HEROES OF AIR FLIGHT TELL STORY OF TRIP

Failure to Pick Up Trade Winds as Expected Reason for Failure.

MODESTY IS SHOWN

Each Fails to Take Credit for Daring Acts But Points to Commander's Optimism.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
HONOLULU, Sept. 12.—All rested, all happy and all asleep, America's five new heroes of aerial navigation were at Pearl Harbor today recovering from their strenuous cruise of being cast about by vagrant winds in mid-Pacific for 9 days on the seaplane PN-9, No. 1. The men were ordered to bed at hospital last night after their arrival here from Lihue aboard a steamer. They were received with open arms by the island populace headed by Governor Wallace R. Farrington.

Every member of the crew was able to tell a sparkling story of their unprecedented adventure. John Rodgers, commander of the cruise, dictated a statement detailing the sensations which came to him during the nine day trip, and his associates, and the flight, augmented his story with details that made made new history for the United States navy.

The statements revealed the innate modesty of every member of the crew. Each declined to take credit for his own daring acts of heroism but all pointed to "Captain John's" optimism in the face of disaster and privation, as the saving grace of the trying situation. "Captain John," in turn, poured his compliments on his subordinates telling of their fortitude in the "drifting period."

Only when they were picked up fifteen miles from land by the submarine R-4, were they momentarily disappointed, for, after drifting 400 miles, they expected to move into land unassisted.

Just before retiring last night, a member of the crew was asked to give his opinion on the whole flight. He said the aviators had placed too much reliance on wind conditions in planning the flight. "We figured to pick up the trade winds 500 miles from San Francisco," he said, "but it was more than 1,900 miles before we had the wind on our tail and then it was only a slight wind."

Mr. Cook was on the stand all day Friday. Cook admitted to having Mrs. Cook's leave her apartments in the hotel St. Francis through a faked telephone call. Simultaneously, they made a demand through a messenger for $50,000 from Jackling on the threat that his wife would be executed with deadly disease germs.

Quick work by the police prevented the carrying out of the kidnapping and resulted in the arrest of the youths while they were waiting for their victim to appear.

BIG SHIPMENT OF LAMBS FROM BEND TO IDAHO IS MADE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
BEND, Ore., Sept. 12.—Five thousand spring lambs were shipped out of Bend today to winter feeding grounds in Idaho; the shipment is the first from Bend this fall. The lambs which belonged to Tom Connelly of Manipis, were brought in from the summer range in the Cascade National Forest. Delivery on 12,000 lambs which is expected to practically clean up feeding lambs from the Central Oregon country, starts September 15 from Bend. These lambs will be trailed in from the Silver Lake district and The Dalles-California highway south of Bend is expected to be dotted with the flocks for the next 30 days.

Nineteen carloads have been shipped out of Prineville during the last week to winter feeding grounds in Idaho with a few going to Grand Island, Neb.

Feeding lambs are scarce all over the mid-Oregon country, according to local sheep men. Unusually good range conditions which puts most of the lambs in the fat class, is one reason while the fact that most of the lambs were contracted last spring also held responsible for the present scarcity.

MORONI OLSEN PLAYERS ARE COMING SOON

"Pygmalion" to Be Presented Here Early in October.

GROUP POPULAR HERE

Business and Professional Women's Club Sponsoring Appearances This Season.

Of keen interest to theatre patrons in Roseburg is the announcement of the return of the Moroni Olsen players early in October in the first of a series of three plays which they will give here this winter under the auspices of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Roseburg. The hundreds of friends made by this circuit repertory company will welcome them with keen anticipation and those who were not fortunate enough to see their "Kempy" and "Taming of the Shrew" last year will not lose the opportunity this season.

The first play, to be presented here early in October, is a happy choice. "Pygmalion" is a happy choice. "Pygmalion" will open the season. "Pygmalion" is familiar to many, a clever modern English comedy based on the Greek myth of the youth in love with an ivory statue of a young maiden he himself had made and prayed to Aphrodite to give to life, his prayer being answered. In this case Pygmalion is a very real girl of the lower class who is taken by a group of people who wage that they can so train and educate her within a short time that it will be possible to present her at court as one "to the manner born."

The company is composed of a dozen or so permanent players, who are all college graduates, and have had professional theatrical experience. Their home is in Ogden, Utah, where the plays are prepared for presentation. The company is managed cooperatively each member sharing in the work of staging the plays, public management, etc. and also sharing the profits. The company has had two very successful years, and is now firmly established in the northwest, and has received enviable recognition in the east. National theatrical periodicals have carried the company's name and the company comparing them to the Theatre Guild, the Moscow Art Theatre, and the Theatre des Arts of Paris.

Members of the Business Women's Club here will have season tickets for sale for the three plays and also single admissions soon.

COUNTY SUPT. RETURNS FROM SCHOOL VISIT

Schools in Lower Umpqua Country Are Above Average.

PRIZES ARE AWARDED

Flower and Home Economics Display at Smith River Fair Unusually Complete.

An interesting visit to the schools in the Reedsport section was made during the past week by County School Superintendent Ackert who returned yesterday with a good report of the schools in that district. The schools of Reedsport and the lower Umpqua country are unusually efficient and a number of improvements made this year will bring them far above the average.

W. M. Kent of the Reedsport schools has increased his force of eleven teachers this year by the addition of Mrs. Eva Waite of Roseburg, who is to direct the "extra work" room, introducing the Stanford-Binet mental intelligence tests for the abnormal child. Considerable interest attaches to this special work as it is an innovation in this county, and the solution of many problems of the teacher by the new method is anticipated.

H. E. Tobie of Smith River school is planning an effective course ministering to a larger section. This particular section not having fruit harvest, schools begin there earlier. Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Grae of Wilbur, have very ably organized a vigorous school at Winchester Bay, the children in this section being those of the fishermen and workmen on the jetty. Mrs. Genevieve Benman, superintendent of schools at Gardiner, began school this week and is using an interesting system of teacher-directed self government on the part of the pupils.

Long Prairie, District 38, near Scottsburg, and Sunnyside, District 29, near Drain, are happily at work with Miss Mildred Church and Mrs. Helen Odjala Spill as the teachers. Elton grade schools, under the direction of J. P. Oliver of Roseburg in the upper grades, and Miss Luella Daniels in the primary grades began this week, while the high school will open next week.

CRITICISM OF LAND POLICY EVOKES REPLY

Chief Forester Answers Requests and Criticisms of His Department.

INDIANS APPEAR

Reopening of School for Use of Indian Children on Reservation Is Desired.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
BAKER, Ore., Sept. 12.—Testimony favorable to legislation providing for leasing grazing lands on the public domain to stockmen having prior right was given before the sub-committee of the senate public lands committee here today by E. A. Phillips, president of the Oregon Cattle and Horse Raisers Association, and William Pollman, former president of the association.

The testimony supported the policies outlined by stockmen in the hearings at Pendleton. The contention of the stockmen was that grazing fees on the public domain should not greatly exceed the cost of administration; that as a matter of fixed principle, fees should not be allowed to depreciate the present livestock values, and thus confiscate in part the stockmen's holdings. An increase of present fees was strongly opposed by local stockmen.

The senatorial party arrived here early this morning in a special car from Pendleton. Following the hearing, which lasts all day, the visitors will be entertained at a banquet this evening. The party will leave here for Boise.

PENDLETON, Ore., Sept. 12.—The reply of Colonel Greeley, chief forester of the United States to the requests and criticisms of his department made during the two days of the senate public lands sub-committee by livestock men, and his recommendations as to the desirability of changes in the present methods of administering the forests marked the closing session of the hearing Friday afternoon. Agreement with some of the changes requested was expressed by the chief forester, and in other cases he voiced his opposition to changes asked. The sub-committee moved on to Baker last night for a hearing today.

The city of Walla Walla asked for the closing to grazing of 27,000 acres of land in the national forest on the head of Mill Creek, which is the water shed of the city's water supply. The request was presented by W. Craig Ferguson, commissioner of finance in the city's municipal government. The city has spent $230,000 in extending its water systems, and buying privately owned land within the reserve to protect the water supply under the implied protection afforded by a contract entered into with the department of agriculture. The land has been closed to grazing this year, and the city has asked that the closing order be made permanent.

Indian reservation appeared before the committee to ask that their school be re-opened for the use of Indian children. They also asked for the return to the tribes of grazing purposes of land on Johnson Creek, which was ceded to the government more than 20 years ago and was not surveyed and appraised until 1917. They expressed some dissatisfaction with the present leasing system for wheat land in which some white men are able to secure more land than they farm correctly, the Indians said.
