receipts 320. Quick turnover. Advertisers. A classified ad today brings sales tomorrow.

FEEDING U. S. WITH OWN PRODUCTS SOON PROBLEM, ASSERTED

(Associated Press Local Wire) SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 2.—Sentiment so far developed in the hearings being conducted by the United States Senate sub-committee on public lands, "points with favor toward a leasing policy of unreserved public domain with local option privileges," Senator Robert N. Stanford, of Oregon, chairman, declared upon the arrival of the committee here today. "This generally is in line with the policy of the interior department," he said. "There is no demand for transfer of power over grazing rights from one department to another, but the stock men are highly favorable to the creation of a new commission before which they could present their views." In formulating any new grazing policy the public as well as the stock raisers and farmers will be taken into consideration, he continued, and declared that any policy that would tend to raise the price of meat would be unpopular.

Senator Tasker L. Odde of Nevada, a member of the committee in the eastern interests, wants the returns from the public lands to be placed in the national treasury.

"They have had their pie and now they want part of ours," he said. Senator Stanford expressed the belief that development of the Columbia basin project should not be delayed. "What right has the department of the interior to say when the Columbia basin project shall be built?" asked Senator Ralph Cameron of Arizona, referring to a recent report of a commission of the interior department recommending delay in development. "That is a question for congress to consider." "The time isn't far distant when feeding our own people with our own products will be a serious problem," Senator Stanford said. "Why not start now so we shall be able to meet the situation?" The committee held no hearing here. It will continue to Yakima where a hearing is to be held tomorrow.
