Fall Fashion Revue to Be Presented Wednesday

An announcement of interest was made today by Manager L. A. Goux, of the Antlers Theatre, who has arranged a Fall Fashion Show, for Wednesday evening, September 9, at 8:15 o'clock.

Sixteen attractive Roseburg girls will display a variety of beautiful coat, dress, hat and shoe models, from a number of Roseburg stores, and Mr. Goux has arranged a number of unique features, which will make the fashion show a fitting opening for the fall season.

"The soldiers of the different countries in their unusual costumes drew their share of attention, but the life guardsmen of Whitehall, London, would captivate the attention of anyone who has eyes with which to see."

"The children of the different countries were of especial interest. Many of them appeared to be poorly nourished which would be the natural effect of war. Italian children proved their ability to use English by saying, 'Give me a penny.' I could not help comparing them with the lively children of our land and felt happy to know that I am privileged to teach the 'go-gutters' of America."

"During the voyage to Montreal someone mentioned Roseburg which caused us to look for it in a Canadian Pacific folder. Imagine my chagrin when it was not shown on the map while Grants Pass and Ashland were. I hope the booster clubs of our town will see that it is placed there. I must add that we found another map which gave Roseburg."

"Several people asked me how the Canadian Rockies compare with the Alps. While each has certain characteristics that surpass the other, I admire the Canadian mountains more. Americans may remain in this country and see some of the best scenery in the world. 'We had delightful traveling companions, magnificent hotels, most wonderful things to see, which made our journey one continuous period of pleasure and interest, but with all this 'America for me'."

WHERE GOD IS FOUND The following poem by Aiden Harness of Roseburg, appeared in the September issue of the Reality Magazine. Where sweep across the boundless prairie The cool, moist winds amain; Where quickly spread the clouds that carry Their wealth of needed rain; Where Spring with dark green mantle covers The rich and mellow sod; I find that Nature to her lovers Reveals the work of God. Where wild red berries grow; Where vales repose in shifting shadows; Where honeysuckles blow; Where by the river one discovers The tall bright goldenrod; I find that Nature to her lovers Reveals the work of God. Where lie the long wide valleys, dreaming Beneath the summer skies; Where mountains, with snow-summits bleaming, In purple distance rise; Where silence in the forest hovers; Where man has seldom trod; I find that Nature to her lovers Unfolds the law of God. -ALDEN HARNESS
